CALVIN Coolidge, Governor Smith, and the distinguished philanthropist, Julius Rosenwald, are selected to dispose of an eight million dollar charity fund left by Conrad Hubert.

The man who left the money wanted it distributed "by one Jew, one Protestant, and one Catholic."

Why not three good, average persons, regardless of their religions.

There is too much emphasizing of "Jew, Protestant, Catholic," too much dividing of political offices among them.

WOMEN TO GO AFTER SEATS IN LORDS NOW

English Journals See Way Opened for Membership in House

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 19.—"The House of Lords next!"

That is the thought which runs all through today's comment on the judgment of the privy council yesterday, which recognized the eligibility of women for appointment to the senate of Canada.

Practically every newspaper in Britain gives prominence to ruling. The victory of Canadian women, it is generally felt, can scarcely fail to affect the claim of women to sit in the House of Lords as peeresses in their own right, whether by inheritance or creation.

Mrs. Helen Archdale, president of the Women's Peers Society, which is agitating for peeresses in their own right to be admitted to the upper chamber, declares the judgment certainly strengthens their position considerably. Miss Collinson, organizer of the British Commonwealth League, describes the judgment as a real triumph. "It is far more significant and far-reaching than it is possible even for lawyers to comprehend," she says.

The Daily Herald says: "The public spirited pertinacity of Canadian women who appealed to the privy council against the Canadian supreme court's decision is splendidly justified in the event. And, while supporters of the doctrine of electoral equality will everywhere welcome this latest victory in a hard fought and many phased battle, nowhere will it be welcomed more wholeheartedly than in the labor and socialist movement.

"Perhaps the second chamber may remain the last male preserve. But not, we suspect, for many years more," concludes the Daily Telegraph. The British end of the controversy dates from 1919 when a seat in the House of Lords was claimed on behalf of Lady Rhonda, a peeress in her own right. A private members' bill was passed in the commons, enabling women to exercise all public functions, but did not get through the House of Lords. Later, the government sponsored a similar bill with a specific clause enabling the king to summon a peeress otherwise qualified. The lords rejected the clause and the commons reinstated it. The lords again threw it out. After a long legal battle the matter was dropped until Lady Astor introduced a new bill, which so far has not met with any success.

MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING NOW LIKELY HERE

$125,000 Incorporation is Announced in Current Gazette

Incorporation of a Medical Arts Building in this city, for $125,000 is announced in the current issue of the Alberta Gazette.

In all the Gazette contains notice of the incorporation of 15 new companies with a total capitalization of $445,000.

Of these three are in this city: the Medical Building, the Caledonian Securities, $20,000, and the Puritan Dollar Taxi Company, Ltd., $20,000.

The erection of a central building to house all the leading members of the medical profession has been under consideration since the beginning of the year, and sites in different parts of the business section of the city have been taken up under option, but to date no actual purchase of property has been made.

Options on sites have been taken on 102 street on the south side of Jasper, on 102 street on the north side of Jasper, and also on 104 street. These options have not been exercised.

It is understood, however, that within a very short time the land will be purchased, and a building erected thereon which will house practically all the doctors who operate in down town offices.

TODAY'S ODDEST NEWS

MAN'S HAIR FALLS EACH TIME WIFE HAS BABY

NEENAH, Wis., Oct. 19.—Victor Larsen is causing the members of the medical profession a great deal of puzzlement. Every time a baby is born to Larsen's wife, Larsen's hair falls out.

Ordinarily he has a rich growth of red hair. When a child is born, the hair starts falling out and Larson becomes almost bald. When the child becomes several months old the hair comes back again.

Dr. Ronald B. Rogers has written a treatise on the subject for the journal of the American Medical society.

4 PERFECT HANDS DEALT OUT AT BRIDGE GAME

SAGINAW, Mich., Oct. 19.—Boy, page Mr. Ripley, four bridge players were alive today despite the terrific strain on the heart when four perfect suit hands were dealt in a bridge game at a tea house here yesterday afternoon. Eighteen witnesses and the four players testify that the deal was "square."

Mrs. Hugo F. Werner gave herself diamonds, and her partner, Mrs. Clara Everett, the spades, while Mrs. Everett Sweet got the hearts, and Mrs. Joseph D. Frost the clubs. The spades won.

THOUGHT HE KILLED MAN BUT IS WAS A SCARECROW

TUCKAHOE, N.J., Oct. 19.—John Dirocco will be careful of his shooting hereafter. Aiming at a hawk, he saw a figure in the distance wearing a battered hat fall and lay motionless. John fled and hid in a swamp thirty hours. A posse found him. He thought he was being hunted as a killer. It was a scarecrow he shot.

Seek Inviolability Of Private Property

Associated Press Cable

BADEN BADEN, Germany, Oct. 19.—The bank for international settlements will be the first judicial bank in the world to obtain guarantees of inviolability of private property in wartime if the provisions adopted by the conference yesterday meets with the approval of the governments at The Hague next month.

The conference for the establishment of the bank held that deposits in it must be guaranteed against seizure, even in war.

Commenting on this far-reaching decision, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, said:

"For the first time inviolability of private property in wartime will be internationally recognized if our demand is approved. We hope that this means an important step forward in the direction of commanding respect for private property."

86-Year-Old Breach Is Healed

The disruption which split Presbyterianism in Scotland in 1843 was brought to an end recently when, in the presence of H.R.H. the Duke of York acting as Royal Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, there was held an historic ceremony that marked the healing of the breach between the Church of Scotland and the United Free Church. Above is a photograph of Holyrood House in Edinburgh, ancient palace where the Duke and Duchess of York are in residence during his term as Royal Commissioner, and inset is a recent photograph of the King's son and daughter-in-law.

POOL TO HANG OUT FOR HIGH WHEAT PRICES

A. J. McPhail Says No Sacrifice Will be Made

Canadian Press

SASKATOON, Sask., Oct. 19.—The Wheat Pool deos not wish to embarrass other large interests in Canada, but its first concern is the welfare of its farmer members and it will not sell grain at sacrifice prices merely to relieve congestion at Canadian ports. This was the substance of a statement issued today by A. J. MacPhail, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool and of the central selling agency, in reply to recent criticism of the Wheat Pool's selling policy.

Mr. MacPhail said, in part:

"It is rather interesting to note the comments that have been appearing in the press from time to time from different individuals regarding the supposed sales policy of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Ltd., during the past few months. That supposed policy appears to have resulted in embarrassment to certain interests in Canada by holding up the free movement of wheat into the hands of consumers. Only this week, Mr. Griffiths, formerly connected with the London office of the department of trade and commerce, was very critical of the Canadian wheat pool. All I would say is that his remarks indicate quite clearly that he has no real knowledge of the amount of wheat held by the Canadian Pool from the 1928 crop and that he has no knowledge whatever as to the attitude of the pool toward the market during the past few months. Naturally the pool does not want to deliberately pursue any policy that will seriously embarrass any other large Canadian interests, but it must give attention to the welfare of its farmer members before considering the welfare of others."

Crown Wins Appeal In Cruelty Case

Canadian Press

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 19.—Convicted of cruelty to animals, Nick Popowich, farmer of the Worcester district, Friday was sentenced to three months' hard labor in Regina jail and fined $50 and costs. In default of payment he must serve another month in jail. Judgment was imposed by Judge J. N. Fish in the district court at Weyburn

Some weeks ago Popowich was convicted of pulling the tongue out of one of his horses, and he was fined $50 and given a three months suspended sentence.

The crown appealed the sentence, and a re-trial was granted, which resulted in Friday's judgment.

A string had been tied around the horse's tongue and then fastened to another animal.

Edward Ogliogile, a neighbor of Popowich, who assisted in tying the string, was convicted of aiding and abetting the accused in the act of cruelty. He was fined $25 and costs.

Unknown Man Dies After Crash With R. H. Parkyn, M.L.A.

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CALGARY, Ost. 19—An unidentified man was killed Friday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding was struck by an automobile driven by Alderman R. H. Parkyn, M.L.A., on the south approach to Hillhurst bridge. Efforts of the police to identify the victim, who was about 53 years of age, have so far proved unsuccessful. An inquest will be held.

Important Changes Are Announced In T. Eaton Company

Fred Beal to Visit City in Advisory Capacity —R. M. Pinfold to Remain

Designed to strengthen the whole fabric of The T. Eaton Company Limited organization in Edmonton, and to give to the general public a better service generally and a greatly improved selection of merchandise, the personnel of the local staff has been announced by R. McCordick, supervisor of the Alberta interests of The T. Eaton Company Limited.

FRED BEAL TO VISIT EDMONTON.

Of chief importance in the announcement made is the statement that Fred Beal, one of the high officers of the Winnipeg store of the company is to arrive in Edmonton in the near future and will spend some time in this city, supervising the company's business generally and acting in an advisory capacity to the local officials. Mr. Beal has been connected with The T. Eaton Company Limited for a long period, being one of the oldest officers in point of service with the company, and his years of experience in merchandising and service to the public will be available to the local officials, adding considerably to the high class service they will be able to give Edmonton patrons.

Staff Greatly Strengthened

Mr. McCordick also announced that R. M. Pinfold, who came to Edmonton when The T. Eaton Company Limited took over the James Ramsey Limited holdings, will remain as manager being assisted as merchandising manager by W. J. Scott. Both Mr. Pinfold and Mr. Scott have been connected with The T. Eaton Company Limited for many years in Winnipeg.

Donald Hobson, formerly in Regina and Winnipeg, is another new official to Edmonton, and has taken over the superintendent's office, to which he also brings much western experience with the company.

E. Laudrum remains as manager of the mail order department under the direction of the retail store management here, and executives of the T. Eaton Company Limited feel that in the above promotions and placements, a distinct strength has been given to the Edmonton organization and that service of the highest class, together with greatly improved selections of merchandise will now be available to the Edmonton public as a result of the experience of the officials concerned.

Identification Cards Mooted For Electors

Canadian Press

MONTREAL Oct. 19.—Voters in municipal elections in Montreal will have to produce a photographic identification card to cast their votes at polls if a resolution adopted by the city council in caucus here Friday is approved by the city executive Montreal's governing body. The resolution recommended the city administration to equipp install, an operate in time for the next civic election next April the Campbell system of identification, a complete photographic identification which comprises a card bearing the photo of the bearer information concerning the elector such as name, address, nationality, occupation, etc.

Winnipeg Request Refused By Board

Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.—The board of railway commissioners has turned down the application of the Winnipeg board of trade for an order directing the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways to provide excursion rates from Eastern to Western Canada and to place tickets on sale during December of each year.

The application called for an arrangement similar to the home-visitors excursion rates issued each year from Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba to eastern Canada, east of Sudbury.

Man Without Larynx Learns How To Speak

Milwaukee Mechanic Had Organs Removed Four Years Ago and Has Taught Himself to Talk by Other Means

Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 19.—The Milwaukee Journal Friday said that Herman Schulenberg, 53, Milwaukee mechanic, whose larynx and vocal chords were removed four years ago in a cancer operation, amazed the American College of Surgeons, meeting in Chicago, by his ability to speak.

The newspaper said that Schulenberg speaks in a monotone, but can produce inflexion by pressure of his fingers against his throat. The Journal quoted Schulenberg, as saying: "I lost my voice. I could not bear to be a dummy. Well, I began experimenting with myself. I have a workship in the basement of my home. I studied myself in a mirror. I studied musical instruments and there I got my idea. You know I used to play the organ and I know how you can force air through a thing and get sound.

"I didn't actually operate on myself; I used no knives. I used—but, there—I must not tell you about it now, because it's not perfect yet. This I will say, I used no mechanical appliances.

"It took lots of practice to learn to talk again, even after I had the secret. The flesh had to be hardened and trained. At first I could say only letters, like a child, A, and B, but now I can speak sentences."

Tickets For Sweepstakes Confiscated

Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19—Confiscating perhaps $200,000 worth of tickets and stubs, police Friday believed they had broken up a lottery distribution system covering Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois.

The certificates, seized in a raid on two houses at midnight, were on the membership pool of the Cambridgeshire sweepstake, said to be conducted by the Army and Navy Veterans in Quebec, Canada, Unit No. 33.

Two men were arrested and held for questioning.

FRANCE PLANS REPRISAL FOR MOOR ATTACK

Tribesmen Sweep Down on Foreign Legion and Kill 50

Associated Press Cable

PARIS, Oct. 19.—Moorish tribesmen have swooped down from the southern slopes of the Atlass mountains, in a new raid against the French troops. Despatches from Oran Friday said that 50 soldiers of the Foreign Legion and a Sengalese company had been killed in a pitched battle with raiders from Hetafilelt area, one of the most active dissident regions in the area.

The battle lasted several hours, with heavy casualties on the side of the tribesmen who were driven off by the column of legionaires. A French aeroplane witnessed the beginning of the fight and went for reinforcements. Military authorities last night were making an effort to cut off the tribesmen before they could reach the safety of their mountain strongholds.

The fighting was the second worst struggle of the year. Eighty French soldiers were killed, when a French column out for supplies, was attacked at Ait Yaccub, a few months ago.

Pressure is now being brought to bear on the ministry of war to launch the long-talked-of offensive against the dissident tribesmen for which preparations have been made on a large scale. This military operation has been studied by war ministry experts for several years, but as it would require the expenditure of millions of francs and a heavy concentration of troops, the ministry has always hesitated to undertake it.

It is estimated that at least six divisions of infantry, many batteries of artillery and a score of aeroplanes would be needed for such a mopping up campaign which would be on the same scale as the expedition against Abd-El-Krim.

Minister of War Painleve will make a statement on the subject when parliament meets next week.

ACCLAMATIONS EXPECTED IN 10 ONT. SEATS

Nominations in 112 Ridings in Eastern Province Made Today

Canadian Press

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—Candidates will officially line up today for the Ontario provincial election to be held October 30

The campaign has been in progress for a month, party organizations and in some cases independent groups have endorsed candidates in the 112 constituencies. Today, between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock, returning officers will receive the official nomination papers. Indications are that acclamations will be confined to less than ten constituencies and that in a considerable number of others there will be three cornered contests.

In Ontario no deposit is required from candidates, who are therefore free to drop out of the campaign even after having been officially placed in nomination—so the line-up as completed today may not necessarily hold until election day.

Two hundred and thirty-three candidates have received endorsation of constituency organizations or announced their intention to stand for election early today. Conservatives have candidates in the field in every constituency, with Liberals in 87, Progressives in 10 and Labor, Prohibition, Independent-Conservative, U.F.O. and straight Independent accounting for the remainder.

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, and Premier Ferguson spent a crowded day yesterday addressing afternoon and evening meetings in a continuation of their tour of the constituencies.

TO RECEIVE DIVIDEND

TORONTO, Oct. 19—Shareholders of Famous Players Canadian corporation will receive their first dividend on the common stock on December 2nd. At a meeting of the board held here the stock was placed on an annual basis of $2 by the declaration of a quarterly disbursement of fifty cents a share.

Hunt For McAlpine To Get Under Way Within Seven Days

Winter Descends on North Country, Making Flying and Landing Safe for Pilots—Radio Message of Cheer Broadcast to Missing Men

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19—After halting the air search for eight explorers, lost in the North-West Territories, the "in-between" season will have passed within a week. According to W. L. Brintnell, directing the aerial hunt from Winnipeg, the five aeroplanes stationed at Baker Lake outpost will be away on skis inside of seven days—and in another four days of good flying weather they will have covered the widespread search area.

Opinion of Mr. Brintnell, himself a flier of note in the north country, comes as a new ray of hope in the attempts to rescue Colonel C. D. H. McAlpine and his seven companions, now missing in the barrens for six weeks. The forecast on the arrival of the freeze-up is particularly significant in that it is the first conjecture offered by the director of the search. Hitherto, he has been satisfied to say: "The boys will get away as soon as they can."

Suggestion that the air armada will be off for Bathurst Inlet, on Canada's Arctic coast, within a week, is based on weather reports from the sub-Arctic stretches. Mr. Brintnell points out that zero weather is being experienced in Alaska and that the cold weather is moving eastward rapidly. As a matter of fact, temperatures have shown a gradual decline in the North-West over the past two weeks and ice has been forming rapidly on the larger lakes.

Under the command of Captain G. S. Blanchet, the quintet of machines at Baker Lake will proceed at the freeze-up over the intended route of the McAlpine party to Bathurst. If no trace is found en route, search parties will be dispatched east and west from the inlet along the north coast of Canada. At outposts in the northern portion of the prairie provinces, four other planes delegated to the search are awaiting orders.

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19—Friday night a radio message of encouragement was flashed out into the Sub-arctic darkness in the hope that it may reach eight aerial explorers lost in the barrens for 40 days. A possibility exists that the message may be picked up on the tiny radio set carried by Major Robert F. Baker of St. Catharines, Ont., a member of Col. C. D. H. McAlpine's missing party.

"Keep a stiff upperlip, and make best possible signals to aid planes in locating you," the radioed note states as it goes out into the night by short-wave broadcast from C.K.Y. and CJGX, two Winnipeg stations.

"Five planes on skis at Baker Lake," continues the message, "leaving as soon as safe to search for you. Reinforcements ready at Stoney Rapids if needed. Blanchet will make Bathurst Inlet main base for search."

Twice during the night the statement was sent out, and twice each night during the progress of the air hunt over the barrens a similar message will be broadcast.

From Hudson Bay to the Mackenzie River, residents at outposts are being called to the aid of the search by means of the radio. A second message broadcast tonight tells Eskimos, traders, prospectors, that two planes carrying eight men, are believed "down," somewhere along the coast of the Arctic. Northern residents are requested to question natives and promptly forward any information that may be picked up on the missing party. Ice is forming fast at Baker Lake, according to a report received late Friday afternoon from the post 300 miles from the west coast of Hudson May on the eastern edge of the search area.

The message presages possibly an early start of the advance squadron of five planes from Baker over the McAlpine party's trail to Bathurst inlet, 450 miles away in the Arctic circle.

Section Foreman To Face Murder Charge

Canadian Press

KENORA, Ont., Oct. 19—Outside the Kenora jail today are a sorrowing wife and three children. Behind the bars is Lukasz Reszekowski, who was section foreman at the lonely little settlement of Robinson, Ont., and is now held on a charge of murder. Interred at Robinson is the body of Karl Zarne, whose bullet-hastened death placed a stone wall between the father and mother of the Reszekowski family.

Lukasz is alleged to have killed Zarne in a scuffle in the Reszekowski home, after Zarne had forced his way into the house requesting to speak to Mrs. Reszekowski. It is stated that police found a loaded revolver on the dead body of Zarne. Reszekowski was remanded in court at Sioux Lookout, Ont., until the spring assizes.

$2,000,000 PROFIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Operating all the way down the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to the Virginian capes, the gigantic rum smuggling syndicate whose extensive properties here and in New Jersey were raided last night made profits of $2,000,000 in six months, federal officials revealed Thursday.

U.S. Capital Welcomed in Canada Declares E. W. Beatty to Bankers

FINANCIERS HEAR STORY OF DOMINION

Railway Chief Gives Interesting Address at Annual Convention

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

QUEBEC, Que., Oct. 19.—"Canada does now welcome and always has welcomed capital from outside to help in her development," E W Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told the Investment Bankers' Association of America in convention here at the Chateau Frontenac in an address yesterday morning

Dwelling upon the relationship between Canada and the United States, he said: "I cannot understand how two free and independent nations could live in such complete harmony if there were not the greatest recognition of the sovereign rights of each by the other in relation to the domestic policies conceived and adopted for the well-being of the people in their respective countries

"The construction of this railway and its successful operation afterwards will always be the most notable railway achievement, not only in Canada but in North America," said Mr Beatty, in speaking of the part taken by the Canadian Pacific in the progress and development of Canada.

Huge Undertaking

"The projects which followed in this Dominion, ambitious and important though they were, must fall into relative insignificance when compared to the magnitude of the undertaking to construct the pioneer transcontinental railway, because, by reason of its construction, all other similar undertakings were made comparatively easy

"It is a great satisfaction for any Canadian to be able to record before you gentlemen, with your wealth of experience in finance and in industrial development, that Canada, after ten years of peace, has assumed a new and greatly strengthened position in the world of finance

"This in a large measure is due to the great natural wealth of the country, and from it the country has enjoyed a marked growth and development of physical assets behind Canadian investment

"You are familiar with the history of your own country following the collapse of the post-war boom of 1921 and you will not be surprised to know that there was a great similarity in the trend of events in this country, but the enormous wealth of the country's natural resources made it inevitable that this period of re-adjustment should not be long continued All that we then felt to be necessary was that the requisite deflation should be accomplished and that Canadians should go to work at their regular job of national development This they did—three or four good crops provided the impetus, and ten years finds Canada, considered from the standpoint of investment, more strongly entrenched than ever before In this short period between 1921 and 1928, American investments in this country increased from $2,400,000,000 to $3,380,000,000, a percentage increase of over 41 I know that there is perhaps nothing drier than statistics, but they have a way of explaining in language that is understandable, at least to financial men, and I have thought that you might be interested to learn from me briefly some of the bits of evidence of Canadian progress and prosperity

Only Short Period

"I appreciate that I am dealing in figures which, while of some magnitude, do not compare with the aggregate of figures to which you are used in the great republic to the south of us, but in this young country with a relatively small population they are eloquent in their indication of accomplishment over a short period of years During this period the assets of our chartered banks have increased by 21½ per cent, from $2,841,000,000 to $3,452,000,000 Life insurance has increased by 91 per cent, from $2,934,000,000 to $5,689,000,000

General Building

"Then, too, in a growing country, if its growth is real, we find of necessity work in general construction illustrative of progress In 1921 our general construction contracts awarded amounted to $240,000,000 and in 1928 $420,000,000, or a percentage increase of 96

"Our primary forest production in 1921 was $158,000,000, and in 1926, the latest available figures, $312,000,000, an increase of 97 per cent.

"Mineral production has proceeded apace from $171,000,000 to $274,000,000, and newsprint, perhaps the most rapid and surprising development of them all, from 805,114 tons to 2,381,000 tons in 1928, a percentage increase of 195

"It is not necessary for me to emphasize to you the tremendous importance to the country of our agriculture production, steadily increasing until in 1928 its value was $1,750,000, with an agricultural wealth of over eight billion dollars

"It is quite understandable, with its varied and extensive natural resources, Canada should progress, and while it is difficult to make comparisons with other nations or with other times one significant evidence of this progress lies in the fact that the United States had a population of over 75 millions before its export business equalled that of Canada I know, as you do, that there is a difference in money values between those days and these, and that, too, there is a difference in extent and diversity of manufactures But it speaks for the country's progress when, with less than ten million people, it can produce this result.

North Country

"Only in recent years a new north is opening to our vision, which promises to exert an accelerating influence upon national development which could hardly have been realized a decade or so ago.

"We hear a great deal occasionally of the so-called peaceful penetration of Canada through the United States, through your enormous and rapidly increasing investments in this country. Peaceful penetration properly describes this development which, until a few years ago, had only reached modest proportions It is not, however, a penetration to which Canadians object.

MAUSOLEUM TO BE BUILT IN EDMONTON

Work on Imposing Structure to Commence in Spring, 1930

As a preliminary to the carrying out of its agreement with the Edmonton Cemetery company for the building of a permanent mausoleum for above-ground interment at Edmonton Cemetery on 116th street, the Canada Mausoleums Company has opened an office at 907 McLeod Building. At the present time O. M. Trano, general manager of the company, is in charge, but as it is necessary for him to shortly return to headquarters in Ontario, the subsequent management of the Edmonton office will be in charge of A. L. Bearce.

Building of the mausoleum will commence next spring, and the imposing structure will be located in that part of the cemetery on 107th avenue that faces the Soldiers' Cross of Sacrifice. This is in the newer portion of the cemetery, divided from the older area by 107th avenue. The size of the contemplated building will provide for around 400 compartments for entombments, and roughly the cost will be in the neighborhood of $150,000.

The architectural style to be used, said Mr. Trano, will be the Greek-Doric, with exterior of Tyndall stone, and, wherever possible, polished domestic marble will be utilized for the interior finish. No wood will be utilized, the whole of the construction being of polished marble, and gates and doors of bronze of classical design. In the private crypts some very handsome effects will be produced by the use of various kinds of polished marble and worked bronze.

A chapel will be provided where services will take place, and one of the special features will be the provision, in addition to the space for permanent entombments, of a receiving vault for caskets that will subsequently be interred in cemetery plots. This feature, together with the chapel, is expected to be of the greatest service during the winter, when conditions are unsatisfactory for conducting ordinary burials.

The arrangement between the Canadian Mausoleums Company and the Edmonton Cemetery Company provides for the sale of the compartments or entombment spaces before the building is commenced. The mausoleum company will then create a trust fund for the perpetual maintenance of the building and turn it over to the cemetery company for operation and upkeep.

At the present time there are 26 such mausoleums in Canada, the majority in Ontario, where the company has been operating for the past 15 years. Edmonton is the first place in the west to adopt this method of interment, which is contended to be sanitary and economic by not requiring the large space needed for cemeteries. By a scientific process of sealing the compartments, and dealing with gases and air, it is claimed to be absolutely sanitary.

Officer Salvation Army Is Missing

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19. — Salvation Army headquarters here Friday reported the disappearance of Captain Sidney Weeks, in charge of immigration for the Army in Winnipeg. Captain Weeks left his office on Sept. 25, and has not been seen since. He went apparently to Kenora and sent back a few papers to army headquarters here. No other messages have been received from him. His wife and three children reside here.

MACDONALD ENTERTAINED BY BENNETT

Distinguished Visitor Spends Quiet Day, Making No Speeches

Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.—A distinguished company attended the luncheon given at the Country Club Friday by Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, at which Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was the guest of honor. The guests included Prime Minister MacKenzie King, and most of the members of the cabinet, as well as many of the leading men of the Conservative party.

Among the guests were Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Perley, Mr. Speaker Lemiuex, Gen. McRae, the judges of the supreme court of Canada, judges of the Exchequer court, and many other prominent men in the official life of the country.

In proposing the health of the guest, Mr. Bennett pointed out that the prime minister of Great Britain had been put to such a strain recently that he would not be asked to make a speech. He outlined the remarkable life of Mr. MacDonald, going from heights to heights, he said and prophesied that he would go on to even greater achievements.

Premier MacDonald is a charming after-dinner speaker. "I am resting now," he told his hearers. "I hope to come to Canada many times in the future," he said. He paid tribute to Canadian statesmen both past and present.

HONAN SCENE OF NEW CIVIL WAR FIGHTING

Rigid Censorship and Poor Communication Prevent Accurate Reports

Associated Press Cable

SHANGHAI, Oct. 19—Major hostilities between loyal Nationalist armies and the revolting Kuominchun, or "People's army" of Feng Yu-Hsian, were reported today to have opened in the neighborhood of Chengchow, Honan, unction of the two trans-provincial railway lines.

The reports could not be verified, since communications were all but paralyzed and a rigid censorship prevailed. There were even reports that Chenchow had passed into the hands of the Kuominchun, but this seemed unlikely.

The Kuominchun appeared to be heading southward with Janow as their objective, with others of their numbers advancing down the Hankiang. This latter force, it was said, Fencheng important cities northwest has begun a siege of Sianyung and of Hankow.

The northern force was not expected to advance further east than Kaifeng, Honan.

The revolting "ironsides" regiment has switched its march suddenly from Kwangsi, toward Canton, back toward Hankow as if to converge with the attack of the Kuominchun, if it should reach that point.

Meanwhile Chiang Kai-Shek, Nationalist president and generalissimo, has concentrated his choice troops at Hankow.

Government departments and adherents in Hankow were said to have complete confidence in the ability of Chiang to surmount the crisis which faced his government.

Repeats Statement That Pool Action Is Bad For Canada

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19—Criticism of the operations of the Canadian Wheat Pool, expressed in Toronto by W. L. Griffiths, of London, Eng., was a reflection of the opinion of authorities whose views should be respected, states Mr. Griffith. The former chief executive official in the office of the Canadian high commissioner at London points out that the opinions were not expressed as his own. He has now expressed the stand of eastern Canada.

Stating that he had been a farmer at Emerson, Man., Mr. Griffiths explained that he was naturally interested in the wheat question and sympathetic with the farmers. His comment at Toronto that no Canadian body could influence the price of grain on the world market, he stated, had been expressed as the opinion of bankers and grain men, expressed some years ago in London.

"Eastern officials consider that the result of holding up the wheat had been bad for the Canadian railways and disastrous for inland transportation companies on the Great Lakes," Mr. Griffiths stated. "They say that the policy of the Wheat Pool has been wholly endorsed by the farmers of western Canada in the hope of forcing the price higher and that the farmers freely talk of $2 per bushel as against about $1.44 quoted at the head of the lakes."

New Rejuvenation Operation Talked

Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Man's eternal quest for youth held the attention of a group of surgeons attending the American College of Surgeons' clinic Friday, after Dr. V. D. Lespenasse, Chicago, demonstrated a new form of rejuvenation operation. Although the college has not given official santion to this type of surgery, the operation is causing comment.

Phlebophlebostomy, meaning "vein to vein," in the surgeons' vernacular, forms the basis of Dr. Lespenasse's new technique. The surgeon joins certain veins in the lower abdomen, causing the blood to follow a different course, and thus, it is claimed, revitalizing the glands. The operation does not involve the transplanting of glands or the use of glandular extracts.

Dr. Lespenasse, in 1922, performed a rejuvenation upon Harold F. McCormick, prominent Chicagoan. The surgeon said that his method had passed the experimental stage and has been used on many patients.

Dr. William A. Osborne, Melbourne, Australia, dean of the faculty of medicine and chairman of the cancer research committee of the University of Melbourne, was amongst those awarded honorary fellowships.

Jury Disagrees In Second Auger Trial

Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.—The assizes jury which heard the case of Louis Auger, ex-member of parliament, charged criminally assulting a 17 year year old girl, failed to reach an agreement after seven hours of consideration and were dismissed early Friday evening by Justice Kelly. The vote of the jurymen as announced in open court was seven for conviction and five for acquittal.

Auger first convicted of the charge and sentenced to nine years imprisonment then granted a new trial on the ground of misdirection of the jury by the bench, must now face a third trial. He will probably come up again at the January session of the supreme court of Ontario.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 19.—Major Lockie Burwash, Canadian government explorer who has been missing in the Arctic for some time, is reported to be at the mouth of the Burnside River which runs into Bathurst Inlet, about fifty miles north of the wireless station at the head of Bathurst.

Wireless messages from Bathurst in answer to official enquiries from Ottawa state the Burwash was at the wireless station about two weeks ago He them returned to the little settlement at the mouth of the Burnside intending to wait until he can get a ride out on the first aeroplane reaching Bathurst.

It is between seasons in the Arctic and travel is at a standstill. Planes being unable to use either floats or skis. As soon as the winter tightens up in the north and skis are possible Planes will be into Bathurst and Burwash will be able to come south after his long sojourn in the northern wastes.

FORBID MAILS TO U.S. FIRMS

Action Taken Against Unauthorized Life Insurance Companies

BY THOMAS WAYLING
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

OTTAWA, Oct 19.—United States life insurance companies soliciting life insurance in Canada by mail, without having first obtained the authority of the insurance branch of the Department of Finance, have been refused the mails.

G. D. Finlayson, superintendent of insurance, told the Bulletin, today that the Union Mutual Life Company of Iowa has been refused the mails and similar action is pending against other companies.

One company is soliciting, by mail, applications for policies of "legal reserve life insurance for a premium of only $4.13 quarter yearly for each $1,000 of insurance at the age of 35."

When the policy comes through, however, it is found that it provides only term insurance with no value at expiry such as may be provided by "dividends" accruing during its currency. As the company had assets less than $100,000 the prospects of dividends are not bright.

The department is asking for information from the public as to offers of life insurance by mail by unauthorized companies.

EXHUME BODY, FIND POISON, OPEN INQUEST

R.C.M.P. Face New Mystery in Death of Saskatchewan Woman

Canadian Press

REGINA, Oct. 19—Royal Canadian Mounted Police have another mystery to solve following an inquest held at Avonlea, a little Saskatchewan town Friday.

Mrs. Caroline Harlos, wife of an Avonlea district farmer, died on March 18, 1928, from natural causes, it was believed at the time.

Long after her death rumors were current throughout the district and finally the police ordered the body exhumed and an inquest held.

Today medical evidence disclosed that "enough poison to kill six people" was found in the stomach of Mrs. Harlos. There were 375 grains of strychnine in the woman's stomach.

Several witnesses testified Friday including members of her family and the jury returned an "open" verdict, reading that "the evidence is insufficient to show by whom the poison was adminstered."

THREE SHOT BY BANDITS IN TORONTO

Woman Leads Gang to Robbery of Brewery Truck of $2,600

Canadian Press

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—Mercilessly shooting down any passerby who might interfere with their plans, four young bandits, apparently directed by a pretty, well-dressed woman, held up a brewery warehouse money truck at Trinity street and Eastern avenue last night, and escaped with $2,600 in cash after wounding three persons. Those wounded by the gunmen were Arthur J. Ryan, truck driver for the Hardy Cartage company, William Mager, a pedestrian who witnessed the hold-up, and Bill Stefanyk, eye-witness. None of the three men were injured seriously

According to eye-witnesses, the bandit car was parked in a lane. Just as the money truck came along the car was stalled in front of it. The bandits immediately ordered the driver out of the cab and shot him through both thighs. William Mager was coming along the street. As he ran toward the truck the bandits fired again and he too dropped to the sidewalk. Stefanyk was visiting across the street from the hold-up and as he opened the door another shot was fired and he fell.

Peter Bujoski, nine years old, was near the scene when the robbery occurred. He was still excited when questioned but explained that he was on his way home when he saw the auto stall in front of the truck. "I guess they didn't shoot me because I'm so small," he said philosophically. "This truck couldn't get past on account of this auto. Then the driver, he got off the truck and started to run, but he fell down on the sidewalk. Yes, after they shot him. Or maybe it was just one fellow had a gun. Anyhow, the fellow with the pistol he walked around to the other side of the car, around to the back and he sees two men up the street, so he shoots at one and then the other."

Driver Tells Story

"I had just finished my work for the night and had picked up the day's receipts from five brewery warehouses," Bryan said from his hospital cot today.

"I was just going south on Trinity street from King street, and had reached a particularly dark part of the street when a big sedan suddenly backed out in front of me.

"I came to a stop to avoid striking the other car and just as I did so a man seemed to come from nowhere and pulled me out of the front seat of my truck.

"'Stick 'em up!' he said.

"Instead of putting my hands up I grabbed his right hand—the one he was holding his pistol in—and twisted his wrist.

"He didn't drop the gun, but let out a little cry of pain and we struggled there for the gun.

"Then a man who had been standing on the sidewalk shot me through both thighs. The wounds didn't hurt hardly at all, so I kept on fighting. But the first bandit held on and had the better of me, so I told him to let loose of me and go ahead and take the money if he wanted to.

"One of the men—there were at least four of them—climbed up over the front of the machine and got the money out of the back of the truck."

RAIL WORKERS FACE SERIOUS LACK OF WORK

Both Lines Suffer Unemployment Due to Partial Crop Failure

Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.—Grave unemployment now exists among railway workers of Canada, according to J. A. P. Haydon, Canadian correspondent of "Labor," the official publication of the railway labor unions. The partial grain crop failure and the tie-up caused by the non-movement of grain is given as the direct cause of the situation.

The employes engaged in the maintenance equipment departments of the railways are the chief sufferers. The big Angus shops of the Canadian Pacific at Montreal, employing approximately 5,500 men, have been hit hard and this month only 18 days' employment will be afforded these workers, says Mr. Haydon. A five-day week has been temporarily inaugurated and in addition the entire plant will be closed for five days. The western shops at Winnipeg have also been hit. Approximately 1,950 men there decided some time ago to inaugurate a temporary four-day week, but lay-offs will lalso be necessary.

Lay-offs on the Canadian National have not been so severe, but large numbers of men are nevertheless without employment, the correspondent declares.

The reduction in freight has become so pronounced that switchmen in the Toronto and other terminals are now without employment, a condition unknown for years.

Big Prairie Fire Near Kisbey, Sask.,

Canadian Press

KISBEY, Sask., Oct. 19.—After a fight lasting nearly 30 hours, a big prairie fire in the Kisbey district was under control and practically extinguished last night. Hundreds of men from farm lands and the town of Kisbey were called out to fight the fire, which spread over eight or nine farms and at one time seriously endangered the Moose Mountain fur ranch, one of the biggest fur farms on the prairies.

Annual Convention I.O.D.E. Under Way

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

LETHBRIDGE, Oct. 19—Delegates from Calgary, Edmonton, Pincher Creek, Medicine Hat, Banff, Wetaskiwin and Lethbridge were present at the opening of the semi-annual convention of the provincial I.O.D.E. in Lethbridge this morning. Mrs. R. C. Marshall, of Edmonton, provincial president, was in the chair. Mr. Barrowman welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city, and Mrs. H. J. Sheppard extended the welcome of the municipal chapter of Lethbridge. Mrs. Manley of Wetaskiwin replied.

Reports were heard from the provincial treasurer, organizing secretary, schools secretary and Girl Guides' director. An address was given by Miss Marjorie Sherlock, I.O.D.E. Overseas Scholarship holder, who has just returned from Oxford.

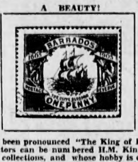
A BEAUTY!



The Barbados "Olive Blossom". Designed by Lady Carter. Issued Aug. 15, 1906. Commemorative of the annexation of the island. (Sea and clouds in blue; corners in green; balance of design in black.)

Philately, or stamp collecting, has been pronounced "The King of Hobbies and the Hobby of Kings," and rightly so, for among the royal collectors can be numbered H.M. King George V and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, both of whom own very fine collections, and whose hobby is closely shared by other members of the British Royal family. But although stamp collecting is the hobby of kings, it is also the hobby of thousands of their subjects, not to mention additional thousands living in republics or under other forms of government.

Interesting and Profitable

Believing that stamp collecting is an interesting hobby to hundreds in Alberta, The Bulletin is today inaugurating its Stamp Collectors' Club. If you are a stamp collector, or if you would become one, write today to Phil. A. Tely, director, Edmonton Bulletin Stamp Collectors' Club. Give your name, address and age, and you will receive a membership card and a present of free stamps. AND REMEMBER, you must enclose a stamped addressed envelope for the reply.

Every Saturday a pictured representation of some outstandng stamp will be given in this column, together with a short article of outstanding interest to collectors. ENROL NOW and take up a hobby that is not only interesting, but also highly profitable, under the guidance of an expert.

Conducted by Phil. A. Tely

Good evening fellow collectors! Ladies and gentlemen, girls and boys! This is station PHIL speaking. I am sure we are going to have some good times together this fall and winter over our album pages.

Now, every Saturday, I am going to have something to say of interest to you all. And right now, I say, be sure and cut the weekly article out and paste it in your Philatelic Scrap Book for reference. Any other clippings of stampic interest should go there too.

This week we are just getting acquainted. I will be glad to answer all questions regarding stamp collecting, and advise you where to buy or sell your stamps IF you send a stamped addressed letter envelope for reply. I must ignore letters when one does not comply with this request.

Our space is limited, so this week I will say a word about the hobby itself and how it came about. The world's first postage stamp was issued during the reign of Queen Victoria by Great Britain on the 6th May, 1840, just a little over 89 years ago. This was the "penny black," which I will picture next week. Sir Roland Hill, M.P., is usually credited with the idea, but I have it direct from a lady, at present resident in Canada, a granddaughter of Sir John Dimsdale, a country gentleman who resided in Roland Hill's constituency, that the idea was Sir John's, while Roland Hill, who was his personal friend, was able to forward the idea for him owing to his official position.

Send in Questions

There were many in Europe who made more or less haphazard collections of the earlier postage stamps, but it was not until the '60s that a certain French nobleman attempted to get together a complete collection of all the stamps issued to that date. A. M. Herpin, of Paris, is credited with first suggesting the word Philately—derived from the Greek philos "fond of" and atelia "exempt or free from tax." As stamps indicate a prepayment of postage (or tax) the words conjoined have the secondary meaning of a fondness for stamps.

Now get out your albums, if they are not already before you, and see if there is a question you would like to ask. Become a member of the Stamp Club, which The Edmonton Bulletin is making possible, and watch our membership grow.

Until next Saturday—Goodnight everybody! This is PHIL—signing off. Goodnight!

ELIGIBLE AT ONCE

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has decided that, whatever the framers of the British North America Act may have had in mind, the fact that women are now eligible to the House of Commons makes it necessary to interpret the act in a way to make them eligible to the Senate also.

The decision is not important in the sense of settling the question as to whether women are to be admitted to the upper house. Premier King stated some time ago that, should the verdict go the other way, legislation would be introduced in parliament for the explicit purpose of qualifying women for appointment to the senate.

The decision is important as making this special legislation unnecessary, and thus avoiding any delay which might have occurred in accomplishing the end by that method. The effect is that women are admitted, under the law as it stands, to have full political equality with men, and eligible for appointment forthwith.

A LIVE ORGANIZATION

The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce has closed an unusually active year, with a membership of 732, the largest in its history. The record of what has been accomplished is the sufficient proof of the energy and fidelity of the retiring executive, and of the continued usefulness of the organization to the city and district. Support has been given to a very wide range of community interests, and in a remarkable number of instances the objects have been already attained. Residents of the city generally who take the trouble to peruse this report will find ample cause to approve the vote of thanks by which the members recognized the services of the retiring officers.

The officers for the coming year are men representing important business enterprises of many kinds, and men who have earned the distinction by the contributions they have already made to the work of the "board". Under their direction there can be no doubt that the Chamber will play as active and successful a part in promoting the welfare of the city and district during the coming year as it has played in the past. A live "board of trade" is a peculiarly influential agent in protecting and advancing the interests of a community. The Edmonton Chamber is distinctively a live organization, and with increasing membership it will be kept even more intimately in touch with all the varied business interests of the city and its trading territory.

THE TREND OF THE TIMES

Commissioner Mitchell has reveiwed the progress of the city during the present year in a report which makes highly interesting and most gratifying reading. Census figures, building records, bank clearings, utility earnings, tax collections, all bear witness to the fact that Edmonton is growing in population, invested capital and business turnover. Corresponding progress has been made in civic improvement along many lines, and the outlook is bright for continued expansion and good times.

This official and authentic size-up of the situation deserves special attention in view of the approaching municipal elections. It provides a thoroughly-established basis of understanding as to the city's position and the trend of the times. It will be well worth while for the taxpayer to re-read the review while he is making up his mind what kind of a city council Edmonton will need in 1930 and casting about for suitable candidates for the mayoralty and aldermanic seats.

Commissioner Mitchell is not given to painting the future in too rosy colors. For a good many years he was engaged in the dreary task of keeping the civic bark afloat, under conditions which were anything but promising. An experience of that kind does not tend to generate a spirit of whooping optimism. A navigator who has had to work his pumps through a stormy voyage is naturally disposed to be mindful of the possibilities of trouble in the future.

This summary of the events of the year, and the indications they give of the course of things during the coming year, is on that account the more noteworthy. It is altogether a cheering presentation of the city's position. The substance of it is that Edmonton has come well through its difficult period and is now making good headway, with every promise of continued progress. Next year's council should be composed of men who have that viewpoint and who will be able to turn the favoring conditions to the best account.

At the Close

By EDGAR A. GUEST

He had riches, place and power,
  Yet there came that fatal hour
Which to all men shall arrive
  And to miss none can contrive.

Outside busy men were doing
  Dreary tasks and goals pursuing,
They were seeking all he'd sought
  As upon his life he thought.

Clear of brain and eye he pondered
  On the paths o'er which he'd wandered
Seeking to recall the things
  Unto which man's memory clings.

Strange, thought he, at my December
  Victories I scarce remember.
Strange, now that the winds blow cold
  I am little warmed by gold.

Curious these thoughts that fill me.
  Power and place no longer thrill me.
Days of friendship's joys are all
  At life's closing I recall.

An Executive

By GLENN FRANK

Yesterday I attempted a digest of the result of Donald A. Laird's study of the traits that are and the traits that are not essential to strong executive leadership.

Glenn Frank

Yesterday I listed nineteen things that Mr. Laird's research suggests as not prerequisites for leadership.

Today I list some of the things this research suggests as vital to great executive leadership. Here are some of the things which, in the light of Mr. Laird's study we may say of the strong executive leader:

He knows how wisely to delegate responsibility.

He knows how to make his workers realize the importance of their work.

He likes to make decisions.

He knows how to keep a group working for a common goal.

He can size an individual's capacity for work with fair accuracy.

He has a voice that suggests confidence regardless of its pitch or modulation.

These six things are the most vital, but to them we may add the following:

He looks for new and improved methons.

He reads widely about his work.

He saves duplicate effort.

He expresses opinions without apologizing for them.

He accepts criticism without getting angry.

He keeps his spirit up when things are not going well.

He knows how to arouse competition among his workers.

He mixes easily socially.

He has good judgment in price values.

He knows how to praise work without flattery.

He knows how to criticize constructively without antagonizing the man he criticizes.

He makes an effort to have the reasons for his orders understood by the men to whom they are given.

He keeps a firm hold on a difficult situation without becoming unreasonable.

He can concentrate under difficult conditions.

He assumes responsibility for his own blunders.

He uses facts rather than opinions in reaching decisions.

He examines his own decisions critically before accepting them as final.

He makes decisions quickly, but does not go off half-cocked.

And a little further down the scale of importance, we may add the following:

He is consistent in dealing with people.

He keeps careful watch of his competitors.

He keeps in touch with job practices elsewhere.

He has a high intrinsic sense of right and wrong, but is not preachy.

He enjoys a good joke.

He enjoys the possession of authority.

He looks people square in the eye.

Here is a rather challenging yardstick by which to measure ourselves!

CANADA'S MUSKRAT RESOURCES

Canada, owing to climatic and other favourable conditions, is particularly adapted for the production of high quality muskrats, and possesses as well thousands of acres of marsh and other more or less unproductive areas on which they may be propagated. The development of these areas for the propagation of muskrat would no doubt provide a whole or part time occupation for many persons, and materially increase the production and value of Canada's muskrat resources.

A booklet on the muskrat will be sent free on request to the Natural Resources Intelligence Service, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Diet Specialist and Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions on Health and Diet Answered by Dr. McCoy, when addressed in care of The Edmonton Bulleain

THE VALUE OF STRONG ABDOMINAL MUSCLES

There are six hundred and eighty-two little braces distributed over the body. These are called muscles, and are composed of the most remarkable, active substance in the world which is known by the name of muscle fibre. Some of these muscles are more important than others to bodily health.

Frank McCoy

Practically all of the vital organs are composed of muscular tissue. Next in importance to the muscles of these organs are the muscles of the spine and the muscles of the abdomen. If everyone would keep these spinal muscles strong, there would be little need for the osteopath or chiropractor. Spinal troubles and pinched nerves in this section come mostly because the spinal muscles are too weak and the vertebrae are not held in their normal positions.

Since man has learned to walk upright his chest has caved in more and more and his abdomen has protruded in exact ratio. The narrow, muscular waist of primitive man has changed to the saggy, protruding abdomen of modern man. The abdominal organs have prolapsed to the very basin of the pelvis, and almost all of these organs now lie well below the navel when at least half of them should be above this point.

Whether or not man descended from a monkey, the grammar grade schoolboy who studies philosophy can easily understand that if men did at the present time walk on all fours there would be ample room for all of the abdominal organs to hang in comfortable position without interfering one with the other. If we insist on walking on two feet, we should at least learn how to develop our abdominal muscles so as to hold the stomach and intestines in a better position so that they can do their work more efficiently.

Sluggish bowel elimination is perhaps the greatest common cause of disease. There is no cause of constipation greater than that from prolapsed and kinked intestines. Those who have tried to cure constipation with careful dieting should remember that constipation is just as often caused by a faulty position of the intestines. If this is the csause of constipation, there is no cure except through training the abdominal muscles, raising the organs to their normal positions, and thus ironing out the kinks which have existed.

In many cases adhesions have formed around these kinked intestines, and exercises alone will not be sufficient to correct the trouble. In that case, deep manupulations are required. This is a form of bloodless surgery, and is often indispensable in the permanent cure of faulty bowel elimination.

The exercises for strengthening the abdominal muscles should be mostly taken while lying on the back. I have a special chart of these exercises which I have repared for you with illustrations showing the exercises. I will be glad to send this to you if you will simply send me a large self-addressed envelope.

Question: E. E. asks: "Will you tell me through your column what can be done to check perspiration from the armpits?"

Answer: The best way to stop excessive sweating under the arms is to induce a good sweat all over the body three or four times a week. You can best do this by putting on heavy clothing and taking a long walk. If all the pores of the skin are active you will not be troubled with an abnormal amount of perspiration under the arms.

Question: G. H. H. writes: "I am fourteen years of age and have been troubled with catarrh for over a year. It never leaves me and is worse in winter than in summer, especially in the morning upon arising."

Answer: Change your diet so as to exclude all starches, sugars, and fats. Follow the weekly menus published in this column, substituting some kind of fruit wherever I advise a starchy meal.

Question: B. T. asks: "What is locomotor ataxia, and what is the cause and cure—if there is a cure?"

Answer: Locomotor ataxia is caused by some interference with the nerve supply going to the legs. This occurs principally in the lumbar region of the spine. A cure is possible in the early stages, and in today's mail, I read a letter from a correspondent who has been entirely cured through following the advice received through this Health Service. This patient reports that before starting the treatment she could not walk at all and that four leading physicians in her home town had declared her case hopeless. Her cure was effected through following proper dietetic and hygienic rules, and no other treatment than this was advised. Special instructions will be sent to anyone upon request.

The sport-page idea was proved successful. Why not wreck, scandal, catastrophe and murder pages to save the reader's time or enable him to dodge?

For Those Whose Birthday Is Oct. 20.

If you were born on Oct. 20, you are a born diplomat, but you must learn the art of being a good mixer, for beneficial contacts are essential for your success. Your best efforts would be expended in any work dealing with the drama, politics, any branch of literature, navigation, or development work, or as insurance agent. The most favorable periods for attempting anything of an important nature where beneficial results are required are the last months of 1929, the spring of 1930, and the summer of 1932.

Edgar Selwyn, Born October 20, 1875

An example of a person born on October 20 is Edgar Selwyn, the theatrical producer, whose horoscope indicates a philosophical, artistic mentality of a high order. He possesses an agility of mind rendering him capable of overcoming any vicissitudes which he may encounter. Much personal pride and pomp is also denoted. Other persons born on this day were James R. Hinckle, governor of New Mexico; Rear Admiral William Fullman, United States navy; Bouck White, celebrated author of "The Immorality of Being Rich," "Letters From Prison," "The Free City."

MONDAY

Planetary Influences on Monday for ALL.

The day is one of uncertainty for financial dealings, particularly where the element of risk is large. Many unexpected difficulties are likely to be met in connection with large enterprise; therefore, examine carefully into any transactions. Investment or the furthering of long-standing arrangements are favored. Be judicious in dealing with superiors and take all promises not too seriously.

For Those Whose Birthday Is Oct. 21

If you were born on Oct. 21, you require caution in all undertakings and you must avoid carelessness. Associations and transactions with people are likely to bring you difficulties unless you thoroughly analyze the motives. Your best efforts would be expended in any work dealing with the stage, inventions or electrical engineering, or as sign writer, agricultural worker, diplomat or historian.

Keeping Mentally Fit

By Joseph Jastrow, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., LL.D.

Professor of Psychology, University of Wisconsin, 1888 to 1917; now professor emeritus; lecturer in the New School for Social Research, New York City; past president of the American Phychological Association

CAN YOU OUTWIT YOUR NERVES?

As a dweller in Neutrostica off and on for fourteen years, I have been getting all the help I can from books as well as talks, and while I like the book, "Outwitting Your Nerves" as a title, I question it as a possibility. I have been trying to do it to mine for lo! these many years, and for every time I have scored, they have scored twice at least. If I had as little the matter with me as some of the cases described, I shouldn't have much to outwit. But can it be done?

C. C. (Chronic Case)

Reply

The battle with nerves is a strategy no doubt, and diplomacy counts; but whether you can gain a victory by strategy alone without a hard-pitched battle, I very much doubt. It's quite true that if you are all but ready to storm the defenses and take possession, that last step may be a sort of ruse that quickens the capture and runs up the flag. But the flag didn't win the battle.

Joseph Jastrow

A friend of mine who uses robust language, to whom I spoke about the diplomacy of "Outwitting Your Nerves" and so keeping yourself well despite your tendencies the other way, said of the real policy if "outgutting" your nerves; it isn't a question of wits, but of courage, and that's the reason why he does not believe in psychoanalysis, which was what he was talking about when he made the remark. His ailment was one of the many that came on after war experiences, and to all purposes he was well, has indeed never been incapacitated, but has a set of troublesome handicaps, which bother him because his ideal is that of perfect health.

He says that he has spent more useless thought in assuring himself of the groundlessness of his fears than are necessary to run his business and the fact that the analyst found that he had a scare in childhood didn't help a bit. He can outwit that scare by a stiff dose of alcohol, but he doesn't like to do that too often and when the stock market goes up his scares go down. He is now resigned to the fact that he is going to carry that peculiar feeling of his for life; he is going to take it when it comes and carry on as though it had no significance. He cannot outwit it.

A better phrase would be: "Dismissing Your Nerves," the real difficulty with those of neurotic tendency is having their nerves on their minds in any sense, and any one who will develop a technique for that will be a savior of mankind. There's nothing easier to say than: Forget it, and nothing harder to do. Freud sums it all up by saying that hystericals suffer from their memories; they can't forget. When they outwit their conscious memories the subconscious registers and keeps the sore alive.

That's how he would explain the case of fear-shock of the war just cited. To Freud neurosis is a case of imperfect forgetting. We state it popularly by saying that we just can't get over it. The insult rankles; the disappointment just keeps on troubling. You are not reconciled to your fate; so your adjustment suffers to your job or whatever you have in hand; you are distressed, distracted or unhappy because you can't forget.

What you have to outwit is your memories and when those memories are saturated with emotion, the drowning of care is not the simple matter of outwitting that the books make out. It's a long struggle and a slow, hard fight; it's a matter of ups and downs at best.

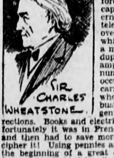
So in the end what all the writers and all the readers of these many books on nerve control are aiming at is "getting the better of your nerves," not necessarily by your wits, for the intellectual part of the process is a small part of it, but by the combined exercise of your courage, your determination, your "guts," and the regulation of your life by a scheme which shall not be self-centered nor health-centered.

But—and it is so large a but that it deserves capital letters—that's a very different problem when you have inherited a set of nerves that kick up the very devil on the least provocation or one that takes an emotional cyclone to disturb. All programs of nerve control not adjusted to the great range of individual differences are futile. Strengthening our powers of resistance is a far better policy than outwitting your nerves.

On This Date—

OCTOBER 19th.

Sir Charles Wheatstone died October 19, 1875. The biographers of Sir Charles Wheatstone would have us to understand that there were no tremendous adventures in his life. In a measure this is true. He was shy, sensitive, led a retiring life, and was certainly not the type of man to get mixed up in what the world calls adventure. But in another sense his life was full of it. He plunged with the zest of a Livingstone into tangled and little known forests of science and emerged with some astounding captures. Thus he was the practical founder of modern telegraphy. He was the creator of the automatic telegraph. His insight into mechanism and his power over it was extraordinary. A cryptographic machine, which changed the cypher automatically and printed a message, entirely unintelligible until translated by a duplicate instrument, was one of the most perfect examples of this power. His inventions were almost innumerable. Many of his ideas that he had been too occupied to complete were appropriated by others and carried into effect. He was about 14 years of age when he joined his uncle in the Strand to learn the business of the music trade. Like many other boys of genius, however, his mind was travelling in other directions. Books and electricity fascinated him. One book was on Volta. Unfortunately it was in French. Wheatstone had saved his pennies to buy it, and then had to save more to buy a French dictionary before he could decipher it! Using pennies as copper plates he made himself a battery. It was the beginning of a great career. At 19 he was amusing London with his famous "enchanted lyre," a violin type of instrument which was thrown into vibrations when connected with a musical box by a long light rod. This little instrument quite upset a distinguished musician on one occasion. The visitor heard the music proceeding from the violin without any sign of human agency. It was too much for him. He rushed out of the house and never went back again!



Famous Lady Wisecrackers

By J. P. GLASS

British Suffered From Sharp Tongues of American Women During Revolution

"Governor Rutledge's home, as well as his friends, should wear mourning for him," she said.

It is pleasant to read about the ladies of Charleston, S.C., during the difficult days of the revolution, when their city was in the possession of the British under Lord Rawdon.

They were the wittiest of the witty, and the jests they made at the expense of the invaders wounded as deeply as bullets.

The society of the Britishers was something they could not avoid, but they took pains to exact a toll for their company.

Mrs. Anna Elliott was walking one day in a garden with an English officer noted for his relentless persecution of those opposed to his political views.

"What flower is this, Madam?" he inquired, pointing to a camomile.

"The rebel flower," she replied.

"And why is it called that?"

"Because it flourishes most when trampled upon."

A British officer ordered Mrs. Sabina Elliot's poultry houses to be plundered. Later she discovered an old muscovy drake which had escaped the plunderers wandering about the premises.

She had the bird caught and sent it posthaste to the officer by a servant on horseback who also bore this message:

"My compliments. In your hurry you must have overlooked thi fowl."

Mrs. Robert Brewton—a native of Ireland and having real Irish wit—angered her country's enemies on more than one occasion by her verbal shifts.

When she came into Charleston from the country after General Greene, the American commander, had won several successes, an English officer asked her about the condition of things in the outlying sections.

"Ah, sir," she replied, "all nature smiles for everything is Greene!"

This bon mot procured her an immediate order to quit the city.

The American ladies customarily wore deep mourning in token of their grief over British occupation. One day when Mrs. Browton was walking in Broad st. an enemy officer joined her just as she was passing the house of Governor Rutledge who had been compelled to leave the city. She at once paused to tie a piece of crepe torn from her dress to the front railing of the house.

"Governor Rutledge's home, as well as his friends, should wear mourning for him," she said.

This was a little too much. She was arrested and sent to Philadelphia.

It was this lady's daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Motte, who performed an act celebrated in revolutionary history. To dislodge the English from Fort Motte it was necessary for the Americans under Generals Marion and Lee to burn down her beautiful mansion by shooting flaming arrows upon it. When they told her how sadly they regretted to do this, she replied:

"Believe me, I am glad of this opportunity to serve my country. I will view the flames with delight."

The Bulletin's Daily Sh ort Story From Real Life.

BY B. VLADIMIR BERMAN

Dumpy Green, king of the Chicago racketeers, emitted a sigh of relief as he made his way through the crowded New York street. At last, after two days on the anxious seat, forty-eight hours full of dread, and one of which might have been his last on earth, Dumpy fealt reasonably safe again.

Nobody knew him here on the east side, a thousand miles distant from his own mob and their foes who were after his hide. It was twenty years since he had been here last. Twenty years since his dad's clothing business failed and the old man took the family west.

Yes, in this teeming metropolis of 6,000,000 strangers, was his best chance of escape. The thing to do was to hide here until the Red Ritter affair blew over, and the guys who were after his neck calmed down. When the tension slackened, he could venture back.

It couldn't be so hard then to convince the Ritter gang that they were 'way off in figuring he had a finger in bumping off their chief. But so long as they had that crazy notion and kept their machine guns planted outside that house in Harrison street it was best for him to get out of the way.

Dumpy felt sure none of the Ritter crew saw him slip off in the closed sedan that took him to Fort Wayn. They were watching all approaches to the house they knew of ,but they did-not know that underground passage that lead to the waterfront. None of the watchers could have seen him or the waiting car that raced the king of racketeers to the Indiana town. There he shaved his mustache, swiftly changing his appearance, while waiting for the New York sleeper. But untilhe reached Manhattan he felt uncertain as to the outcome of his coup.

But here he was, safe and sound. This was the last place his foes would look for him. Right now, probably they were getting ready to close in on that house in Harrison street. They hadn't figured on his nerve, the ingenuity of such a getaway as he had managed. Down through the cellar and away . . . .

New York was safe. No one knew him here, as least not as Dumpy Green, king of Chicago racketeers. He could sit back and enjoy his visit to the city of his birth. Get a pair of horn-rimmed specs and use his own name. Nobody would connect Samuel J. Miller with the motorious Windy City racketeer.

The Old Place Had Changed Completely

Dumpy rented a little room on East 9th street, not far from where he lived twenty years back. But the street was barely recognizable.

The old place had changed completely. None of the faces Dumpy passed on the street were familiar. He hadn't expected to find the boys he grew up with still playing marbles on the corner, but the names on the store windows were changed, too.

The old crowd moved far away, just as his own family did. Probably lots of them in the Bronx, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh — maybe some were in Chicago, though he never met them—or points further west.

Dumpy's homecoming was not the way theyy showed it in the movies. Nor as he might have wished it. Sometimes in sentimental moments he dreamed of coming back and looking up the kids he went to school with Some had risen high in trades, professions, and business.The alderman of the district was Dumpy's old "miggle" partner. They could trim anybody on the block when they were paired at marbles.

Clutching his gat in his hip pocket, Dumpy turned menacingly to the stranger. "Say——" he began.

Wonder if he'd know Dumpy now? would he be proud of his friendship with the king of the Chicago racketeers? O, well, that guy had nothing to be stuck up about. What if he was an alderman, and Dumpy a rum racketeer. Both were working the public for an easy living, but there was more danger in Dumpy's line Even now somebody might be trailing him with a rod . . .

Who was that fat guy coming down the street? Was he following Dumpy? Why, blast his hide, he was coming right after Dumpy!

"I'll hop up these 'L' stairs and see what the bird does them. Just my nerves I guess. I'll get off at the next station if it's all right."

Dumpy skipped up the stairs of the downtown station of the Second ave. L and through the turnstile, just in time to board a train for South Ferry. The portly stranger in a gray fedora, who seemed to be following the racketeer, came puffing right behind.

Dumpy felt the protuberance in his hip pocket. The old cannister was there. If this guy wanted trouble, all right But who the devil was he? He didn't look like anyone Dumpy knew His clothes seemed Chicagoish, but they might have been purchased anywhere else in the United States, in Pittsburgh, in Los Angeles— all suits were the same nowadays.

The man who had followed him down the street, took a seat in the same car, directly in front of Dumpy, and fixed his grey stare on the racketeer.

Dumpy took a newspaper out of his pocket and pretending to read surveyed the face of the stranger intently over the edge of the sheet. Yes. He had seen the man somewhere . . . more than once. But who could he be.

Had this bird been tipped off by one of Dumpy's disloyal henchmen? Had he trailed him from Chicago? No, the only ones in on Dumpy's getaway were Myers and O'Brien. They wouldn't blab. He could depend upon those two.

Was this guy the New York agent of the Ritter crew? Had they gotten wise to his movements in spite of everything? . . . Maybe he was a cop! No, he didn't look like a cop. Features too pallid. Cops, even those on desk duty, didn't have that indoor look. This guy, if he was a gangster, was an undercover man. Pipe his soft pudgy hands . . .Well, if he wanted to start something, let him. Hardly likely to try anything on the train, though. But if he got off when Dumpy did, and made one false move, the best thing was to let him have it right in the mid-riff.

Well, a man had to protect himself. But Dumpy sure hated to have any trouble on his trip to New York. No percentage croaking a guy here. And the chances of getting off weren't so good. Still, if this worm was after him.

'Play safe" an inner voice cautioned Dumpy rose, and went from the car that was in the middle of the train, to the car ahead. "See if that guy follows me." No, the stranger didn't follow him to the car ahead, but his eyes were trailing closely, the racketeer sensed.

"Well, looks can't kill. If he keeps away from me now, I'll slip over to Newark. This burg ain't so safe after all. No use taking any more chances."

"All out—South Ferry!" cried the guard as the traine reached the end of its route. "Change for Sixth and Ninth avenue lines."

Dumpy left the train quickly, but paused at the end of the station. He was undecided what direction to take Go down and get a ferry to Staten Island, trolley to Port Richmond where he could board another boat for Elilabethport; then trolley to Newark? Standing at the head of the stairs, trying to make up his mind, he saw the stranger coming directly towards him.

This Fat Guy Had Him Guessing

Dumpy was no coward. He could stand up and exchange machine gunfire with the best of them. He was cool as a cucumber in the hottest gunplay. But this fat guy following him around had him guessing. He seemed plainly after Dumpy—and yet how could he be?

Dumpy was sure his getaway from Chicago was clean. And with his moustache gone, even his closest friends would hardly know him. So how could this guy spot him? Well he'd get some specs as soon as he could. Make the disguise complete. What good was a disguise that didn't disguise? But with "cheaters" and a few books under his arm, he'd look like one of those what-you-call-em-intelligentzias. He knew some of the gab too. Neitzsche . . . Freud . . . Dostosvski. Knock around with the radical bunch, chuck in a highfalutin name here and there. No one would look for him in a crowd like that.

The stranger was close now, his hand concealed in his coat pocket. "All aboard!" yelled the guard of a Sixth avenue train about to move out.

Dumpy dashed through the half-closed door the stranger after him. He bumped Dumpy, almost touching the racketeer's rod in his hip pocket. Dumpy gave a start, turned about. The man was smiling—leering, it seemed A sly, know-it-all grin that seemed to say: "You just wait—" In a cold sweat Dumpy dropped into a seat, his eyes glued on the stranger who took a place right in front of him.

"Where's' this line go?" Dumpy asked the guard who sat down alongside, when the train started.

"Polo Grounds—155th st."

Oh, yes, the ball park. Here was an idea! If he could shake this guy in front—if he got off before Dumpy—all would be well, and Dumpy could go in and see the game. Giants playing Boston. No one from Chicago would be apt to see him in the stand. Anyhow none of his crowd or their foes—even if they could recognize him. But he'd' play safe—try to land a pair of glasses somewhere in the neighborhood of the grounds.

The train rolled on, drearily, stopping at each station. At 125th street the man in the grey hat tossed the paper behind him, and once more fixed his eyes intently on the Chicago racketeer.

"Why the devil doesn't he say something, blast him?" Dumpy wondered He patted the protuberance on his hip. Yep, it was there, ready for service, the old faithful.

Maybe, after all, the guy was a dick . . . No, not a chance. Certainly not a Chicago dick. In the first place the Chicago cops didn't even link Dumpy and his mob with the Ritter shooting. Anyhow they didn't care. All they wanted was the actual killer, the guy who fired the shot. Racket politics, intrigues, vendettas didn't concern the bulls. Give them the guy who did the rough stuff—the guy who disturbed the peace and they were satisfied. They weren't interested in avenging a dead gangster.

Well, Dumpy didn't fire the shot that finished off Ritter and no Chicago dick could have a warrant to grab him for that . . . Besides if this guy had one, why didn't he use it? . . . No, he was no bull. Well, why was he following him? How long would this continue—so long as Dumpy stayed in New York? "Cripes! We're gonna have a show-down tootsweet! I'll be hanged if I let this sap trail me into the ball park and spoil my enjoyment of the game."

But the man across the aisle lingered. At 155th street he got up simultaneously with the racketeer. Fixing his penetrating gaze on Dumpy he walked out the car directly alongside him.

Dumpy was all tense now. He kept his hand close to his rod. But the stranger made no outwardly hostile move—just strolled along with Dumpy up the walk that led to the grandstand ticket office.

He Clutches His Gat And Turns to Meet Him

Dumpy's nerves snapped. This was indeed too much. "I'll be damned if I stand for any more of this! Clutching his gat in his hip pocket, Dumpy turned menacingly to the stranger. "Say—" he began.

Before Dumpy could utter another word, the stranger broke into a smile and put forward a chubby hand Dumpy warily drew back, keeping his hand on his gun in his pocket all the time. If this man made the slightest hostile move—but he kept smiling, in a disarming way.

"I thought it was you all the time," the stranger said. "But I wasn't sure until you spoke. All the way I asked myself, 'Can that be Sam?' It must be twenty years, but you've hardly changed. Don't you recognize me?"

"I was with you in 6 B in 7th street school and we belonged to the same baseball team in Tompkins Square park. You do remember me—Jakey Bernstein?"

"Jakey Bernstein! I'll be blowed! You've grown so much—you're so fat! You look just like—an alderman!"

"Why not? That's what I am. Alderman from our old district. Guess I'm about the only one of the old-timers left down here."

"Of course! I should have known."

"What are you doing Sam?" the alderman went on, eager for information. "You moved off out west somewhere and vanished. Pittsburg wasn't it? I didn't hear from you once all these years. How about coming along with me to the ball game—I have a couple of passes?"

"I'd like to," said Dumpy earnestly, but caution caused him to add, "if I can stop off and get myself a pair of sunglasses. I can't sit up front in the stand without them. The sun hurts my eyes."

"Don't bother. I'll lend you an extra pair of mine."

Fortunately for the political future of Alderman Berstein, none of his foes suspected the scholarly looking gentleman with whom he watched the Giants and Braves battle to an extra-inning tie was the King of Chicago racketeers for whose appearance half a dozen machine guns waited in front of a Harrison street house at that very moment.

But one observer from the Alderman's district got in this dig: "Pipe the highbrow with Bernstein! Wonder if he's swinging to the Reform crowd!"

Fireproof Walls and Ceilings at No Extra Cost

For Basements

MOST house fires start in the furnace room. It is there that fire usually gets a start and spreads unless stopped by fireproof walls and ceilings.

This hazard can be effectively eliminated by lining the basement walls and ceilings with Gyproc.

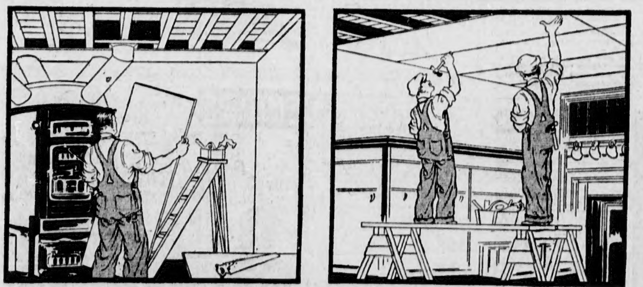
Why not remove this dangerous risk? And at the same time why not partition off the entire basement into extra rooms—a fruit closet, furnace room, workshop or children's playroom?

Doing so will make a clean, attractive basement and keep dust from going through the floors—the walls and ceilings will take any decoration, Alabastine, paint or wallpaper. The basement can be made as clean and attractive as any other floor in the house.

For Stores and Factories

HUNDREDS of modern stores and factories are reducing the fire hazard and adding protection to their stock by erecting ceilings and walls of fireproof Gyproc Wallboard. They are doing this not only because Gyproc is the best fire-proof Gypsum Wall Board on the market, but because it actually costs less than many materials that have no fire-resisting qualities whatever.

Gyproc cannot warp, shrink or buckle and takes any decoration. A perfectly smooth, flat surface is assured by filling the joints with Gyproc Joint Filler. No other wallboard offers such ease of application, labor saving and economy. Gyproc is ⅜ inch thick, 6 feet to 10 feet long and 48 inches wide.



See any of the Gyproc dealers listed below.

AL JOLSON IN STELLAR ROLE CAPITOL FILM

"Say it With Songs" to Have Week's Run Here —Starts Monday

The picture Edmonton has been awaiting, "Say It With Songs," with Al. Jolson in the stellar role, supported by wee Davey Lee who scored so heavily in "The Singing Fool," has been booked by Manager Walter Wilson for a week's showing at the Capitol starting next Monday. The Capitol theatre was not large enough to hold all those who desired to see the previous Jolson picture, and it is expected that new attendance records will be set by "Say it With Songs." When possible, Manager Wilson hopes that patrons will attend the matinees and the early evening performances.

"Say It With Songs," will introduce another bevy of song successes to Edmontonians for Al Jolson has no less than seven melody hits, all written especially for his use. The star will sing, "Why Can't You," "Little Pal," said to an even greater success than "Sonny Boy," "Used to You," "Seventh Heaven," "Back In Your Own Back Yard," "I'm Ka-razy for You," and "Just One Sweet Kiss." Patrons will be humming, singing and whistling these song hits when the new Jolson picture gets under way.

The story concerns Joe Lane, a happy-go-lucky and improvident but gifted song plugger, who just on the verge of success as a recording and broadcasting artist, fights and accidentally kills his employer when he learns of the latter's unwelcome attentions to his wife. For this Joe goes to prison, leaving his wife to shift for herself and their child.

Believing that she has never been happy with him and realizing how his present punishment will punish her ever after, Joe forces her to divorce him and she later considers marriage with a former admirer, now famous surgeon. The child is put to a school and being unhappy there, follows his father, who has come to visit him, and is injured by truck. Only a specialist can help the child and Joe takes him to his former wife's suitor for help. All ends happily in a blaze of Jolsonesque melody, and everybody leaves the theatre in a glow of satisfaction.

"WEE GEORGIE" WOOD, popular London comedian, who will appear in the title role of "Humpty Dumpty," the spectacular English pantomine which comes to the Empire for three days commencing Monday, October 28.

"HARD TO GET" STARTS TODAY AT EMPRESS

Dorothy Mackaill Has Feature Role in Comedy Film

"The higher they fly the harder they fall."

This old adage is the basis for the plot of "Hard to Get," the all-talking comedy which comes to the Empress theatre today with the popular Dorothy Mackaill starred.

Miss Mackaill plays a manikin in the story, and is very particular about her boy friends. Then an Irish lad named Charles Delaney comes along and the fun begins.

"Hard to Get" was directed by that master of comedy, William Beaudine, and has an all-comedy cast including Louise Fazenda, Jack Oakie, James Finlayson and Edmund Burns.

The fun is said to be fast and furious throughout, and the picture was designed for laughing purposes only.

Miss Mackaill, who has been advancing rapidly as a comedienne of the screen, is starred alone for the first time in "Hard to Get," which will also be shown at the Empress on Monday and Tuesday.

RACKETEERS, POLITICIANS FOR RIALTO

Drama of New York Life Shown in Feature "Side Street"

A human sacrifice made that honor may not die; a powerful, rousing, all-talking drama of brother; all this and more is "Side Street" the big RKO production which opens a three day engagement at the Rialto theatre on Saturday.

In bringing this tremendous production to his patrons, Manager William J. Long feels that he is giving them sommething quite out of the ordinary.

"Side Street" is a drama of New York family life, with a background of politics, policemen, politicians and racketeers.

As usual Mr. Long has given particular attention to his shorts. The Collegians will appear in another of their snappy, peppy, song and dialogue sequence pictures and a Columbia Gem one reel short, entitled "Listen Lady" promise to be unusually good, while the Rialto local news reel, by arrangement with Long's Limited, will have many subjects of local happening.

The visit to New York of Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain will be shown on the Metrotone news reel.

GREAT STOCK PRESENTATION BY GORDINIERS

Another Comedy Will be Presented All of Next Week

Following up their success with the comedy offering, "This Thing Called Love," which will be presented for the last times this afternoon and evening at the Pantages, the Gordinier Players will be seen all next week in another comedy, "Little Miss Bluebeard," from the pen of Avery Hopwood, whose plays have always been very popular with Edmonton audiences. When presented in New York, the comedy drama served as a successful vehicle for Miss Irene Bordoni, and it has only recently become available for stock company purposes.

The story of "Little Miss Bluebeard" concerns the experiences of one Collette, a young Parisienne, who, through no fault of her own, is apparently twice married; that is, she seems to be married to two men, one of the two having given his friend's name at the ceremony. It is, to say the least, an embarrassing situation. When Collette makes her first entrance at the bachelor apartment and finds her two "husbands" awaiting her, lively doings ensue. The entanglement becomes even more complicated for feminine admirers of her one husband appear on the scene and throw hysteries as the development dawns upon them.

Special Matinee Of Jolson Film Capitol Theatre

Arrangements are being made for a special children's morning matinee next Saturday for hundreds of tiny tots will want to see their little pal Davey Lee with Al Jolson in their latest production, "Say It With Songs". Doors will open at 9:45 and the show will start promptly at 10:15 at the very low price of admission. Manager Wilson will be giving some nice gifts to many lucky children.

FINE COMEDY COMING HERE OCTOBER 28

"Humpty-Dumpty" Will be at Empire Theatre for Three Days

"Humpty-Dumpty," which will be seen at the New Empire on October 28, 29 and 30, is one of the best balanced and most spectacular musical extravaganzas produced in England for years. It was built up—story, company, music, dances—at the Theatre Royal under the direct control of Philip Rodway, the great producer, and has everywhere been received with the greatest enthusiasm. The cast has been well and wisely chosen, and, with its well-knit story to maintain interest, "Humpty-Dumpty" spins along at a merry rate, with never a dull moment, and not a few wherein the seating equipment of a theatre is severely strained under palpitating masses of humanity. At times members of the audience are fairly rolling in their seats as the quips and jests of the bright principals reach them.

MYSTERY FILM FOR MONARCH

"The Drake Case" to be Shown for Three Days, Starting Monday

Gladys Brockwell, one of the screen's greatest emotional actresses; Forrest Stanley, legitimate stage and film star, and Robert Frazer, have the leading roles in "The Drake Case," sensational Universal all talking murder trial courtroom picture, which opens Monday at the Monarch theatre. Miss Brockwell is the woman accused of murder; Stanley is the prosecuting district attorney, and Frazer is the defense lawyer.

Supporting Miss Brockwell, Stanley and Frazer are other notable players including James Crane, Dorris Lloyd, Bill Thorne, Eddie Hearn, Tommy Dugan, Byron Douglas, Francis Ford, Henry Barrows, Amber Norman and Barbara Leonard.

The story of "The Drake Case" concerns a woman accused of murder who refuses to say a word in her own defense although she flatly denies having committed the crime. This attitude throws a burden upon her lawyer and his method of extricating her and himself from a seemingly impossible position is the surprise and thrill of the picture.

New York's First Opera House Not Supported

Rossini Opera Was First to be Produced in Gotham's Home of Music in 1833—Promoter Friend of Mozart's

New York's first opera house had its gala opening ninet-six years ago this month. There were stage coaches running from Bowling Green to Blecker st. in 1833, when the Italian Opera house opened its doors and its first season on November 18 with Rossini's "La Gazza Ladra," then produced for the first time in America.

New York had heard Italian and French opera now and then in theatres and concert halls, before Da Ponte and Lynch built the Italian Opera house, but this was the first local building to be devoted exclusively to opera. With its appearance the hope was expressed that "the light and frivolous tinklings which had so long pervaded drawing rooms might give place to a better state of things," and hailed the efforts of "those children of harmony, the Italians, in our city," who were to "change rude noises to refined and bewitching sounds."

The leading spirit in this laudable effort was Lorenzo Da Ponte, long a patron of music in New York, the author of "Don Giovanni" and a friend of Mozart. At the time, he was a bookseller with a Broadway shop. With him was associated Dominick Lynch, and interested in the project were a number of weathy New Yorkers, among them Philip Hone.

Downtown Opera House

The new Italian Opera house was a big, dazzling structure, at the southwest corner of Church and Leonard sts., with a colonnaded front and an imposing approach. It had cost more than $100,000, a fortune in 1833. The arrangement of the auditorium was the year's sensation. "The whole interior was pronounced magnificent, and the scenery and curtains were beautiful beyond all precedent," said one report. There were emblematic medallions and brilliantly decorated panels, paintings of the Muses on the ceiling, damask upholstery on the sofas and pit seats, and expensive carpets on every floor.

The first opera was succeeded by another of Rossini's—"La Donna del Lago,' based on Scott's "Lady of the Lake." One wonders what the ample if tuneful Clementina Fanti did to the illusion of Scott's lissom Ellen.

But unhappily for the success of the Italian Opera house, the proprietors, initiating the diamond horseshoe, had reserved for their own use the entire second row of boxes, lavishly decorated, and New York was not yet ready for this undemocratic display. Philip Hone, once mayor of New York and one of the wealthy men of the city, reveals the citizens' pique in his diary. He was a paying boxholder himself. The Italian opera "does not succeed," he wrote in 1835, "and the proprietors are about selling their opera house . . . There are two reasons for this, both of which savour of the John Bullism which we have inherited from our forefathers."

The City's Disapproval

The first reason, according to Hone, was that New York wanted to understand the words—the beginning of the still-prevailing demand for opera in English. "The other is the private boxes so elegantly fitted up, which occupy the whole of the second tier. They cost $6,000 each, to be sure, and the use of them is all that the proprietors get for their money; but it forms a sort of aristocratical distinction. Many people do not choose to occupy seats (more pleasant and commodious than they can find in any other theatre) while others recline upon satin cushions, and rest their elbows upon armchairs, albeit they are bought with their own money. These causes have prevented the success of the Italian opera, and I do not wonder at it. I like this spirit of independence which refuses its countenance to anything exclusive. 'Let the proprietor,' says the sovereigns, 'have their private boxes and satin cushions. They have paid for them and are entitled to enjoy them. We will not furnish the means of supporting the establishment, but go to the Park theatre, where it is first come first served'."

The hardy demos was too much for those who desired the subduing of rude noises to refined and bewitching sounds. Italian opera went completely down in New York. The citizens went to Niblo's Garden, where they could all sit on the same kind of seats and where they could make out the words. Da Ponte died in 1838, and the elegant opera house, then occupied by J. W. Wallack's National theatre, burned to the ground a year later. Church st. seems to have been literally named, for that conflagration set fire to the African Methodist church on the opposite side of Leonard st.; the French church, Du Saint Esprit, a block away on Franklin st., and the incomplete Dutch church on the same street, as well as many dwellings.

ARRANGEMENTS CONSUMMATED FOR CONCERT

Invitation Recital Will Usher in Symphony Season

The tenth season of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra's activities will be ushered in at 9:10 p.m. on Sunday when an invitation concert will be given.

The regular season of five concerts will start in November.

Frederick Holden Rushworth will conduct. He has been busy with his players for the last several weeks polishing up and rounding matters into shape and it is freely predicted that this will be far and away the best season the orchestra has yet enjoyed.

Mr. Rushworth has selected in interesting program with all numbers save one coming as novelties. The one item that has been played before is the group of Three Dances from Smetana's opera "The Bartered Bride."

The program will open with Hayden's Symphony in D, which is known as "No. 7." of the "Salomon Set" and the twelfth which the composer wrote in England.

Following this will come the "Dance of the Clowns" from Rimsky-Korsakoff's setting of Ostrovsky's "The Snow Maiden."

The second part of the program will commence with "Polka," "Furiant" and "Dance of the Comedians" from "The Bartered Bride."

Next in order comes Robert Vollstedt's melodious, "Jolly Fellows" waltz and as a concluding number there will be Lalo's overture to the opera "Le Roi d'Ys."

Miss Violet Cumming, contralto, will be the soloist, making her final public appearance prior to her departure for Detroit, Mich., where she has accepted a position as soloist. She will sing a number from "Samson and Delilah." Henry Atack will be her accompanist.

CITY TO LOSE NOTED SINGER

Miss Violet Cumming Accepts Position at Detroit

Musical circles of this city are to suffer a severe loss in the near future when Miss Violet Cumming, one of the most accomplished contraltos ever to sing here, leaves for Detroit, Mich., where she has accepted a post as soloist in one of the large churches.

For the last several years Miss Cumming has been recognized as a talented artist, both in her former capacity as soloist in the First Presbyterian church choir and in her many concert engagements.

She has won wide commendation through her concert work and also has been a winner at the Alberta Musical Festival. In this regard she probably did her best work to date at the festival held here last May, when from one of the strongest fields on record, she captured the Stutchbury Cup, the blue ribbon event of the festival, open only to those who had won gold medals in the current or previous festivals.

Her singing on this occasion brought forth the highest praise from no less an authoritative adjudicator than Arthur Collingwood, of Aberdeen, whose adjudications throughout were of the most scholarly and constructive nature. He particularly praised her singing of Bach's works, which in itself was exceptionally warm praise.

Prior to leaving the city Miss Cumming will appear as soloist at the Invitation Concert to be given by the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra at the Empire theatre on Sunday night and during next week she will give a farewell program over the University of Alberta radio. On both occasions she will be accompanied at the piano by Henry Atack.

Soviet Government To Censor Operas

The Lokal-Anzeiger reports that the Soviet Government has appointed a committee to censor the operas in Moscow. The older operas were the most to suffer recently, among them being "Traviata," "Tales of Hoffmann," "Madame Butterfly," "Aida," "Otello" and others, "because their content is not in accord with the class-psychology of the proletariat." Another opera, "City Kitesch," was struck from the repertory because one of the mystic characters was too outspoken. "Judith" was permitted to go on "only after a number of changes in the text had been arranged."

Peasants Perform Kodaly's Hary Janos

Kodaly's opera, "Hary Janos," which had its premiere three years ago, has just been performed by a group of peasants at Csakver, the native village of Bela Paulini, one of the authors of the libretto. A single gypsy formed the orchestra and played the complex melodies of Kodaly with surprising excellence. So well did the peasant singers acquit themselves that artists from the Budapest Opera House have offered to assist at the second performance, which is scheduled soon.

This charming little character play by Rachel Field, has its setting in New England over a hundred years ago.

Martha Rose has been a "bound" girl to the Widow Boggs for nine years. As a reward for uncomplaining drudgery she is to be allowed to marry stolid, sleepy Hiram. . . . Life is arranged for Martha Rose.

Walking, with unconcern, straight into the arrangement and upsetting it comes an Irish pedler with winsome ways, a great heart full of love and a fiddle. With his music and his love he awakens the heart of Martha Rose.

Listen to this play and you will hear which wins—security or romance.

BLAMES BANJO FOR DECLINE

Writer Gives Reasons for Violin's Loss of Prestige

Herbert Moos in a feuilleton in the Neues Wiener Tagblatt, Sept. 14: "Amerika siegt und die Geige stirbt." Translating freely and retaining the alliteration which is evidently dear to the writer we get: "American soars and the violin sinks." Herr Moos traces the golden days of the supremacy of "the queen of instruments" through the waltz kings until 1914. He blames the downfall of this instrument and the rise of the banjo and saxophone to the fact that between 1870 and 1910 more than 90 per cent of the immigrants to the United States were of Nordic stock, whereas between 1910 and 1920 more than 77 per cent were Slavic or latin, who brought with them a purely material culture "which was melted with the poetic and moving memories of the negro—mystic, superstitious, insanely temperamental."

The writer quotes two anecdotes, one of Paganini and one of Wilhelmj, to show that "once the violin and violinist held the position accorded business and politics today."

New Works Heard At Epokia Opera

From Epoka (Varsovie): There have been produced new operas such as "Stienka Razine," by Tiwdin; "The Red Poppy," by Gliere; the "Decabristes," by Tolotarev, etc. The old operas like "Boris Godunoff," "Faust," "Esmeralda," were presented and interpreted in a new manner.

As for music, there has come into being an "original" idea of a symphony orchestra without a conductor. This conductorless orchestra is perfect and gives complete satisfaction to the auditor.

Romantic Period Will Be Revived

M. Rouche, director of the Paris Opera, announces a revival of the romantic period, with Rossini's "William Tell" and Beethoven's "Prometheus," among others. A questionnaire submitted to the regular subscribes brought out that Wagner was the most popular composer in the repertory, and that the favorite operas were "I Pagliacci", "Don Juan", "Boris Godunoff", "Der Rosenkavalier", "Marouf" and "L'Heure Espagnol."

New York Recital For Noted Baritone

Jerome Swinford, baritone, will give his New York recital in Town Hall on Oct. 11. His interesting program will contain songs by Michael Arne, T. A. Arne, Robert Jones, Handel, Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, Strauss, De Falla, Huarte, Nin, Mellow, Gibbs and Burleigh.

Will Conduct

Frederick Holden-Rushworth, who will lead the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra at its invitation concert to be given on Sunday night at the Empire theatre. He will also conduct the regular series of five concerts to be given commencing in November.

Brilliant Season Planned by Duisberg

Duisburg (Germany) will have a brilliant season this winter of guest conductors, including, among others, H. von Schmeidel, Hermann Abendroth, Franz von Hoesslin, Eugen Jochum, Karl Schuricht, Dr. Siegmund von Hausegger, Bruno Walter, Max von Schillings, Fritz Busch and Hermann Scherchen.

GEISHA MUSIC IS DESCRIBED

Japanese Ballet Proves to be of Considerable Interest

Kikou Yamata, in Figaro, describes the orchestra and music of the school and theatre of the Geishas at Kyoto in celebration of the cherry tree season. "The orchestra of geishas includes the singers, the players of the samisen and flute, and those who beat with their hands the 'tsouzoumi', a sort of tambour in the form of a sand box placed on the shoulder. Others, kneeling before huge drums, guard the rhythm, forearms extended, their clenched hands delicately enclosing drumsticks.

"Lined up closely one above the other at the back of the stage at each side, the musicians wear a special black formal kimono and their hair in shells.

"The syncopated rhythm of their music insinuates itself into the motions of the dancers. As they sing they mime ancient and modern scores." The ballets presented were "The Skein of Five Colors", "The Fisherwomen of Sagami" and "The Sparrow of Yoshiwarh."

News in Brief of City Churches of All Denominations

VESTRY DEALS WITH MATTERS OF INTEREST

Three Churches Will Unite to Hold Memorial Service

Ways and means of raising the church's alloted contribution to the Edmonton Diocese's Bishopric fund, and arrangements for the forthcoming Memorial Service, in which the three churches in the district will unite, occupied the attention of the vestry of St. John the Evangelist's Church at their quarterly meeting held recently in the church.

The first question to be discussed was the assessment for the Endowment Fund. This amounts in all to $42,000, of which the Edmonton Diocese has to raise $5,000. The remainder, $37,000 will be raised by the combined contributions of Eastern Canada, which has made itself responsible for $25,000, and that of an anonymous donor in England, who has made a gift to the diocese of $12,000. This offer can only be taken advantage of during the life of the donor. Should the death of this unknown person occur before the diocese has raised its full quota of $30,000, then the additional $12,000 will have to be given by it also.

An effort is being mde by the Synod to have the necessary $5,000 in the hands of the Secretary Treasurer by December 1, 1929.

Raise Share

Following a lengthy discussion of the matter by the vestry, it was finally decided to raise St. John's share by a canvass of the parish. A collection committee was elected, consisting of Mrs. F. Tomlinson, Mrs. Perkins, Mr H. Day and Mr. C. Connah. Mr. Day was named treasurer of the committee.

It was suggested by one of the vestry that a letter of introduction, explaining the reason for the canvass should be mailed to very parishoner preceding the arrival of the collector This met with the unanimous approval of the members, and since the time of the meeting this suggestion has been carried out.

The next item to be discussed was that of the Memorial Service, to be held in the church of St. John the Evangelist on November 10. It has been the custom for the three churches, the Baptist, Rupert Street Presbyterian, and St. John's to combine their services, and this year the Anglican church will be the scene of the annual service. Arrangements for the music and other details have been left in the hands of a committee of three, representing the three churches.

Mr. G. Baker was elected to the vestry to take the place of Mr. Russell, who has recently left the parish A hearty welcome was proffered Mr Parker by the members of the executive body.

Members present at the meeting were: Mrs. F. Tomlinson, Mrs. Perkins, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, Mr. F. Tomlinson, Mr. G. Parker, Mr. H. Day, Mr. E. J. Dutton, Mr. E. Dutton, and Mr J. G. Deprose.

Clerics Visiting Western Fields

Dr. R. B. Cochrane and Dr. John A. Cormie have been visiting the Mission Fields in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. They were joined by a party of six others, having three cars, and covering a thousand miles. Among many interesting visits and observations they passed through the Ukrainian settlements in the Huns Valley and spent some time at the Indian Mission at Round Lake. The tour brought much encouragement to the workers and valuable information to the officials.

Half Minute Sermons

Watch the faces of the workers as they march to their daily tasks, to shop and office, at eight most any morning; and if you could call out of line all those of gloomy mien, lagging step and possessed of the general atttitude of a slave going to the galleys, you would have before you a veritable army of the damned—damned to work which fails to enthuse them, damned to a lifetime of labors that are the purest drudgery, damned to mere toil that leads them nowhere, damned and chained to the miseries of monotony as surely as ever was slave in a Roman galley.

To tell these unhappy ones, these workers at labor which fails to appeal to them, that they must smile and grin and bear it, would be of the sense of the purist nonsense. As soon tell a lifer in the quarries to become enthusiastic about the stimulating business of making little stones out of big ones. Such advice would be worth only the heavy sardonic sniffs it would receive.

On the contrary, it is wisdom to have uncongenial work, to quit a job that fails to stimulate the pride and the enthusiasm of the worker. We humans are made for a multitude of different sorts of jobs, and what makes one of us grin and work merely makes the other fellow wonder when that clock will reach the hour of six. Occupations that appeal to some of us would get but a few contemptuous snorts from others.

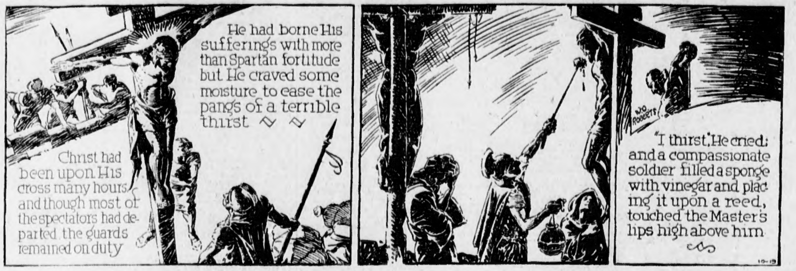
There may be difficulties in the matter of finding the work that appeals to each of us, more difficulties in making the change to other labors, but these are minor ones compared to the difficulty of gaining joy and happiness out of a job that fails to make us love it.

"Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm" is still a very valid wise crack; and you can no more pump up enthusiasm about an un-enthusiastic job than you can the same commodity about a girl that fails to arouse it and spontaneously.

"I Thirst"

St. John, Chap. 19.

By E. L. TINZMANN
Art by W. O. Roberts



He had borne His sufferings with more than Spartan fortitude but He craved some moisture to ease the pangs of a terrible thirst
Christ had been upon His cross many hours and though most of the spectators had departed the guards remained on duty
W.O. ROBERTS
"I thirst," He cried: and a compassionate soldier filled a sponge with vinegar and placing it upon a reed, touched the Master's lips high above him

WILL RECEIVE COMMUNION AT 9 A.M. SERVICE

St. Joseph's Cathedral Will Be Scene of Ceremony

The members of the guild of the Little Flower will receive holy communion in a body at St. Joseph's Cathedral at the 9 o'clock Mass. There is no better means of obtaining the protection and intercession of the Little Flower than by a general communion in her honor.

"The Propagation of the Faith" will be the subject of the sermon at the 11 o'clock Mass.

The sermon at the evening service will be preached by Rev. Father Jennings, pastor of St. Andrew's parish.

Children of Mary

A solemn reception into the sodality of the Children of Mary will be held on Sunday evening, October 20. It is expected that at least 12 new members will be received on that occasion. Every girl in the parish who is 16 years or over is eligible for membership in this confraternity of the Blessed Virgin which is enriched with so many indulgences.

A meeting of all those who are to be received in the evening will be held in the afternoon at 2:30, so that the rules and obligations of the sodality may be explained and the ceremony of the evening rehearsed.

To Speak Here

MISS BONA MILLS, who will address a rally at Central United church at 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Father J. Fallon, S.J., has just returned from a year of ascetical studies in France, and will be engaged as secretary of the newly formed "Catholic Society of Canada for British Emigration." Recently, at the shrine of the Jesuit Fathers at Midland, he preached the sermon to a large number of pilgrims, his subject being the martyrs.

Presbyterian Synod to Gather Here Oct. 29

New Moderator Will be Elected—Church in Canada Now Has Total of 172,578 Members

The Synod of Alberta of the Presbyterian Church in Canada is called to meet in First Presbyterian church, Edmonton, on Tuesday, October 29, at 8 p.m. Rev. R. C. Acheson, of Three Hills, ex-Moderator will preside in the absence of the retiring Moderator Rev. Peter McNab, now of Creston B. C. The new Moderator will be elected at the opening session and during the following days Rev. David Perrie D. D., Moderator of the General Assembly, and Rev. G. M. Dunn, of Toronto, will be among the speakers.

The Presbyterian Church in Canada is now the second largest Presbyterian Church in the british Empire numbering 172,518 members, 101,994 Sabbath School Scholars, 654 ministers and 1281 preaching places and having strong congregations in every city and large town from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island, and carrying on Mission work throughout Canada, among the Jews, the Ukrainians, the Italians, the Hungarians, the Chinese and the Indians.

Rev. A. J. Forson, Motherwell, editor of the Scottish Congregationalist, has issued a booklet for use specially by the young people, entitled, "The story of Congregationalism, and What we stand for."

Missionary Sends Notes On Palestine

Rev. Dr. Christie, of Mount Carmel, Palestine, who has been more than 40 years in the Holy Land, has sent out some information regarding the racial and religious differences of the people. He seems to champion the cause of the Jews rather than that of the Moslems. The latter, in his view, are guilty of rudeness towards the worship of their neighbors, and not above cheating the peasants of their own faith, if they can enrich themselves from their land. "Wherever you see a fruitful piece of land," Dr. Christie writes, "you may safely infer that it is a Jewish colony." He explains that in every case the Jews have bought their land, and where formerly grew nothing but thorns and thistles, they have made it look like a paradise. He is confident that the whole country would soon blossom as the rose if it were under their cultivation, and would maintain a population of three millions. He thinks that Britain has in a few cases been a little lax in government, but strongly holds to the view that no other European nation can give such satisfaction to all parties.

GRACE CHURCH PLANS SERVICE FOR SUNDAY

Morning Sermon Will be Conducted at Regular Chapel

The first service held by the Grace Lutherans in the McBride chapel was well attended last Sunday evening.

On Sunday evening the second in a series of messages from Old Testament prophets will be given. God's method of dealing with those who have erred will form the basis of the evening sermon.

The morning services are still conducted at the chapel on 112th avenue and 93rd street. The membership class meets here at 10 a.m. during the Sunday School period.

Questions

ABOUT THE BIBLE

1—Where was the garden of Gethsamane?
2—What was its nature?
3—What peculiar structures were near it?
4—What did Christ request when He and the apostles reached the garden?
5—Where did he go?
6—For what purpose?
7—Who accompanied him?
8—What did the other disciples do?
9—Where was Judas during this time?
10—Where are these things recorded?

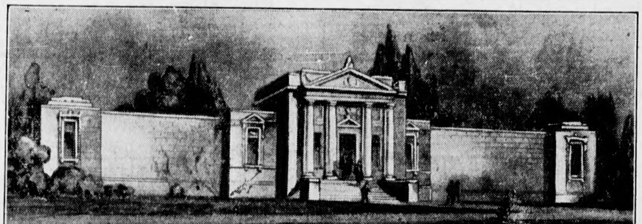
The answers to these questions will be found below. How many can you answer?

1—Outside Jerusalem, in the valley near the Mount of Olives.
2—An orchard of fig, olive and mulberry trees.
3—Many tombs of the dead, some of them still unoccupied.
4—"Tarry ye here and watch."
5—To one of the caves.
6—For prayer and meditation.
7—Peter, James and John.
8—They scattered about the region to watch.
9—In Jerusalem making arrangements to lead the soldiers to Christ.
10—St. Mark, Chap. 14, v. 34.

Strong Delegation At Church Parley

The United Church of Canada has a strong delegation in Edinburgh, attending the ceremonies in connection with the Union of the Established and United Free Churches. The following are in the party: Rev. Geo, C. Pidgeon, D.D. and Rev. J. R. P. Sclator, D.D., both of Toronton; Rev. Hugh Miller, B.D., Saint John; Rev. D. L. Ritchie, D.D., Montreal; Rev. David Christie, D.D., Victoria, B.C.; Rev. Wylie C. Clark, D.D., St. John's, Nfld.; Rec. R. A. King, D.D., Indore, India, and Messrs D. H. Gibson and C. J. Milne, Toronto.

Proposed Memorial Mausoleum



Above is shown the proposed Memorial Mausoleum which it is intended to erect in the Edmonton cemetery. Mausoleums are now operating in Hamilton, Brantford, Belleville, Oshawa, and other Ontario points. The Memorial Mausoleums are considered the most respectful and consoling method of sepulture of all time.

United Church Laymen Will Congregate Here

Important Conference Will be Held in This City—Missionary and Maintenance Fund Will be Discussed

Laymen of the United Church in the eastern conferences have been meeting in recent weeks "to consider how best to share in the work of the Church through closer partnership and by increased gifts to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund." Winnipeg, Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina and Saskatoon are to have larger gatherings in the next three weeks.

Behind the programs of the laymen's conventions to be held shortly by The United Church of Canada in western cities stands the manumental task summed up in the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the United Church. Items on the programs are like so many samples taken from a mountain of ore. The laymen soon to assemble from the various presbyteries in this region are partners in the tasks and are to hear reports of progress. The facts for their consideration mass up impressively and picturesquely, say the organizers.

Wonderful Works

Look at the facts from the angle of languages employed. On the day of Pentecost, 16 nations heard the wonderful works of God in "their own tongue wherein they were born." United Church missionaries preach the Gospel in 38 languages, 10 in lands afar and 28 in Canada.

Then it may be said that "the sun never sets on the work of The United Church." The morning sun rises on Newfoundland, Bermuda and Trinidad, sweeps over Canada shines on workers in Japan, in Korea, in North and South China, a little later on West China, a few hours later still on Central India, then on West Africa, and the round begins again at Newfoundland.

Wide Field

There are said to be 5,000 stars visible to the eye in the northern sky. There are 5,354 places where missionaries are regularly holding up "the light of Life," 986 stations and outstations abroad, 4,369 preaching places in the homeland.

"We have 90 General Board and W. M. S. Hospitals and Dispensaries, 25 at home and 65 in lands afar; they range from little three-bed hospitals on the frontier to great hospitals of 150 beds,' said an interested layman. "One of our hospitals in India gives 90,000 treatments a year. The suffering helped, the lives saved are beyond count.

"Then, too, we have a great school system with 900 schools. In Canada, we have 8 theological colleges with nearly 500 students for the ministry as well as 3 universities and 13 residential schools; in all, about 7,000 scholars. In land overseas, we have 675 schools and colleges training the future leaders of new nations.

"In Canada, we have 1,571 home missionaries preaching in 1,311 Anglo-Saxon fields, in 100 New Canadian centres, 25 french congregations, 82 Indian church, schools and hospitals, 25 oriental missions, 10 Immigration Chaplains, 6 marine missions with schools and school-homes in many places. We have a great and wide land on which to build the Kingdom of God—also much people, multitudes of whom have not yet been reached.

"In lands afar are eight great mission fields: Trinidad, Japan, Korea and Manchuria, North South and West China, Central India, Angola, West Africa, with 600 General Board and W. M. S. missionaries and 1,500 helpers. We are responsible for bringing the Gospel to 32,000,000 in these lands overseas."

Continues

His statement continues, "We have Rescue Homes belonging to our church in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal, with two others in the Maritime Provinces in which we co-operate with other Churches. To these over 500 came for help last years. Scores were redeemed and scores of homes were found for the little children.

"Our Pension Funds are now aiding nearly 600 of our retired ministers and missionaries, 600 widows and 150 orphan children of ministers and missionaries. We stand by them gladly.

"We have in our Young People's Societies 112,135, and in over 5,873 Sunday Schools a host of 619,788. We have 6,090 registered groups of teenage boys and girls and 1,092 junior groups. 8,124 took Standard Leadership Certificates and 151 new Sunday Schools were started in the last twelve months. We provide their leadership."

Totalling it all, he concluded: "If all our missionaries at home and abroad with their helpers, our college principles and professors, our teachers, our doctors and nurses, our veteran ministers, our helpers of all kinds could get together and march past us, we would see six regiments of a thousand each, nearly 6,000 in all, our partners."

Professor Archibald Main, of the Chair of Church History in Glasgow, has spent several months in South America. He represented the Church of Scotland at the one hundredth anniversary of the Scots Church in Buenos Aires. It will be remembered that he was a delegate at the consummation of Church Union in Canada in 1925.

Our Peace River Bible Man

The Bible Society supports about one thousand colporteurs working in many countries. They are in the very front line of the church's mission work, and ever pressing forward with the Scriptures that the Gospel may be within reach of all.

Toronto Woman Will Speak Here At Central Church

At 6 p.m. on Saturday a supper meeting has been arranged to meet Miss Bona Mills, noted national worker in Religious Education. At 4:30 p.m. tomorrow a Vesper service will be held in First Baptist Church.

On Monday evening at eight o'clock, Miss Mills will be the chief speaker at a Young People's Rally in Central United Church. Young people from the city and environs will be present to hear this delightful speaker.

REV. W. GAETZ HAS RETURNED FROM ONTARIO

Will be in Pulpit at Both Services at McDougall Sunday

Rev. Wilfred Gaetz has returned from Ontario, where he conducted anniversary services for First Church, St. Thomas, and addressed a big temperance convention in Windsor.

Mr. Gaets will speak Sunday morning on "Life Under Love's Constraint."

In the evening his subject will be "What I Told Ontario About Government Control in Alberta."

The choir, directed by Mr. W. J. Hendra, will render in the morning "Father, in Thy Mysterious Presence," by Matthews.

The evening anthem will be "God Who Madest Earth and Heaven." (D. Buck). Mr. Hendra will render a solo.

Germany Changed Since World War

Interesting impressions of Berlin, Germany, are being given by visitors who note the changes since the War. They enlarge on the disappearance of the military caste. No longer are seen on Unter den Linden the haughty and Mars-like officers, but in their place has come the polite and obliging soldier, frequently using a bicycle. There is the absence of the Kaiser's dashing span of horses and carriage, which in the palmy days before the War Lord proved to be a daily excitement, as they bore him proudly through the Brandenburgher Gate. The gallery is still vacant in the crowded cathedral where William II, his family, and guests, regularly sat. Hinderburg has the right to occupy it, but prefers a humbler seat near the altar. Reference is made to the beauty of that cathedral, popularly called the Dom, which seats 1,960, but with those standing often encloses 2,500 worshippers. The pastor, Dr. Doehring, is said to be the best preacher in Germany. Foreigners enjoy his clear enunciation, rapid and moving eloquence, and evangelical messages.

Christian Science

At First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Edmonton, and at all Christian Science Churches tomorrow, the subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Doctrine of Atonement." The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon: "And I beheld, and, lo, in the midst of the throne and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the elders, stood a Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth—And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne and the beasts and the elders: and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands; Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory and blessing. And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever" (Revelation 5:6,11-13). One of the correlative passages by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows: "Lamb of God. The spiritual idea of Love; self-immolation; innocence and purity; sacrifice."

CENTRAL UTD. CHURCH WILL HAVE VISITORS

Prof. A. D. Millar and Mr. Dermott McInnes at Services

Services at Central United Church on Sunday will undergo a change from the arranged plans. Rev. Russell McGillivray will be absent from the city and is taking part in the anniversary services of the United Church at Provost. On account of this change the service of baptism as planned for tomorrow will take place next Sunday.

At the morning service on Sunday the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Prof. A. D. Miller, and the evening service will be in charge of Mr. A. D. McInnes, whose family have been for many years members of Central United. Mr. McInnes is following out his studies preparatory to entering the ministry, and during the past summer was student missionary in the Onoway field.

Attendance at the Sunday School is showing considerable increase, and the continued co-operation of parents is requested in the interests of still further increasing the attendance roll and making the fullest use of this avenue of religious education for the children. The meeting hour is 3 o'clock.

Tell Me A Story

A greedy Wolf had been feasting on a chicken and had a bone stuck in his throat. Try as hard as he could, he could get it neither up nor down. Of course, he could not eat with the bone in his throat and that was a terrible state for a greedy wolf to be in.

Away he hurried to a Crane as he thought that, with her long bill and neck, she could reach the bone and pull it out.

"If you will only pull it out I shall reward you handsomely," he told the Crane.

Now the Crane was fearful about putting her head in the Wolf's jaws but she was such a grasping old bird that she was willing to do anything for a handsome reward. But when the Crane had pulled out the bone the old Wolf calmly started to walk away.

"But what about my reward?" called the Crane.

"What?" snarled the Wolf whirling around. "Haven't you reward enough? Didn't I let you take you head out of my mouth without snapping it off?"

Does It Pay To Worry?

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"Some woman, somewhere, is going to get Bill away from me, and I am almost beside myself thinking about it."

It so happens that all my letters this week are from worrying women. One hundred desperately worrying women have been generous enough to share their problems with me—some of them are serious problems, too.

But most of them are just "worry."

No Medicine Like Baby's Own Tablets

Once a Mother Has Used Them She Will Use Nothing Else

To once use Baby's Own Tablets is to use them continually—that is as long as there are young children in the home. That is the testimony given us by mothers from all parts of Canada. They all say that they know of nothing to equal the Tablets, that they find them safe and efficient and at the same time pleasant to take.

Mrs. John Hollinworth, Maidstone, Ont., writes:—"I have three children, the eldest fourteen and the youngest nine months old. I have always used Baby's Own Tablets for them and have found no other medicine to equal the Tablets as a relief for the many ailments of childhood."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. They drive out constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Just fretting, just being anxious, uneasy, apprehensive about things that in the first place aren't important, and in the second aren't going to happen, anyway.

What a bad habit worrying is, and how deep a hold it gets on some of us! "Lately, I can't sleep for worry—" say at least half these letters. Here are these fine, earnest, conscientious women actually losing sleep over—what? Over nothing.

One young mother is heart-sick over a four-year-old son. She HAS to keep scolding and whipping and punishing him, he is so naughty, and of course he likes his Daddy better than he does her, likes most of the neighbors better. And that breaks her loving, anxious heart.

Another woman worries because her young husband is so fascinating, and everyone loves him. "Some woman, somewhere, is going to get Bill away from he," she writes, "and I am almost beside myself thinking about it."

Still another woman worries because her daughter is too fine, too high-minded for her high school associates; Doris won't jazz and smoke and drink and pet and her mother is afraid it will cost her her popularity.

Funny, funny women! For at least 20 of these letters take the other side, and are from mothers who have REAL cause for anxiety where their young daughters are concerned. In these cases Doris is only too eager for petting, jazzing, drinking and all the rest of it.

Then there are the money worries—salaries as high as $300 a month, salaries as low as $80—and harassed women trying to manage gas and milk and vegetables and meat and rent, and stay out of debt. One woman, in New Mexico, with a delicate child and tubercular husband, with ice and fruit and coolness at maximum prices, and an allowance of exactly $100 from the family, really did sound as if she were at the end of her tether. "If I could only stoy WORRYING!" gasps her letter, written when the thermometer stood at 104 degrees.

Worries. Worries. Worries. How silly we are not to realize that they never get us anywhere—indeed, that they cost us very dear.

No matter how stupid we have been, or how weak and wrong, no matter how deeply we have involved ourselves—worrying never gets us out of anything. Lying awake worrying is one of the most wasteful processes we know. In the first place the recumbent positions seems to affect the thinking powers of the mind. Then fatigue and drowsiness dull one's ability to see clearly, or to plan. Very little things become enormous, become important, in the feverish, dark, restless night, and the fact that it IS night, and that nothing can be done until daylight at least, helps to complicate the problem.

> ### Mrs. Norris Says
> Worries. Worries. Worries. How silly we are not to realize that they never get us anywhere—indeed, that they cost us very dear.
>
> Lying awake worrying is one of the most wasteful processes we know.
>
> Very little things become enormous, become important, in the feverish, dark, restless night, and the fact that it IS night, and that nothing can be done until daylight at least, helps to complicate the problem.
>
> As long as you and I do OUR share, loving, serving, keeping the peace, forgiving—everything shall be well.
>
> This IS an infinite force behind us, and we can draw infinite calm from it if we will—strength for the hard day, and sleep for the night.
>
> Joyously, confidently, simply—DO YOUR BEST. The woman who does that ought never to know the meaning of the word "worry."

Which one of us hasn't gone desperately over and over a situation in the night, determined to settle it the very first thing in the morning, if we live that long only to find sudden calm and serenity with the daylight, and to sip coffee placidly enough?

So one of the first steps toward curing the worry habit is to stop serious thinking at night. Think of pleasant things, or get a book to read, a puzzle to work out, a poem to memorize—but leave the day's troubles for the day.

And then when it is day, look the thing firmly in the eye, admit it and accept it. Say to yourself, "John isn't going to get that raise." Or, "We cannot go on living as we are, on this income." Or, "If it is a mastoid infection it means danger, doctors, nurses, operations, money."

Say, "Yes I made a mistake. I was wrong. I caused that trouble, and it was unnecessary trouble. And I've got to make the best of it."

And thus honestly put yourself into the ranks of all the rest of us faulty weak, blind human beings!

It is only from that humble level that you are going to find a way out. But there always is a way out. Nine out of every ten troubles are only in your mind, anyway, and can be dispersed by a healthy mental treatment.

And out of the tenth trouble there is always a way. The interesting persons in the world are the persons who have faced that tenth trouble, and conquered it.

The beginning of the cure includes a course in self-confidence and self-respect. When you can say, "Well, it is hard. But I am going to do the best I can," you have at least made a good start.

That means that the hot, weary wife and nurse of the consumptive man becomes at least a serene, cheerful wife and nurse.

It means that the jealous wife forgets her petty little anxious self, and becomes once more the poised and charming woman with whom her husband fell in love.

It means that the foolish mother of that four-year-old boy stops trying to make goodness hateful and difficult to him, and makes it attractive and simple, by her own happy, simple loving trust in him. "A naughty, four-year-old" boy! There is no such animal. But a worrying mother can believe even that.

"Everything shall be well, and everything shall be well, and everything in all ways shall be well" was a favorite quotation of my own mother, and she used to say it in all domestic crises. The repetition used to sound rather silly to me, years ago, but after awhile it came to have a strangely soothing quality of its own. Everything shall be well, and everything shall be well, and everything in all ways shall be well.

As long as you and I do OUR share, loving, serving, keeping the peace, forgiving—everything shall be well. Here is a test by which we may make every hour complete, and every worry the mere shadow it is. Health changes, money troubles disappear, little-boy naughtiness softens into the definite goodness that only naughty little boys can achieve, the philandering husband comes home, the infection ISN'T mastoid, the wild daughter appears to be sobering down, as soon as one can say with a serene heart, "I am doing the best I can, confident that in the end all this will end well."

To him who loveth God, all things work together for good, says another immortal line. There IS an infinite force behind us, and we can draw infinite calm from it if we will—strength for the hard day, and sleep for the night.

Why, if we COULD worry things into being different—COULD cure the sick child tomorrow, graduate the dull student, increase the income, put out the handsome husband's eyes, we would only find that we had let ourselves in for fresh difficulties. Few of us know wisdom from blindness, or would have the courage to face the developing, enlarging, educating pains of life, if we could reach for the weakening pleasures!

Joyously, confidently, simple—DO YOUR BEST. The woman who does that ought never to know the meaning of the word "worry."

Escalloped Cheese

Two cups grated sharp cheese, 2 cups breadcrumbs, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-2 teaspoon melted butter. Brush 6 or 8 ramekins with the melted butter. Pour the milk over the breadcrumbs, add half the grated cheese, salt, pepper, sauce and mix well. Put into the ramekins, sprinkle with the remaining cheese and breadcrumbs. Bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned.

A Lucille Lorraine Style

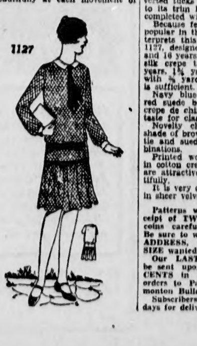
Styled at Paris

Pattern Made at New York

A new silhouette for the little subdeb with sophisticated taste.

The low shirred flounce that flares so beautifully at each movement of its wearer, emphasizes the flat hipline while belt indicates fashionable higher waistline. The bodice has inverted tucks at each shoulder to add to its trim line. Peter Pan collar is completed with scarf tie.

1127



Because feather-weight tweed is so popular in the grown-up mode, it interprets this smart junior Style No. 1127, designed in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. The belt is suede, with silk crepe tie. For the miss of 8 years, 1¾ yards of 40-inch material with ⅜ yard of 27-inch contrasting is sufficient.

Navy blue wool crepe with vivid red suede belt with matching red crepe de chine tie is always in good taste for classroom or campus.

Novelty checked woolen in soft shade of brown with brown silk crepe tie and suede belt is fetching combinations.

Printed wool challis, tweed prints in cotton crepe, rayon printed crepe, are attractive fabrics that tub beautifully.

It is very chic in bottle green print in sheer velvet for "best."

One Of First Doctors In North Country Was Woman

English Practitioner Homesteaded—Took Trail in Any Weather

By EDNA KELLS

Apropos of the action of the Alberta government in sending women doctors to carry on in outpost settlements, it is interesting to note that one of the first doctors in the Grande Prairie country was a woman—Dr. Higgby—who came from England with her husband and homesteaded there. The first doctor to settle in that part of the world was Dr. A. Bradford, who also homesteaded. Both doctors carried on a certain amount of medical practice as a side line, for in those days it was impossible for a sick person to get out to Edmonton for treatment, and the only hospital available was the little log emergency hospital in Grande Prairie, operated by the Rev. Mr. Forbes and Mrs. Forbes, and maintained by the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church. This hospital had no provision for maternity cases, and these had to be looked after in the little pioneer homes.

On the Trail at 60 Below

Mrs. Fletcher Bredin, a prominent old timer in the north country, and a graduate nurse who did much nursing in the early days, describes Dr. Higgby in a few words: "She was a missionary doctor if ever there was one, a doctor thoroughly human, working for the love of the work." Mrs. Bredin had met Dr. Higgby on cases when both women had ridden over winter trails with the thermometer registering 60 degrees below zero, to bring relief to some sick person. Dr. Higgby never refused a call, said Mrs. Bredin, and though she made no reference to her own record in this connection, from accounts given by others one might safely infer that the nurse was as faithful as the doctor. Frequently the doctor had no remuneration, and on one occasion had to hire rigs at her own expense to take her to her patient. The nurse worked voluntarily at all times.

Dr. Higgby later returned to Eastern Canada, but her name is still remembered affectionately by old timers of the Grande Prairie country, and it is often linked up with their casual mention of the new municipal hospital at Grande Prairie which afords them expert nursing service and a feeling of security which creates contentment in their lives.

Women Doctors Again

Of the English women doctors placed by the department of public health, Dr. Mary E. Percy, the youngest of the three, is located at Notikewin, in the Battle River country, and enjoying her work immensely in that beautiful country. Dr. Helen O'Brien is located at Lac La Biche, and doing good work in a difficult field. Dr. Elizabeth Rogers is at Slave Lake, and also making good. These doctors replaced district nurses in order that settlers in those districts might have medical service they could not otherwise have.

British Editor To Pay Edmonton Visit

Making a survey of the colonization possibilities of the Dominion of Canada and also gathering first hand knowledge of the conditions under which immigrants from Great Britain arrive in Canada, H. A. Gynne, editor-in-chief of the London, England, Morning Post, will arrive in Edmonton on the morning of October 22 and will spend several days here.

It is expected that he will address a number of service club meetings while in the city.

Indian Fairyland Is Setting For Wauneita Reception

Co-eds Are Hostesses To Men Students Tonight

Whispers of an Indian fairyland in Athabasca Hall on Saturday evening are abroad, for tonight the Wauneita reception to men students takes place. The dance, which is given by the Wauneita Society of the University, is informal in character. The five hundred invitations issued were distributed in a short time, so the dance promises to be a huge success, if one can judge by the rapidity with which the Wauneitas gathered for programs.

Miss Florence Dodd, Mrs. H. J. McLeod and Miss J. E. Montgomery are the patronesses of the evening.

Indian Brave on Program

Miss Jean Black, president of Wauneitas, will also receive with the patronesses. A decoration committee consisting of Miss Dorothy Kerr, Miss Margaret Walton and Miss Christina Winning were responsible for the decoration of the dining room and lounge of Athabasca Hall, where the dance is being held. Miss Dorothea Richardson and Miss Diane Saucier designed the programs, which have the head of an Indian brave embossed on the front. An introduction committee consisting of Miss Dorothy Magoon, Miss Jean Greig, Miss Anna Wilson, Miss Etta Rogers and Miss Mary Ross will see that all the new students become acquainted.

Members of the Wauneita executive who also helped with the arrangements are: Miss Ruth Cushing, Miss Kae Craig, Miss Helen McCaig, Miss Ruth Bowen, Miss Mary Smith and Miss Marion Clements.

Among the Guests

Among those present will be: Miss Lillian Jone, Miss Liane Saucier, Miss Jane Shaw, Miss Margaret Sloane, Miss Mona McLeod, Miss Gwen Mullett, Miss Mary Ross, Miss Irene Grant, Miss Mae Williams, Miss Ida Ferguson, Miss Edith Garbett, Miss Ruth Robertson, Miss Dorothy Muir, Miss Doriz Cortney, Miss Maude Riley, Miss Margaret Cogswell, Miss E. A Stomach Restorer

Good Advice From One Who Had Suffered Much

Discomfort after eating, gas pains in the intestinal tract, pains around the heart, sour risings in the throat called heartburn, are common symptoms of dyspepsia. It is a condition often neglected until it has done permanent harm, yet the treatment is simple. The great contributing cause to this trouble is thin blood. Good blood and plenty of it is required by the stomach to function properly. If the blood is thin the stomach becomes sluggish, food lies undigested, gas forms, causing pains, often around the heart. Instead of getting nourishment from the blood the system gets poison. The proper treatment is to enrich the blood, and there is no other medicine can do this as promptly or as effectively as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The sole mission of these pills is to make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every organ and nerve in the body, and thus not only banishes indigestion and dyspepsia, but also all other troubles saving their origin in weak, watery blood.

The splendid results following the use of D. Williams' Pink Pills is shown by the case of Ms. Lucy A. Cushing, a former resident of Kempt, N.S., but now living with her son at West Bethel, Maine. Mrs. Cushing says: "I have no hesitation in strongly recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. Always after eating I suffered from pains in my stomach and other distressing symptoms that accompany this ailment. I tried different doctors while residing at my old home and also at West Bethel, but without getting relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and I must say that I am feeling very grateful ever since to the good friend who gave me the advice. I soon found the pills helping me and by the time I had taken nine or ten boxes I was completely restored to good health. Though I am now in my 76th year I am feeling as well and smart as I did at 35, and am enjoying life once more."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Autumn Weddings

BARIL—BRISSETTE

St. Joachim's church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday morning when Cecile Georgina, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brissette, became the bride of Mr. Gerald A. Baril, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs A. Baril. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a modish gown of kaffa brown satin with Battenberg lace. A brown coat trimmed with French beaver and a smart hat to match completed her costume. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

The ceremony, which was partly choral, was performed by Rev. Father Langlois. The choir rendered several selections and the brother of the bride, Mr. Camille Brissette, sang as a solo, Schipa's "Ave Maria". Mr. G. Pepin, organist of the church, played the wedding music.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Baril left for Calgary. Upon their return they will take up residence in the city.

The 'Y' at Work and Play

Parents, teachers and all those interested in psychology will be glad to know that there will be a series of lectures on "Mental Hygiene" at the Y. W. C. A. every Mondoy evening from November 4 to December 9, omitting November 11, Armistice Day, at 7:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the University extension department. The program will be as follows: Lectures on Mental Hygiene by Dr. H. E. Smith. Nov. 4, The Field of Mental Hygiene; Nov. 18, Mental Conflict and Repression; Nov. 25, Emotion and Habit Training; Dec. 2, The Unsocial Child; Dec. 9, Juvenile Delinquency.

Much credit is due to Mr. E. A. Corbett of the University extension department, and Mrs. E. W. Sheldon, convener of the educational committee of the Y. W. C. A., for arranging these splendid lectures.

SUNDAY AT THE "Y"

The Vesper service will be held at the Y. W. C. A. at 4:30 o'clock with a beautiful musical service in charge of Mrs. Clarence Miller. There will be a discussion on the subject: "Is It Possible to Overcome Circumstances, and How?" to be led by Eunice S. Whidden, general secretary, who will tell the story of one who met great difficulties and overcame circumstances. Girls are invited to bring their friends and to ask questions on the topic. Tea served.

Ishbel MacDonald Is Not Engaged to Marry Lord Arnold

By THOMAS WAYLING
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

OTTAWA Oct. 19—The engagement of Miss Ishbel MacDonald to Lord Arnold is definitely and conclusively denied by an official source very close to the British prime minister.

The gossips in Ottawa have been linking Miss MacDonald's name with that of Lord Arnold to the great embarassment of the young lady and the perturbation of Lord Arnold.

"There is not the slightest vestige of truth in the reports" the Bulletin was informed. "It is too bad that such a report should get around, because it is to some extent spoiling the trip for Miss MacDonald. It is a pity that such things should be said without any grounds whatever for them. You can say most positively there is nothing in the report.

Speakers at the "Pep Rally" held on Friday evening in front of Assiniboia Hall were: Dr. W. G. Hardy, of the Department of Classics, Mr. Wallace Sterling, coach of the rugby team, and Mr. Bob Brynildson. Gathering around a huge bonfire, a large crowd turned out to one of the most successful rallies the University has ever had. Members of the rugby team were introduced to the students. Songs and yells varied the program, and some excellent practice was put in for the game which takes place this afternoon on the Grid. The purpose of the rally was to acquaint everybody with the yells so that good support from the sidelines could be given the team in the coming game.

WETASKIWIN, Oct. 18. — The Swedish Baptist church, Wetaskiwin, was the scene of a happy silver wedding on Monday, when the 25th anniversary of the wedding of Rev. P. M. Meyer and Mrs. Meyer was celebrated. The church was packed to capacity, and a program of music and speeches was ably carried out under the leadership of Mr. J. A. Wingblad, Rev. J. Paul Erickson, Superintendant of Swedish Baptist Missions in Canada, spoke words of appreciation of the work done b Rev. Meyer in conference and committee, as well as of the work done by Rev. Meyer in previous pastorates in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Rev. Wickstrom of the Mission church, spoke on behalf of his people, and Rev. Wingblad, presented to Rev. and Mrs. Meyer a number of gifts, giving evidence of the esteem in which they are held in the community.

Youth Is Keynote Of Gayety Club Whoopee Dance Friday

Modernistic Setting Arranged for Opening Affair in Macdonald

Youth held sway at the sparkling, dashing hop in the Macdonald on Friday evening, the opening affair of the Gayety club for the season. In great colored letters across the ball room the "Whoopee" dance was announced, and modernistic shades, colorful streamers and great rainbow bunches of balloons added to the bizarre effect. Showers of noisemakers were given out at the Gayety special number.

Bows were everywhere in evidence on the lovely new frocks of the youthful feminine guests, and the simple but unusual decoration threw into attractive relief the rapidly chacnging colors of hundreds of soft, shimmery gowns that could be seen as the orchestra played teasing new fox trots and dreamy waltzes.

Patronesses of the evening were Mrs. I. Scott, Mrs. W. A. Greenfield, Mrs. P. Rule, Mrs. R. G. Bpchanan and Mrs. L. Fields.

The committee included Miss Marjorie Chauvin, convener, Miss Sadie Buchanan, Miss Florence McGill's, Miss Dora Scott and Mrs Jas. Smith. Other members of the club are Mrs L. A. Staff of Bennett School Entertains Mothers at Tea

About eighty mothers of children attending Bennett Public School had an opportunity of meeting the teachers on Friday afternoon, when they were their guests at the tea hour. Feminine members of the staff who received the visitors were: Mrs. C. Kerr, Miss R. Lablanc, Miss J. Fawcett and Miss Q. Dutton. Assisting in serving were Miss Barbara Barton, Miss Margaret Lewin, Miss Ethel Clarke and Miss Irene Hopner, senior pupils.

Mrs. J. Clarke, herself a teacher, in a few well chosen words thanked the staff on behalf of the mothers.

Mr. G. F. Hustler, principal of the school, thanked the parents for their co-operation and good-will.

Countess Does Not Think Her Daughter Too Young to Marry

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The engagement of the 16-year-old daughter of Vera, Countess of Cathcart, was announced today.

Dolores de Grey Warter, who is the countess' daughter by a former marriage, met her fiance, Theodore Medlan, a year ago.

"They are only youngsters, it is true," the Countess is quoted as saying, "but I gave them my blessing. I was married at 16 and my daughter believes with me in early marriages. Romance is the salt of life, isn't it?"

RUDDY CANADIAN APPLES FOR OVERSEAS

"What shall I send the folks in the Old Country?" is a query heard as the Christmas season approaches, but if the average Canadian realized how much our big, juicy, red apples are appreciated and enjoyed by people overseas, the problem would be immediately solved.

Canada's luscious rosy apples are relished by young and old alike. They symbolize our brilliant sunshine and warm summer days and they do look Christmasy and cheerful. Northern Spies, McIntosh Reds and Baldwins are the best and the most popular to carry your kind thoughts and good wishes across the sea, and standard boxes and barrels of choice hand-picked and hand-packed fruit, government inspected, are procurable at reasonable prices from any grocer, while the matter of shipment is as simple as the mailing of a card.

The Canadian National Express will call for your apples, transport and deliver them by quick service, to any station in Great Britain, Ireland and most European countries, giving them refrigeration service on fast passenger steamers.

The transportation charge from Montreal and Quebec up to November 28th or from Saint John, N.B., and Halifax, N.S., thereafter, by direct steamer to points in Great Britain, Ireland and the Channel Islands is $3 per standard box and $6 per standard barrel, including refrigeration.

For rates to Canadian ports, through rates to Continental points and other particulars, consult any Canadian National Express agent. ***

Alberta I.O.D.E. To Endow Cabins For Canadian Sailors

Banquet Concludes Semi-Annual Convention in Lethbridge

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

LETHBRIDGE, Oct. 19.—Two cabins for Canadian sailors on leave in the Sailors' Memorial Hostel in London, will be endowed by the provincial chapter I.O.D.E., it was decided at the semi-annual meeting in Lethbridge on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Robertson, of Magrath, first I.O.D.E. member to receive the special prize for Canadianization work in schools composed mostly of children of foreign birth, gave an interesting address in hutterite communities.

Plans for raising more money for extension of Canadianization and immigration work were discussed, but the final decision as to methods was left to the individual chapters.

Mrs. R. C. Marshall, provincial president, reported on the national annual meeting in Victoria this summer. Reports of child welfare and immigration occupied considerable of the afternoon session.

The day was concluded with a dinner at the Marquis hotel, at which provincial officers and delegates were guests of the municipal chapter of Lethbridge. The two Scouts who represented Lethbridge at the International Jamboree, were also present, and told some of their impressions and experiences.

Miss Sandison, of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, was also a guest, and spoke of the work of that institution. The evening was concluded with bridge.

BEAUTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Freckles and Large Hips

Dear Miss Leeds—We are two girls, 15 years old, and would like to know if playing the player piano makes your legs fatter or thinner. (2) We bought a jar of freckle cream. Will it clear our freckles away for good? (3) How can hips be reduced?

TILLIE AND BUBBLES.

Answer—(1) Playing the player piano will not make your legs any fatter. (2) The freckle cream you mention will help to fade your freckles somewhat, and you may use a mild bleaching lotion after washing your face with soap and water or after removing cold cream. The following may be used regularly: 1 ounce glicerin; 2 ounces rosewater; 5 drops simple tincture of benzoin; 1 tablespoon lemon juice; 2 ounces witch hazel. Shake well. Apply with a piece of clean absorbent cotton and allow it to dry on the skin. (3) If you girls go swimming two or three times a week you will not be worried very long about your hips being too large. Take a brisk walk every day. Skipping rope and stationary running are also splendid exercises for trimming down wide, flabby hips.

LOIS LEEDS.

Henna Rinse

Dear Miss Leeds—(1) I have chestnut-colored hair and I wuol like to give it a more reddish tint. How can this be done by a home method? K. I.

Answer—A henna rinse may be used for your hair. It is harmless and will give it those reddish tints that you desire. The henna rinse is obtainable ready prepared at any of the larger drug stores, cosmetic counters or hairdressing salons. The Egyptian henna comes in powder form and may be used as a rinse in the following manner: Mix 1 tablespoonful of the henna powder to a smooth paste with warm water and then dilute it with sufficient water to make it the desired shade. From one to two quarts of water may be used. The less water used the redder the hair will be.—LOIS LEEDS.

Unhappy and Underweight

Dear Miss Leeds—(1) I am so unhappy over two things. I can't think straight. I am a terrible crank. Even my friends tell me so. What will help me? (2) I am 15 years old and 5 feet 2 inches tall. I weight seventy-seven pounds. I can't seem to gain weight. I am also round-shouldered. Will reading have any effect on my weight? What shall I do? No one seems to like me this way.

JOLICOUR.

Answer—(1) My dear child, you are at least thirty pounds underweight. No wonder they call you a crank, for when one is in poor physical condition one is pretty apt to be a bit of a "crank and peppery." If you are sure that you have sufficient sleep, plenty of fresh air and sunshine every day and eat well-balanced meals and drink at least one quart of milk extra each day and find you still don't gain weight, I should advise you to see your physician. Perhaps cod liver oil would help you to gain weight. Ask your physician.

Learn to relax nervous tensions. Do not eat when tired or nervous, but lie down and relax for half an hour or so first. Eat slowly and masticate your food thoroughly. Avoid constipation and digestive disturbances. Try to rule your nerves and not let them rule you. Do not give way to your crankiness, make an effort to consider other people instead of nursing your own whims and fancies. Cultivate poise and correct posture. Learn to breathe deeply and evently. Very often nervousness is caused by shallow breathing and incorrect posture. I shall be pleased to mail you my beauty leaflet on gaining weight which gives several menu suggestions and simple exercise that may help you. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your request when you write.

(2) Do not read for too long at one time and see that you are relaxed and that your nerves are under control while you are reading. Do not read under poor light or pursue exciting stories before retiring. Spend more time out-of-doors instead of reading too much during the day.

Missionary from China Speaks at Knox

Mrs. J. F. Menzies, a returned missionary from China, gave an inspiring talk on her work with the women and children in the villages outside of Shanghai at the meeting of the Knox church W. M. S. on Thursday. She felt that this work had been decidedly worth-while. When she left China two years ago the Sunday School class that she had started for little children had grown to include women and 'teen-age girls to the number of 200. The speaker asked for the prayers and sympathy of the W. M. S. members for the women in China. Mrs. W. P McDonald sang, with Mrs. Charles Hornby at the piano, and Mrs. D. C McEachran and Mrs. Bott gave the Scripture lesson. Mrs. A. P. Wheeler presided at the meeting.

DOROTHY DIX

Folly of the Girl Who Would Marry a Captious Prig—Who Is to Blame When Married Men Flirt With Girls?—Straight Talk to a Silly Wife

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been engaged to a young man for four years and his attitude toward me is making me a nervous wreck. He is very arrogant, has an I-know-it-all manner, and he likes to insult me before people to show how superior he is. I have to dress well in my job, so he continually tells me that when we are married I will never handle his pay envelope. He never brings me even so much as a box of candy, and just before the evening has passed he pulls out a little memorandum book and writes down his expenses, which probably never exceeds the cost of a dollar for me. Last summer he insisted on my spending my vacation with him and his family, where I was perfectly miserable. So I have refused to go back this summer, which has made him very angry.

I have no trust or confidence in anything my fiance says or does, but I have been going with him so long that I have lost all my other friends and am afraid I will be terribly lonely if I let him go. I love him, but I am afraid I would have the life of a dog if I married him because he is so small and mean and selfish in all of his dealings with me. What shall I do?

DIXIE.

Answer:

If you have even one lobe of a brain, it should tell you what to do. Give this chap up. Refuse to marry him as you value your happiness. Otherwise you let yourself in for a lifetime of misery.

He has shown you exactly how he will treat you and what you have to expect. He will never show you any tenderness, kindness nor consideration. On the contrary, he will lord it over you and he will crush your spirit and break your heart and you will become one of the meek, cowed wives who has to ask her husband every time she takes a long breath. He will be a tightwad who will begrudge you the very food you eat and you will never have another pretty frock or a decent hat after your trousseau wears out. Do you see anything very alluring in that prospect? I trow not.

Be sure of this, Dixie: Every man treats his sweetheart better than he does his wife. When he goes a-courting he puts on his company manners as well as his company clothes and he is more polite, more deferential, more flattering to her than he will be when he has her for keeps, and she has to stand for any sort of line of conversation and conduct that he hands out.

Before marriage many a man is so gallant that he will not let a girl so much as lift a book and he tenderly assists her up a two-inch step, but after marriage he stalks ahead of her and leaves her to carry the baby and all the bundles and bags, and he expects her to get up in the morning and make the fire.

Before marriage many a man is so generous he lavishes presents on a girl and racks his brains to find new places of amusement to take her, but after marriage he never brings her a gumdrop, or takes her to the movies. Before marriage many a man spends his time telling a girl how beautiful and clever she is, but after he marries her he devotes his leisure to knocking her faults, and when she expresses an opinion he tells hr to shut up, she doesn't know what she is talking about.

That is why a lot of girls marry the wrong men. The man has led them to believe he was one thing while he was quite another, and so the deceived girls have a right to our pity. They didn't know what they were doing.

But you have had your warning. Your young man has shown his quality, and if you marry him in the face of all the danger signals he has hung out, you will deserve what you get. Of course, if you break off your engagement to this young man, you will be lonely for a little while, but it won't take long for the boys to find out that you are in the running again, and you will have plenty of dates. You are still young and pretty and attractive, and there are certainly better fish in the sea than this poor one you have hung.

So my earnest advice to you is to break off your engagement to this prig and go off on your summer vacation alone. You have no idea how free and happy you will feel when you realize that you have had the courage to save yourself from a lifetime of petty tyrannies, and that you won't have to stand behind insulted by a little egotist who thinks he is the whole universe.

DOROTHY DIX.

* * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a mother and I beg you to write something about how wrong it is for young girls to go out with the married men in the offices where they work. I have two young daughters and the men they work with are always taking them out, and telling the girls that they made mistakes when they married and if they were only free that they are the ones they would love and marry. But these men go on living with their wives and are aparently on the best terms with them and they wouldn't have their wives find out for the world that they are taking the girls out and giving them good times. Don't you think it shameful for these men to mislead the girls?

A MOTHER.

Answer:

I think the married man who indulges in flirtations with girls in his office is a cad because he wrongs two women. He wrongs his wife, to whom he is unfaithful, and he wrongs the girl whom he tempts into doing things she should not do for the sake of a good time. And he wrongs her still more if he wins her heart and makes her fall in love with him when he knows that he can marry her and that all he can give her is a shameful liaison, or a life of weary waiting, in which she will eat out her soul with longing for what she can never have.

There can be no fate more miserable than that of the girl who hopelessly loves a married man who has no intention whatever of divorcing his wife and marrying her. She is the woman who gives all and gets nothing in return. She is the beggar that has to be satisfied with the crumbs of affection that drop from his table.

She knows all there is to know of baffled longing and desire. She knows what it is to drink the bitter cup of jealousy to its dregs when she sees his wife having the attention, the honor, the position, the name, the money that she feels should be hers. Any man who would willfully subject a woman to that torture for the sake of gratifying his own vanity has not one drop of human pity in his whole system.

But let's not lay all the blame on the men, Mother. If your daughters are running around with married men, it is because they want to do so. They haven't been kidnapped. They haven't been shanghaied into going on with parties. They go because many married men are very attractive, but mainly because married men who throw wild parties for girls have more money to spend than poor young chaps who are just trying to get a start in the world.

Of course, you can't think such a thing of your own darling little daughters, but it is the truth nevertheless. They are little gold-diggers and they like to ride in fine cars and drink champagne and have pretty things given them and that is why they go with married men. They could refuse if they wanted to.

And don't believe that any modern girl is taken in by any man's hard-luck story, and that the reason she goes out with him is because she is trying to comfort him. His troubles are not her troubles. Besides, that is such an old approach that it makes her laugh.

So try to make your girls see what a foolish thing they are doing in running around with married men and smirching their good name for the sake of a few parties. It doesn't pay. It is selling their birthright for a mess of pottage.

* * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a perfect husband, good, kind, loving, generous, everything that one could wish in a man, but I am very much in love with another man and he promises me everything and says he can't live without me. He even says he will take my children and be good to them, but what shall I do? I love both of these men and can't decide between them.

BROWN EYES

Answer:

Well, Brown Eyes, you seem to have a moral astigmatism that prevents your distinguishing between right and wrong, so I should advise you to get some spectacles that will enable you to see things more clearly. Perhaps then you could see that you have no right to take a good man's children from him, even if you leave him yourself. Personally, I don't think a man loses much when he loses an unfaithful wife, but his children are the core of his heart and he has a right at least to them.

But if you have a perfect husband you had better stick to a good thing. They are not so common and, anyway, you have a lot better chance of being happy with him than you would with a philanderer who goes around making love to silly married women.

Bobby Coon Wishes He Wasn't So Fat

By THORNTON BURGESS
(Copyright)

Unc' Billy Possum wasn't the only one who had listened to the voices of Bowser the Hound and the other dog as they followed somebody's tracks. And he wasn't the only one who had grown more and more uneasy as he listened. No sir, he wasn't the only one. Bobby Coon had heard those voices quite as soon as had Unc' Billy, and with very much the same feelings. But while Unc' Billy wisely decided to stay right where he was on the chance that those bothersome dogs might not be following on his tracks after all, Bobby, with equal wisdom, decided to run. Something inside told him that his tracks were the ones that those dogs were making such a fuss about and that the farther he could get into the Green Forest the safer he would be. You see he, too, suspected that there were men following those dogs, and it was this that made him uneasy and worried. If he had been sure that the dogs were alone he would have laughed at them, for dogs cannot climb trees.

"The deeper I can get into the Green Forest the darker it will be, for there the trees grow closer together and the moonlight cannot get in between as it does here," thought Bobby as he ran down the Lone Little Path and finally turned off toward the Laughing Brook. He meant to cross the Laughing Brook and keep right on toward the deepest, darkest, most lonesome part of the Green Forest, where his big cousin, Buster Bear, had his home. He felt that he would be safer there.

Now Bobby Coon, like Unc' Billy Possum, was very, very fat. Oh, my, yes! He was very, very fat. He was even fatter than Unc' Billy Possum.

Now Bobby Coon Like Unc' Billy, Was Very, Very Fat

For weeks and weeks Bobby had had splendid living. There had been so many good things to eat that Bobby had done very little but eat. And because he never had had to go far to get these good things he had taken very little exercise. Now, you know when you eat a great deal and don't exercise you are just naturally bound to grow fat. It had been so with Bobby Coon. He was so fat that he was actually roly-poly.

It made him grunt just to walk fast. As for running, why, he hadn't even thought of running for ever so long.

But he must run now. There was no help for it. He must run as fast as ever he possibly could or those dreadful dogs would be right at his heels and he would have to climb a tree before he reached the dark, deep part of the Green Forest. Of course he could go to his own hollow tree, but to do that would be to tell where he lived and he just couldn't do that.

Puff, puff, puff! Never had running been such hard work before. Huh, huh, huh! It seemed to Bobby as if he never would be able to get a full breath again. Puff-hur, puff-huh, puffhuh? What a long way it was to the Laughing Brook! Why wouldn't his legs go faster as they use dto do? What was the matter with him, anyway? He wasn't half-way to where he wanted to get and here he was os tired that it seemed as if he couldn't take another step.

"Bow, wow, ow, ow, wow!" How loud and terrible that sounded! Bobby hurriedly looked behind him. There were those two dreadful dogs right in plain sight! He never in the world could reach the Laughing Brook before they caught him.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear me! I wish I wasn't so fat!" panted Bobby Coon as he looked for a good tree to climb.

What's What

Brief notes for an informal dance may be written this way.

Dear Aline—Mother and I are giving a little Hallowe'en costume dance on Thursday, the 31st, at 9 o'clock. We shall be delighted if you and your brother can be with us. Hoping that you have made no other engagement for Hallowe'en, believe me,

Sincerely yours,
RUTH PAIRN.

Telephone invitations are even more informal, but there is always the danger that a telephone acceptance may be forgotten unless the invited guest has made a memo on his or her engagement calendar. Perhaps, the inscribed visiting card is the most formal of informal invitations, thus:

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

BATHING DAILY A NECESSITY FOR CHILDREN

The habit of bathing the small baby daily is begun when baby is born, and continued, in most cases without question, until baby is one year old. Then mothers begin to wonder: "Am I bathing him too often?" At this moment some one is sure to pop up and remind the mother that baths are "weakening" and advise her not to bathe the child so often.

Seemingly the laughableness of this advice never strikes the advisor, for if a year of daily bathing has in no way harmed the much weaker infant, what ill-effects could it possibly have on the older child?

Too hot baths are enervating, and should not be indulged in by young or old, but the warm bath, with a cooler rinse afterwards (if the baby reacts well to this) is just as necessary, in fact more necessary, the second year. Incidentally, it is a habit every child should be encouraged to continue.

The tiny baby needs the skin stimulation he gets from the washing and drying for he lies swaddled in garments that cover him from tip to toe and he is none too active. His skin must be kept clean and active in order to do its duty as an organ of elimination quite as important as the bladder, the bowels, and the lungs. The child who has reached the age of creeping and mops up the floor, thereby accumulates enough actual dirt to demand a bath even if there were no other considerations involved.

The sick child needs his daily bath. I've unwrapped some sniffly babies in the clinic whose bodies had gone unbathed for a week just because the mother feared to give them baths because of colds. Such mothers would consider the children grossly neglected if the hospital attendants failed to bathe them. There is no more danger of a sick child catching cold from a bath at home than in the hospital.

If the child has a luxurious growth of hair the head need not be shampooed daily, but should be well brushed to keep it in good condition. Once a week is often enough for the shampoo. But the tiny baby, with his bald head, makes head washing no more difficult than washing and drying his face.

One more question usually creeps into these letters about bathing and hair washing. How can I make my child's hair curly? The fact that the ends of mussed up hair often turn up gives rise to the secret hope that by brushing the wrong way it will eventually become curly. I hate to be cruel, but mothers might as well know the worst. I never can have such a result for straight and curly hair are not shaped the same. The first is a round shaft, the second a flat one. Even as a thin flat slice of wood will curl, so will any flat shaft of hair. Permanent waving temporarily flattens the round hair shaft and makes it perform like curly hair, but obviously we can't permanently wave the babies. Instead keep the straight hair clipped and brushed to satin smoothness and make the best of what can't be changed.

Select Your Heating System With Caution

Little Faults Are Often the Cause of Constant Worry and Irritation — Expert Advice on Installation Will Help to Save Future Trouble

Constant trouble in heating your home may result from failure to properly select and install the system in the first place, or from failure to properly operate the plant after installation

Location Affects Heating

If your home is situated in a location exposed to sweeping blasts of wind, then radiator heat will be found most convenient and effective, for such heat can be getter controlled, from the inside, independent of outside atmospheric conditions.

The first cost of installing a heating system is by no means the last cost. The question of economical operation has to do with the larger cost of the two, because any good hot water or steam heating system will last for many years, during which time enough fuel will be burnt to run into an amount greatly in excess of the cost of the system.

It is therefore advisable to make a careful selection of the boiler to be used, and of the general layout of the heating plant. The number and size of radiators, the position of the radiators for highest efficiency, the advisability of using a "blower" system or an oil burner, the advantages of a "booster" or circulator—all of these are vital matters which affect the cost of operation more than they do the first cost of installing. For this reason, it is wise to have the advice of experts whose knowledge and experience cover all forms of heating in every type of home or other building.

Selection of The Boiler

There are many excellent heating boilers on the Canadian market, all having their own alleged points of superiority. However, it is a commonsense principle that selection of a boiler should be made with due consideration for the type of fuel to be burned, the amount of attention necessary to properly take care of the system, whether or not a "blower" or oil burner is to be used, and whether there are any possible additions to the system to be made at a later date, which would require added capacity in the boiler.

Some boilers are very easy to fire, while some require more attention than others. Some burn cheaper grades of fuel, thus cutting down operating expenses, and others are more readily adaptable to the burning of oil. The "self-feeding boiler, for instance, has what is called a "magazine feed." This means that the "magazine," when filled with coal, will feed the fire itself, and constant attention does not have to be given to the boiler. This particular type of boiler burns a very cheap grade of fuel at highest efficiency, which is an argument in its favour from an "economy" standpoint. We will be only too pleased to discuss the boiler question with you, and show you how the design and construction of each type makes for efficiency in meeting some of the above-mentioned conditions. Remember, a boiler is not simply a boiler—it is the heart of the heating system and, as such, must be carefully selected.

Boosters and Heat Controls

For the hot water system, we'd like to have an opportunity of explaining how a booster or heat control works. There are several types of these, some of them doing away with the expansion tank which is still found on many hot water heating systems. The principle of all heat controls is, however, practically the same. The idea is to speed up the circulation of the water in the system, and thus increase the efficiency.

Briefly, the way in which this increase in efficiency occurs is this: If the system is well laid out and well installed, the water will have a fairly free circulation, but usually the water returning to the boiler is ten to fifteen degrees cooler than the water leaving the boiler to go out through the system. Often the temperature difference is much more than fifteen degrees. When the water comes back to the boiler, after having been around through the system doing its work of keeping the radiators hot, it has to absorb heat units from the boiler while passing over the hot parts of the boiler which are being heated by the fuel. If the temperature difference as mentioned above is fifteen degress, that means that the water will have to absorb enough heat units from the boiler to become fifteen degrees hotter before it goes out again through the system. But supposing you use a booster—the water moves faster, and gets back more quickly, therefore it has not chilled so much as if there were no booster in use. It follows, then, that it does not have to absorb so many units of heat to rise to the temperature at which it goes out, and the boiler has less work to do. This means a saving in fuel, and that is what we mean when we say that the efficiency of the system is increased by the use of a booster, or heat control.

Importance of True Estimating

One important thing stands out more pointedly than any other one thing about the selection and installation of the heating system. This important thing is, that from the figuring of the amount of radiation to the completion of the system, the work must be handled by experienced men. Many a home owner or tenant lives in dread of the cold seasons because the heating man — so-called — who put in the heating system did not figure sufficient radiation to properly do the job, did not select a boiler with sufficient capacity to handle the amount of radiation, or was careless in the work of installation. And many of these home owners are themselves to blame for the sad condition in which they find themselves because they did not evidence enough interest in the letting of the job to see that it went to an experienced heating engineer.

Blower Systems

We mentioned "blower systems." A blower system is simply a fan attached to your boiler to stimulate the draft through the fuel bed. It should be automatically controlled by a thermostat or a hydrostat, so that an even temperature may be maintained through the house. A cheap grade of fuel may thus be burned, since the draft is a forced one, and the boiler does not have to rely on the natural "pull" of the chimney for its efficiency. The blower system does more than stimulate the draft and make possible the burning of cheap fuel—it gets the most out of the fuel burned. This is because the average fire in almost any boiler of furnace does not burn all the gases. There is not enough oxygen introduced into the combustion chamber to afford complete combustion, therefore some of these unburned gases, containing good heat units which you paid your coal bill, go up the chimney—wasted in the form of smoke. When a blower system is used, more oxygen is forced in, and a "bluish" flame is the result. These otherwise wasted gases are burned, and the heat units, which might have been wasted, are put to work in haeting the water. This means, of course, greater efficiency from the fuel, and money saved.

Oil Burners

Perhaps you, like many other people are prejudiced against oil-burning systems for some cause. When oil burners were first used in this country, they were certainly crude and primitive as compared to those sold on the market today. They gave a lot of trouble—they wasted a lot of oil, they cost a lot of money, and in many cases were very unsatisfactory. However, great developments have taken place in the oil-burning field during the past few years—even during the past few months. The oil burner of today is operated automatically—that is to say, it shuts itself off when the temperature goes up to the required degree, and turns itself on when the temperature goes down. There are no ashes to worry about. All the better types are supplied with safety devices which afford protection against any possible accident. The present day oil burner is absolutely safe, though now and then we still hear of some one who refuses to consider the use of an oil burner through possible danger or accident. This danger has now been eliminated.

We'll be glad to go into this more thoroughly with you, showing you why and how.

Another thing about oil burners which is interesting and satisfactory is that they do not cost nearly so much as they used to, and they are much more efficient in operation than previous types. They burn less oil—they operate more silently. Engineers have been working on the objectionable noise feature until it has been reduced to a minimum in burners designed for residential use.

The Question of Price

Part of this trouble arises from the question of price—and of course this applies to plumbing as well as heating. Under present competitive conditions, prices are fairly well standardized so that of any ten reputable heating contractors figuring on exactly the same job, there will not be a difference of more than a very few dollars in the ten estimates. When an exceptionally low price is secured, then, it means one of three things: (a) The installation may not go in according to specification—in which case you will not get the heating system you think you are buying. (b) The heating contractor may not know how to properly estimate his costs. If he does not know how to do this, the chances are slim that his experience will be valuable to you in the heating field, and you will be the ultimate loser. (c) The third possibility is that he has made an error in making up his price, in which case there will be a comeback of some kind, and probably hard feelings on both sides.

This is commonsense talk, straight from the shoulder, on a subject which is not so often discussed as it should be. If you are engaged in any commercial pursuit and we plumbers go to you to purchase what you have for sale, whether it may be a commidity or a professional service, we expect to get value for our money. As plumbing and heating contractors, we expect to give that same thing to you—an honest dollar's value in service, knowledge, merchandise and results—for every dollar which your job costs you. Nowadays it's a matter of value for value—seldom does one get any more than is paid for, and for that reason we mention the danger of the exceptionally low price.

Prepare Now For Winter

Don't let Old Jack Frost come sweeping around the corner with his icy breath and catch you unprepared this winter. Now is the time for you to be thinking of the coal man—that roof that needs repairing and that furnace that somehow did not work just right last spring. Get your painting and interior decorating done now. Have your electrician fix up those new outlets for your electric floor lamps. How are your storm doors? Do your basement walls need repairing? You will find that early preparation for winter is not only much more inexpensive but that it will give you greater satisfaction all around.

RABBIT PUTS FEAR IN DOG

Big Jack Chases Canine Down Road to Hiding Place

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

BRIGHTON, Colo., Oct. 15—If rabbits can chuckle there's a husky young jack in Adams county that is probably laughing his head off today.

The following incident, humorous or otherwise, was witnessed by an Adams county farmer last night.

Tuffy, a nondescript dog, lives near Derby. So nondescript is he, in fact, that several years ago a hunter mistook him for a coyote and shot away part of his tail. Ever since then, that is, until yesterday, Tuffy has been something of a hero, displaying his prowess by chasing livestock, automobiles and neighborhood cats—but today he is a quiet, uneasy and subdued canine—all because of a jack rabbit.

Tuffy went out for his nocturnal walk last night. A short distance down the road stood a rabbit. Tuffy chose him and charged. The rabbit stood his ground and Tuffy stopped. Jack took a hop or two forward and Tuffy retreated leisurely, then loped. The rabbit increased las pace and the dog, with his tail between his legs, set off at a terrific speed which ended only after he had reached a safe place beneath his owner's porch.

What You May Want to Know About Building

Q—Should the foundation for a retaining wall go down below frost level? Is there any way to keep moisture from getting behind such a wall?

A—Such a wall should have foundations going below the frost level. A cement gutter should be built where the earth joins the top of the wall.

Q—We have a hot water heating system. The pipe leading to the chimney clogs with soot and has to be cleaned out every few days. When we open the door smoke comes out and gas gets through the house. When it is cold weather, the water will be almost boiling, but the radiators are barely warm. Can you enlighten us as to the cause of this?.

A—Your heating plant is clearly not properly designed. The boiler may be too far from the flue, the flue too small, or there may not be enough pitch in the smoke pipe to the flue. If the layout had been properly designed, your house should be warm at subzero temperatures without raising the temperature of the water above 160 degrees. Employ a competent heating contractor to make an inspection and to make necessary changes.

Q—Our kitchen, only one story high, is cold. There is a basement under this, but it is always cold in that part also. Will it help to put wall board on the basement ceiling? What other measures can we take?

A—The best measure is to insulate the kitchen ceiling. Any of the standard forms of insulation will serve. Get a good tight job. If this does not prove to be sufficient, you may put wall board or insulation on the ceiling of the basement also

Q—We have trouble keeping our painted house looking fresh. After painting it turns grayish after a single season. One painter suggests that we use a gallon of white enamel with the paint used for the last coat. Is this all right?

A—No. The ingredients used in enamel are not suitable for outside work, exposure to the elements and strong sunshine. Use ready mixed paints prepared by manufacturers who guarantee satisfactory results. Employ a high grade painter. Two coats are far better than one.

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Elbert Webb of Hardin county, Kentucky, claims the curbstone sitting championship of the world. Webb, who is the owner of two farms, came to Chicago two months ago to see the sights. Last Saturday night a stranger invited Webb into an alley to have a drink of "good corn liquor." His host strong-armed him and took all his money. After his assailant had fled Webb obtained a box, placed it on the curb a few feet from the mouth of the alley and there without food or drink sat five days, scanning everyone who passed. His patience was rewarded. He saw the man who had robbed him, caused his arrest, and got back part of his funds.

FACES TRIAL ON SERIES OF GRAVE CRIMES

Police Believe They Have Man Who Victimized Harvesters

A third charge of robbery with violence may be laid against Mike Humaniuk, released on $6,000 bail Saturday morning, following his committal for trial by Magistrate Primrose in the city police court on the charge of robbing Mytro Slitko, Scott, Sask., of $40 in the wash-room of a local beer parlor.

When Humaniuk appeared in court, he was charged also with the robbery with violence of $100 from A. P. Chichester, young English immigrant, who is said to have been lured into a gambling den and slugged after refusing to take part in a game. The offence is alleged to have taken place on the night of October 9.

A. J. Shiers, of Lavoy, was slugged into sleep and robbed of $180 in a back alley behind the old Stanley Rooms, a few nights ago, and the police see the fine Italian hand of Humaniuk or a man of the same technique in this affair.

See Similarity

A certain similarity is shown in the three cases, detectives say. First the victim is befuddled with drink, and an effort is then made to either take the money off them by means of a card game or some trick, following which the victim is incontinently hit over the head with a rock, a lead pipe, a blackjack, or what have you.

Slitko admitted, under cross examination by Eardley Jackson, defence counsel, at the hearing this morning, that he had not been altogether easy in his mind even before he had been robbed, fearing that some trick was going to be played on him by the men with whom he had been drinking. Another witness said that Slitko had been showing his wallet to his drinking pals in the wash-room.

Mr. Jackson protested against what he called the "excessive bail" for his client, but it was pointed out by S. T. Bigelow, crown prosecutor, that "$200,000 bail was asked in Winnipeg for a crime as serious as this."

The hearing of the Chichester case has been adjourned until October 25.

Bulls-Eyes

With the tide of southbound traffic from the northland at an ebb now, there were few passengers from northern points on the weekly train from Waterways on Friday. Sixteen cars of wheat were brought down.

Arrested by detectives of the city police force on a request from Lethbridge, F. M. Lymberner is in the cells, awaiting an escort from the southern city. He is alleged to have passed a number of worthless checks.

Thieves looted the car of C. K. Mart, of Westlock, of a suitcase containing various articles as the car was parked near a local hotel on Friday night. Among the booty was a gold watch with the initials C.K.M. on it.

Search is being made by headquarters of "A" division of the Alberta Provincial Police for Guy D. Thompson, last heard of at MacIntosh, Ontario. His sister, Mrs. A. C. Humphries, of Frog Lake, Sask., is worried about the missing man.

Colonel M. E. Lindsay, of Dalrsie, Scotland, is a visitor to the city and a guest at the Macdonald hotel. He is inspecting the coal properties at Mountain Park and the Coalspur in which he is interested. Colonel Lindsay had no comment to make upon business conditions.

A sale of timber limits will be held at the Dominion Lands Office on Monday next, October 21, at two o'clock. The location of the timber is mainly south of Chip Lake, which is between 60 and 70 miles due west of Edmonton.

The winter lecture series conducted by the Army and Navy Veterans' Club will start Tuesday, Oct. 29, the course of lectures being on "present day empire problems". At the first meeting V. B. Delapore, formerly of the Indian Staff Corps, will lecture on India.

R. C. Duncan, assistant manager of the Canada Colonization association, arrived in Edmonton on Saturday morning for a conference with Canadian Pacific Colonization officials. He has been on a tour of the company's holdings in southern Alberta and British Columbia, and will return to Winnipeg on Saturday evening.

Election Rumors May Come To Head During Next Week

Present Indications Are That Many Independent Candidates Will Offer Services to Electors

The election rumor pot which has been simmering for some time is expected to come to a boil within the course of the next two weeks, when slates and platforms will be definitely announced by the contending parties and individuals. Of late the proceedings could be properly termed a campaign of denials with rumor playing fast and loose with the names of prominent citizens as potential candidates for office. The great majority of these rumors have proved unfounded.

It is expected a meeting of the Civic Government Association will be held Tuesday night. Although R. S. McKenzie, the president, stated Saturday morning that a date for the meeting had not been definitely decided; another official of the association stated positively the meeting would be held Tuesday night. Lively proceedings are anticipated, following the more or less lethargic state of the association recently.

The Labor organization is not finding perfectly smooth sailing either; there appears to be a certain amount of dissension within the rank as to the procedure to be followed at the coming elections.

So far, only one mayorality candidate has definitely appeared, W. A. Gunn, but at least a score of other names have been mentioned as possibilities. Possible candidates who have not yet issued a denial of their rumored intentions to contest the election for mayor include J. C. Bowen, unsuccessful candidate last year; D. K. Knott, Labor candidate in 1927, and J. A. Clarke, ex-mayor and former candidate.

The People's Political Educational Association which has been kept in the public eye recently by the extremist attitude it has adopted on public questions, will run a full slate for mayor, aldermen and school trustees, it has been announced.

In addition to whatever slates may be decided on by C.G.A. and Labor it is evident a number of independent candidates will be in the field this year.

Accused Wants To Use Crown Witness

Not since the days of innocence in the Garden of Eden has there been found a man with such faith and trust in the integrity of his fellowmen, as Fred Netter, Polish laborer, North Edmonton hotel, who appeared before Magistrate Primrose in the city police court on Saturday on a charge of assault.

First, one Kamienski stepped into the witness box and told dolefully, through an interpreter, that he was always being victimized and ill-treated by his room-mate, the accused, and then Thos. Rakowski, third occupant of Room 24 in the same hotel, told his story of the affray but made it sound as though it had been a fairly refined gathering.

Netter, nettled apparently by the harsh things said about him by the complainant, made a vigorous denial of most of the foregoing, not to mention the allegations heremunder and abovementioned.

"Any witnesses?" his worship asked.

"Yoh, that man Rakowski," the prisoner grinned.

It was tactfully explained to Netter that using a crown witness for the defence simply wasn't done, but he was discharged anyway.

Amend District Court Schedules

Sittings of the district court scheduled for the Peace River judicial district have been amended, according to information made available on Saturday.

The amendments, which have been approved by His Honor Lieut. Gov. Dr. William Egbert, are as follows:

By changing the sittings at Grande Prairie fixed for Wednesday, Nov. 13, to Tuesday, Nov. 12; by adding a sitting to be held at Grande Prairie, Tuesday, Nov. 10.

Adjourned meeting of the Edmonton Public School Board to be held in the board's office in the Civic block, Edmonton, Alberta, on Tuesday, October 22, 1929, at 8 o'clock p.m.

What Happened In Police Court

With a police record behind him, George Cuthbert, was given three months in jail when he appeared before Magistrate Primrose in the city police court on Saturday morning on a charge of theft.

• • •

A quintet of drunks were given the usual penalty of a $20 fine, with the option of 30 days in jail, each.

• • •

Information from Winnipeg is still lacking on the antecedents of Ernest Ross and Norman Windsor, alias the Olfrey brothers, who recently looted the house of General Griesbach and were arrested at Olds shortly after. They were remanded until Monday, when they appeared before his worship on the theft charge.

• • •

Rodrick Letendre was fined $20, with the option of 30 days in jail, on a charge of the illegal possession of liquor.

• • •

Wm. Poche, alleged vagrant, was remanded until October 22.

• • •

Gus Demro, 17, was placed on probation on two years under bonds of $300 when he pleaded guilty to robbing some cash from a cleaning and dyeing establishment for which he had once worked.

Expenditure Of Engineer's Dept. Within Estimates

Totalling $278,737 to the end of September, expenditure of the engineer's department is keeping within the appropriation, according to Commissioner David Mitchell. The appropriation for the year totals $375,214. Last year's corresponding expenditure was $262,472, the increase this year being due to the growth of the city.

Revenue of this department totalled $78,388 for the nine months, compared to $66,360 for the corresponding period in 1928. The estimated revenue for the year is $94,000.

AGAIN URGING LOCAL CHOICE

Isaac Doze, Liberal, is Favorite of Many Citizens

There is every indication that unless party requirements prove too strong in advocating an outside choice, Athabasca Liberals will stick to their intention to choose a local candidate for the next Federal election. Those who are close in touch with the riding say that the Liberal Association there will even go to the length of insisting upon the right to select their own candidate. The seat can be won, they say, even if both Farmer and Conservative candidates are brought into the field, as the whole district is out of touch and sympathy with the present member. A local man and a farmer they say, can win, and there are sufficient old-time farmers in the district to furnish the parliamentary material.

The man who the local Liberals have in mind for their first choice, so it is stated, is Isaac Doze, of Smoky Lake, who is an old-timer in the district, is a good farmer, and has other qualifications that fit him to be a candidate. He is known to all the different sections of the community, and will command the vote of the foreign settlers. There is said to be a large number of Russians in the constituency, and Mr. Doze is said to be likely to get their support.

During the last few days many members of the party have visited Edmonton and discussed the matter with leaders in the city, and have stated very definitely their wishes upon the matter.

C. E. Gariepy May Run For Seat On Aldermanic Board

Among the latest names to be mentioned in political circles as a possible candidate for aldermanic honors is that of C. E. Gariepy, who is being urged by friends to allow his name to go on the ballot.

Mr. Gariepy, who is a solicitor by profession, is one of the younger generation of business and professional men of the city, and he is also a member of one of the oldest families in the city, and in addition, one of the oldest French-Canadian families in the Dominion. Members of the Gariepy family have filled many honorable positions in the Dominion, the province of Alberta and the city of Edmonton.

Personally Mr. Gariepy is looked upon as a very representative member of the French Canadian community in the city. In the past he has taken a lively interest in city affairs in general, and is a student of municipal administration.

As a member of the city council Mr. Gariepy will be regarded as a worthy successor to J. H. Picard, Edmonton's well-known French-Canadian old-timer who for so many years was an honored member of the civic body.

W. Hanke Jailed On Theft Conviction

One year's imprisonment at the Fort Saskatchewan jail was the sentence imposed by Mr. Justice Ives in the criminal court on Friday, on William Hanke, after accused had been found guilty of breaking and theft.

Accused, when arraigned, entered a plea of not guilty and elected for trial without the intervention of a jury.

It was alleged by the crown that Hanke, on June 1 last, entered the dwelling of Herbert A. Green and stole one sweater, one coffee mill and part of a set of light driving harness, valued at $25.

Edward B. Cogswell, K.C., appeared for the crown, and accused was not represented by counsel.

Immigration Chief Will Inspect Hall

For the purpose of carrying out an inspection of the immigration hall and offices at Edmonton, J. Jolliffe, immigration commissioner from the department at Ottawa, reached Edmonton this morning. He is accompanied by Thomas Jelley, district commissioner, from Winnipeg.

The morning was spent visiting the officials of the department at Edmonton.

ELMER ROPER RETIRES FROM PUBLIC LIFE

Long Prominent in Edmonton, Will Quit Seat on School Board

For the first time in many years the name of Elmer E. Roper, prominent in labor and school board circles in Edmonton, will not be seen on a ballot paper when the 1929 civic elections roll round.

"I am definitely out of civic politics insofar as being a candidate for any office is concerned, and I will not be a candidate this year for the school board," stated Mr. Roper, this morning. "Neither will I be a candidate for any other office," he added, referring to the fact that his name had been prominently mentioned as a possible Labor nominee for aldermanic honors. "I am dropping right out. You can't make that too emphatic."

But although retiring from office in political fields Mr. Roper will still take an active part in Labor matters inside the Labor organization.

"I'll still be connected with the Labor movement, but I feel that as far as holding any civic office is concerned I have made my contribution to public life in Edmonton," he said. "From now on I'm going to golf, and curl, attend to my own business, and have a good time generally."

Mr. Roper has been prominent in all civic matters, but gave special attention to the Public School Board in the last four years, being chairman of that body in 1928. He has also worked indefatigably for the Beulah Home and other organizations of a public and semi-public character, both in his capacity as a leader in the Labor movement and as a private citizen and in civic circles and among the service clubs of the city general regret at his decision has been expressed. But Mr. Roper, while appreciating the remarks of his friends, says his mind is firm.

"I definitely do not choose to run. That's final," were his last words.

Slaughter On Big Scale Is Carried Out

A total of 165 horses, dogs and cats were impounded at the city pound last month and of these one was sold and 11 redeemed, the great majority, 151 in number, going the way of all flesh via the "hot spot," the humane electrical killing device installed at the pound for destroying unwanted animals. Animals seized during the month included 12 horses, 64 dogs and 87 cats. One horse, 63 dogs and 87 cats were destroyed. The felines proved the most unpopular, not one of the large total impounded being either redeemed or sold. Receipts of the pound during the month totalled $37.60. Forty-two complaints of neglected or cruelly-treated animals were investigated.

100 Live Members Secured By Junior Commerce Chamber

To date the membership drive for the Junior Chamber of Commerce has resulted in the securing of 100 real live members, not merely names, announces Gordon Kilgour, who is in charge of publicity for the campaign. Miles Palmer, the campaign manager, and the captains and team members are quite satisfied with the results achieved so far, and at a meeting last night it was decided to extend the time of its duration until Tuesday night next. At 7 p.m. on Tuesday there will be final winding-up meeting of all who have participated, and this will take place in the board room of the Gillespie Grain Co.

On Monday evening at 5 o'clock, a meeting of the constitution committee will be held in the office of Messr. Van Allen and Simpson, and on Wednesday evening a meeting of all members will be held for the purpose of electing a nomination committee for the election of officers. These nominations will go before a general meeting. Time and place of the Wednesday meeting has not yet been fixed.

Heavy Fog Delays "Punch" Dickins' Take-off For East

Owing to heavy fog "Punch" Dickins was unable to take off for Winnipeg as early as he had intended Saturday morning. Accompanied by Bill Tall and Lou Parmenter, his two mechanics, he left Edmonton for the lake by auto at dawn on Saturday, but the heavy fog along the road and over the surface of the lake made it difficult to see more than a few feet ahead.

About 8 a.m. the fog began to clear and it was possible to see a few feet, but "Punch" did not expect to be able to take off much before 10 a.m. The machine will take the northern route to Winnipeg, as it is on floats, but the return journey, with a land machine, will be flown over the proposed Winnipeg-Edmonton air mail route.

W. H. Stiles Again Heads Garden Club

The president of the Edmonton Horticultural and Vacant Lots Garden association for the year 1930 will be H. W. Stiles, while W. J. Cardy and Mrs. H. S. Dickson were elected first vice-president and second vice-president, respectively.

The executive elected for the coming year were: H. W. Nichols, Mrs. Thornton, Mrs. Cullimore, Miss Gladys Reeves, G. Wheeler, A. Pike, S. Taylor, C. Porter, W. Billingely, D. Ramsey and H. Holland.

Prizes For Essays On "Canadian Book Week"

"Why We Should Read Canadian Books," is Subject for School Children

Here's a chance for Edmonton school pupils to win big cash prizes, and at the same time perform a public service.

As part of the Canadian Book Week, which is being celebrated all over Canada during the week of November 3 to November 10, the Edmonton Branch of the Canadian Authors' Association and the Edmonton Journal and Edmonton Bulletin are offering cash prizes for the best essays on "Why we should read Canadian books."

All Pupils Eligible

Pupils from every High and Grade school in Edmonton are eligible to compete in the contest, the first prize for the best essay emanating from the High Schools being in gold pieces donated by the Edmonton Journal, while a similar first prize for the best essay written by a pupil of a Grade school will be donated by the Edmonton Bulletin. Second prizes in each class will be given by the Edmonton Branch of the Canadian Authors' Association. Additional prizes may be announced later.

Committee Will Make Awards

Preliminary judging will be carried out at the school, following which the two best essays from each school will be handed over to a committee of the Edmonton Branch of the Canadian Authors' Association. This committee will make the final choice of winners in each class.

The contest will get under way immediately. Essays, which should be from 400 to 600 words in length, must be in the hands of the committee by Saturday, November 2. Results will be announced as soon thereafter as possible.

Aestheticism Hits Junkins Name Changed

From the grotesque to the romantic! There is a thriving little town to the east of Edmonton which has hitherto borne the unpoetic name of Junkins. Order 69 issued from the office of the district superintendent of postal service at Edmonton dated October 11 states that in future this post office is to be known by the name of Wildwood. Junkins may not be more prosperous under the new name, but it sounds a whole lot better.

Central League Has Annual Meeting and Names New Officers

H. M. Sellar was elected president of the Central Community League at the annual general meeting held in the Victoria High School, Friday, October 18; vice-president is H. J. Marks, with I. P. Dickie elected as secretary-treasurer. The following were elected to the Executive committee: S. Grierson, Thomas Third, Mrs. W. Morrow, S. Robson, A. P. Aitken, F. T. Aitken, H. Piper, and C. G. Robson.

Objectives for the coming year were outlined as the paving of the north side of 107th avenue from 101st street to 111th street, the improving of 106th avenue, and the location of a recreation ground. A resolution was also passed asking for school traffic signs around the McDougall school. The improvements obtained in the last year from the city and the Hudson's Bay company mentioned by Thomas Thimird included gravelling 107th avenue, paving the subway, boulevarding and similar improvements.

Very encouraging reports were presented by the various committees, S. Grierson reporting the tennis club had had a very successful season, while the secretary-treasurer announced the league funds and property were in a very healthy condition, the bank balance being $208. With a paid up membership of 400, the Central Community League is one of the largest and most progressive in the city.

Motor Association Run To Wetaskiwin

A run to Wetaskiwin has been arranged by the Alberta Motor Association for Tuesday afternoon, October 22. Members will leave the offices of the association at 4:15 p.m. and lunch will be taken at Wetaskiwin at 6:15. About 20 members have already signified their intention of going, but several more entries are expected before zero hour.

FIRE CLAIMS AGAINST C.N.

Suit Arises Out of Fire in Trudeau Garage May 1 Last

Echoes of the fire which caused losses totalling about $90,000 in the Trudeau Service Garage, 10169 103 street, on Friday, May 11, 1928, were heard in the court house on Saturday when three claims were filed against the Canadian National Railways.

It was believed at the time by some, and it is alleged in the claims filed that the fire was caused by a short circuit in a C.N.R. truck which was being cleaned in the Trudeau Garage. Thus the plaintiffs in the three actions are suing the railway company for damages.

The largest of the three claims was filed by the Central Dry Goods, the amount being $8,045. Next in order is the claim of Lorne Hawley Bell for $1,045, and the third is for $045 filed by Lorne Hawley Bell and Robert James Duguid, carrying on business under the name of Edmonton Auto Parts.

All three claims are for goods destroyed in the fire.

Parlee, Freeman and Howson are acting for plaintiffs.

Other claims were filed against the C.N.R. shortly after the fire by Aime Trudeau and Brody's Limited, the largest losers in the fire.

Motorist In Smash; Fails To Return To Scene Of Accident

Driving between a standing street car and a standing auto owned by Frank Easton, 13244 100 avenue, at the corner of Jasper avenue and 115 street, at 5.15 p.m. on Friday, John McLeod, 24 Scott block, ripped one fender off the standing auto and nearly knocked down passengers alighting from the street car, according to a police report of the affair, which adds that Easton and H. D. Smith, 10124 124 street, chased McLeod to the corner of 124 street, before he stopped his car.

An application for a summons has been made on charges of failing to return to the scene of an accident, and passing a standing street car.

James A. Stovel, old timer and pioneer hardware merchant of this city, is lying seriously ill at his home, 9524 109A avenue.

Students Try Out Voices In Big Pep Rally

'Varsity's pigskin chasers will not lack for moral support of the "hey, hey, team" variety, according to a number of stentorian-voiced students who are making preparations to cheer the boys on to victory over the Saskatchewan stalwarts in today's game.

Firm believers that vocal exhortations are a great gainer of yards and help the tackling, to say nothing of the forward pass, gathered on the campus Friday night in what was termed a "pep rally."

And the voices were stentorian, indeed. The timid soul passing anywhere in the neighborhood of the big field might have been forgiven for imagining that a gathering of the Ku Klux Klan was in progress, as not satisfied with rendering the early evening hideous with vocal efforts, a huge bonfire was lighted, the reason for this being the desire of the cheer leaders to see that the cheerers' expressions were ferocious enough to daunt the invaders from the east.

"Doc" Hardie addressed the gathering on "College Enthusiasm," his words taking root in receptive soil. Glasgow and Priestly, well-known campus musicians, furnished the odd note of melody in distinction to the horrible sounds of voices, hoarse and otherwise, under the guidance of Ted Cohen who has charge of the rooters' section for the game this afternoon.

Breath Of Autumn Fills City Mart

The scent of autumn flowers was in the air this morning at the city market. Big yellow chrysanthemums at six for a dollar—were to be had for the buying, and they looked very charming. Bunches of smaller chrysanthemums were selling at 50 cents per bunch.

This week potatoes are $2 per bushel, an advance of 20 cents over last week and supplies not too big at that. Cabbages are plentiful, the big winter ones, the crinkled Savoy variety. Brussels sprouts, and the last of the cauliflowers, plenty for everybody. Celery is good and cheap.

Carrots and parsnips are not too plentiful. These two vegetables show a great deal of variation in size this winter, either being too large or too small for the housewife's taste.

Eggs and chicken are again very plentiful with the chicken of excellent quality. Crates of live birds were on sale everywhere.

EDMONTON TO KEEP STREETS WELL LIGHTED

Commissioner Announces Whiteway Lighting of Downtown Area

Whiteway lighting on downtown streets will continue every night until 11:30 p.m., Commissioner David Mitchell announced Saturday, following approval of a recommendation of William Barnhouse, superintendent of the electric light and power department. Up to now alternate lights were switched off at 10.30 p.m. on week nights and 11 p.m. on Saturday night. "This will involve a substantial increase in street lighting costs but we believe the change a necessary one and in keeping with Edmonton's growth," the commissioner stated.

A new sign of the Neon type may grace the civic block in the near future, Commissioner Mitchell stated Saturday that a suggestion to this effect, made by a public-spirited citizen, was under consideration. A report as to possible cost has been requested from William Barnhouse, superintendent.

Seeking Economic Method Utilizing Turner Valley Gas

Acting on behalf of the Dominion government, Dr. Ellsworth, of Kingston, Ontario, who is one of the foremost industrial chemists in the dominion has been carrying out investigations in the Turner Valley field in connection with the inquiry now proceeding with the object of ascertaining an economic method of utilizing the natural gases from the field.

Dr. Ellsworth says that the report from the commission will be presented to Ottawa it is hoped in a very short time. He is unable at the present to make any statements as to its findings, but holds out hope of a solution to the problem at an early date.

He is in Edmonton today, and visited among other places the office of the Alberta Trade Commissioner Howard Stutchbury. Dr. Ellsworth leaves tonight for the east.

Alleged by police to have had a flashlight and skeleton keys in his possession while lurking in a back alley at midnight on Friday, Wm. Pocha, no fixed abode, was arrested by detectives of the city police force and was lodged in the cells. He faces a nominal charge of vagrancy.

JOTS FROM GEOGRAPHY

THE GRAND CANYON OF THE COLORADO is 300 miles long, extending through Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Colorado. The width of the canyon is about ten miles, the walls of the canyon drop a sheer 4,000 feet to the roaring river below. The magnificent pinnacles of the plateau make one of the world's most colorful panoramas.

Sacrifice Sale

We still have a few used cars which we must sacrifice to the highest bidder. These are reconditioned and ready for service at prices which will surely be a pleasant surprise to the prospective car buyer. Among them are

One Studebaker, 1928, Commander, wire wheels, in excellent condition.

One Buick Sedan, reconditioned and in very nice running order, upholstering like new. A snap at $795

One Overland Sedan, new paint, in good running condition. At less money than it can be bought anywhere else. $465

One Oakland Sedan in good running condition and looking almost like new .. $550

We have several others in Studebakers, Buicks, Hudson, Chevrolets, and Fords, all at prices about 50 per cent of their actual value, but we are out of the car business and must sell them to the highest bidder. Call and see them at the old Union Garage, 10050 108 Street.

SENATE SITS FRIDAY WITH NEW MEMBERS

No Convocation Will be Held This Year, Says Registrar

Recommendations for degrees and diplomas, specialist's certificates, nurses certificates, and pharmacy licenses were made by the senate of the University of Alberta at its meeting held on Friday morning at 10 o'clock in the University Senate Chamber. Out-of-town members of the senate were all present. Five new members sat for the first time. They were Mrs. K. McCrimmon Love, Dr. G. B. Sanford, Dr. Oliver Boyd of Medicine Hat, Mr. George H. Ross, K.C., of Calgary, and Dr. R. B. Wells. It is interesting to note that Mrs. Love is the first woman to be elected to the university senate; other women have been members, but never before by election.

Those recommended by the committee on specialists in Medicine and surgery are:

Pediatrics, Dr. G. E. Swallow, Dr. Elizabeth Brunton.

Internal medicine, Dr. W. H. Scott, Dr. Heber C. Jamieson.

Ophthamology and Rhino-oto-laryngology, Dr. M. R. Levey, Dr. J. G. Young.

Surgery, Dr. A. R. Munroe, Dr. W. H. Hustler, Dr. W. F. Gillespie.

Radiology, Dr. E. M. Busby.

Anaesthesia, Dr. J. A. Blezard.

Psychiatry, Dr. D. L. McCullough.

Dermatology and venereal diseases, Dr. J. W. Auld.

Candidates recommended by the Faculty of Arts and Sciences for degrees include: Bachelor of Arts degree, Mr. Robert Percival Alexander, Miss Florence Muriel Millen; Bachelor of Science in Arts, Mr. Jacob Meyer Zeavin, Mr. De Larue Edmonds; Bachelor of Commerce, Miss Vera May Palmer, Mr. Ernest Elwyn Bowker; Bachelor of Science in Household Economics, Miss Theres Edweena McCaffary.

In Medicine

Recommendations made by the Faculty of Medicine are: Degree of Medical Doctor, Dr. Claude Greenberg.

The Faculty of Applied Science recommended that Mr. Millard Duncan Kemp receive his degree of Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering.

The diploma in Pharmacy was recommended by the School of Pharmacy for Mr. George Henry Stewart.

The board of examiners in Pharmacy recommended that Mr. F. T. Hamilton, Mr. Paul Abele and Mr. F. W. Smith be recommended for certificates for licenses to practice Pharmacy in the province of Alberta.

The following nurses are recommended for profession nurses' certificates by the board of examiners regarding candidates' examinations results: Allore, Dorothy Jean; Baker, Agnes J.; Baptist, Kathleen I.; Barron, C. May; Becker, M.; Biglands, Mary; Billsten, Ebba M.; Birch, Christina S.; Blaney, Irene Grace; Breyer, Margaret May; Brown, Gertrude; Burry, Dorothy Mae; Byers, Doris I; Caley, Renee; Clarke, Clara Catherine; Crickmay, Mary Agnes; Cross, Martha F.; Croteau, Irene M.; Day, Norma Shibley; Dean, Claretta; Dick, Audrey V.; Douglas, Margaret Jean; Dunn, Grace L.; Duxbury, Dorothy Jean; Dwelle, Vest Grace; Edgar, Margery; Ennis, Myrle Ellire; Forbes, Jean Alma; Fulton, Bertha L.; Gammon, Dorothy M.; Grant, Helen M.; Haworth, Jessie; Hayter, Iris Grace; Herbert, Mary; Hilborn, Ruth; Holm, Hilda A.; Jackson, Clara N.; Johnson, Evelyn Cecelia; Killoran, Margaret; Kruesel, Agnes; Lancaster, Gladys M.; Lesuik, Nadia; Lloyd, D. Ruth; McAnally, Cecilia C.; McAnally, A. M.; McDonald, Florence Mary; McHugh, Margaret; McTavish, Edythe M.; Morrell, Ivy Elizabeth; O'Donnell, Margaret; Palmer, Beatrice A.; Parker, Elizabeth Lucy; Pearson Keitha May; Phillips, Mina Beatrice; Picard, Eleanor; Porter, Vera Dorothy; Redge, Edna Lenore, Revell, Grace Eileen; Rosoman, Margaret H.; Rowell, Nina; Rowles, Mary; Sanford, Rose Dave; Scarff, Clara A.; Shearer, Elona Louise; Sneddon, Elizabeth; Symons, Alice; Thompson, Ruth; Wallace, Dora Frances; White, Clara; Williams, Enid Lillian; Williams, Elma Mary; Wittmack, Gertrude; Wyatt, Margaret Elizabeth; Yeates, Elva Mae.

These recommendations will be acted upon at the next Convocation of the University of Alberta. No Convocation will be held this year, according to Mr. A. E. Ottewell, registrar of of the university, so the presentation of degrees and diplomas will probably have to be postponed until the middle of next May, when the usual convocation is held.

FRESHMEN TO ELECT HEADS

Class Executive to be Chosen Before Christmas

The Freshmen of the university met together Wednesday evening for the purpose of discussing any business which demanded immediate attention from the class.

The meeting was called by D. Cameron, president of the Students' union, and, from this position, president of the Freshmen class till they elect a leader from their own ran's. Explaining his reasons for calling the meeting, he stated that it was intended to bring the Freshmen together and give them a chance to become more fully acquainted. The elections for the class executive will be held earlier this year than formerly, so that the business of the class could receive better attention than in the past. While no definite date has been set, it will fall before Christmas.

The immediate business was the election of a committee to take charge of the Freshman play which would appear on inter-year play night, Dec. 6. He left the details to be enlarged on by Miss Young, while he went on to speak of other business.

Particular stress was laid on the fact that, unless the students were bona fide members of the class their pictures would not appear in the class picture in the Year Book. The best idea was to join the class early, and get the work for the year started as soon as possible.

Miss Young, president of the Dramatic society, enlightened the meeting on the purpose of the year play. "Even though you may not be a Barrymore there is lots that you can do. The play is an enterprise for which the whole class is responsible. There must be someone to read plays and aid in the selection of a suitable one." The selection of a play is always made by the committee elected in conference with the executive of the Dramatic society. The committee elected would also have to decide on a date for a general try-out of all histrionic talent.

The election for the committee returned Miss Dorothy Bottom, convener, Rene Leblanc and Albert Cairns. These will have charge of selecting a number of suitable plays, and the appointment of a larger committee to read and criticize them.

Appointments Are Made In Gazette

By and with the advice of the executive council, His Honor Lieut. Gov. Dr. William Egbert has approved the following appointments:

Police magistrates—Alfred Earlin Kaiser, Vermilion; Earl E. Freeman, Innisfail and Richard Gunn, M[illegible]erthorpe.

Justices of the Peace—Joshua Edward Blore, Craigmyle; Vyvian John Lifford Young, Goodfare.

Coroners—Dr. Brabazon James Hallowes, Queenstown; Dr. James Ferguson Brunton, Rimbey.

Process issuer—Joseph Raoul La Riviere, Bonnyville; Frank L. Smathers, Mirror.

Sheriffs bailiffs — William Grant, Onion Lake; William D'Arcy Bennett Munson, Fort Fitzgerald; Alexander Bernhardt, Wetaskiwin.

Day In Jail For Stealing Dress

Mary Hyska, appeared in the criminal court on Friday charged with the theft at Holden on June 17 last, of one brown crepe satin dress and one navy flat crepe dress, valued at $20, the property of Linden and Larsen.

After hearing the plea, His Lordship, Mr. Justice Ives, pronounced sentence of 24 hours, commencing at 3 p.m. on Thursday.

As the sentence was pronounced at 3 p.m. accused was enabled to walk from the court room, discharged from justice.

Freed On Charge Of Obstructing Justice

Harry Kolmatiski was acquitted of a charge of obstructing justice, by Mr. Justice Ives, in the criminal court on Friday.

It was alleged that the obstruction occurred in April last when accused refused to vacate and deliver up possession of the property on which he was living.

Edward B. Cogswell, K.C., appeared for the crown and T. E. White for accused.

To give dual instruction to members of the recently formed Camrose local of the Edmonton and Northern Alberta Aero club, Pilot Instructor Maurice Burbidge left the city in a Moth light aeroplane Friday. He will return in about two days.

Civic Owned Flour Mill Is Favored

Going on record as favoring a city-owned and operated flour mill, and also a civic coal mine, members of the People's Political Educational Association passed a resolution to this effect at their regular meeting on October 15, according to a statement made by Vice-President W. R. Ball.

It will be one of the planks in the platform of candidates put forward by the association in the civic elections.

C.O.T.C. EXAM RESULTS OUT

Five Qualify for Rank of Captain After Writing Test

The results of the examinations written by various qualified members of the C.O.T.C. of the university have been bulletined.

Those who wrote for their Certificate "B" Infantry which qualifies them for the rank of captain, and were successful in passing the tests are as follows: W. J. Downs, F. J. Emmet, J. Garrison, J. R. B. Jones, and W. O. Peffers.

The results for the Certificate "A" Infantry were favorable to the following: A. Allen, S. V. Allen, J. Blair, J. E. Duggan, A. B. Evenson, W. T. Holgate, J. W. Hunter, W. J. Kocher, K. E. McShane, S. R. C. Nelson, E. D. M. Williams, and W. G. Yuskow.

A special Certificate "A" qualifies students taking medical courses for commissions in the Royal Army Medical Corp. Eight students passed the requirements for this certificate. They are W. S. Archibald, A. C. Boyce, J. W. Bridges, F. S. Hobbs, W. A. MacDonald, M. A. Nicholson, H. Scott, G. A. Stanley.

The chief purpose of the C.O.T.C. training has been to provide a standardized measure of military training for students who desire it during their university career. It enables them to qualify for Comm[illegible]ions in both infantry and the R.A.M.C. There is no compulsory attendance, all candidates being volunteers from the student body. That there is such a large a proportion of the undergraduates who take up the work speaks well for the training which it gives.

Since its organization the C.O.T. Corps at the university has been under the command of Lieut.-Col. F. A. Stewart Dunn.

Dean Wilson Gives Sound Advice To Engineer Students

"In conducting your own affairs as students your chief business should be the work towrds your degree. A wise disposition should be mde of your time, in order to cope with the greater problems with which you of this age must contend. The student of today is faced with a variety of distractions which his predecessor of twenty-five years ago never dreamt of," said Dean Wilson, of the Faculty of Applied Science in giving a heart to heart talk to the students of the Engineering society at the university on Friday.

"The considerable increase in enrollment in engineering for the term had more than confirmed the expectations of the faculty, and showed that the world outside the university was realizing the need for technically trained men. The fact that there are over 200 students taking engineering courses, had created a situation for which the university is not yet fully prepared," said Dean Wilson.

This increase, which is prevalent all over the world, had been viewed with alarm at one time, and practicing engineers had felt that the field was liable to overcrowding. Fortunately, events had shown that this was not the outcome, as while the obvious outlet for the students seemed to be purely engineering enterprises, it was evident that a vast number of those who received degrees, used them as a preparation for other fields of work.

Certain corporations of the present day demand the type of men who have graduated from engineering schools, as the mentl training received, and the habits of study cultivated, placed them in line for rapid promotion.

"This large influx of students into all engineering schools presents a situation which affects each individual," said Dean Wilson. "This is a world of competition, and the natural law states that 'The keener the competition, the higher the standards.'"

Mr. Cornish, honorary president of the society, gave a short address of welcome to the newcomers in its organization, and the heads of the various athletic organizations addressed the meeting in the interests of their teams. The first year representative was elected, D. Murray taking the position by acclamation.

DEATHS HERE HIGHER FOR PAST MONTH

Hospital Board Discusses Exchange of Lots in H.B. Reserve

No deaths were reported to the isolation hospital last month, but the total of all deaths, 34, was unusually high for the season of the year at the Royal Alexandra Hospital, according to the report of the superintendent, Dr. Anderson, presented at the monthly meeting of the hospital board there Friday night. Analysing the report, the superintendent said that of the 29 non-surgical deaths, 15 were of children under the age of one year.

There were 58 births in the hospital during the month under review but no maternal deaths were recorded, among the 570 admissions. Discharges totalled 567 during the month with a daily average attendance of 275 patients, which was an exceptionally light total. Operations totalled 243, of which 77 were in the major class and 166 of a minor nature.

A proposal contained in a letter from the city commissioners to exchange two lots on the Hudson's Bay reserve north of the hospital and on the opposite side of the road, with the Salvation Army for the construction of a maternity hospital, was referred to a special committee in order to ascertain the type of building it was desired to erect, and to obtain other particulars.

Considerable discussion followed the introduction of the new staff by-laws introduced in the report of the executive committee. Some anxiety was felt that certain doctors might be placed in an invidious position if these proposals were adopted, but after the superintendent had read the by-laws through clause by clause, they were carried unanimously. Reports of the building and lands committee and the finance committee were carried without discussion.

It was stated that although the work on the new wing has not been entirely completed, 50 probationers moved on Monday last on to the third and fourth floors, while authorization from Ottawa had enabled the hospital authorities to open a sub post office with which was combined a small tobacco and candy store run by the Records clerk. The meeting adjourned at 9 p.m.

Second Annual Conference Of Y. M. C. A. Here

Home Relations, World Brotherhood and Vocations will be the subjects for discussion at the second annual conference of the Y. M. C. A. of this city, to be held Saturday and Sunday. The party will be the guests of R. A. Robertson and Mrs. Robertson on their estate at South Cooking Lake.

J. T. Barrett, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., with five leaders and 21 members left by automobile early Saturday morning for the lake, where they will be joined by A. E. Ottewell, registrar of the University of Alberta, Prof. Roy McK. Miles, and G. W. Robertson, M.A., principal of Garneau High school, who will lead the discussions.

Sessions will be held Saturday afternoon and evening, and Sunday morning and afternoon, the party returning on Sunday evening. The commissariat department will be in the hands of the chief from the Y. M. C. A. camp at Jasper and a camp fire sing-song will be held Saturday night.

Demand for homesteads continues unabated. For the period from October 8th to the 15th, no less than 180 were filed at the Dominion Lands office, while during the corresponding period of last year the total was 50. There were four soldier settlements entered upon against two for the corresponding period of last year. On one day 63 homsteads were taken.

All its garden freshness is retained for you.

Ramsay MacDonald On Rialto Screen

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain will make his appearance at the Rialto theatre for three days, starting Saturday, when he will be shown in a special Metrotone News Reel, rushed here by direct mail by headquarters in New York and booked by special arrangements entered into by Manager William J. Long.

This reel, produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer, contains views of the tremendous welcome accorded the British premier and also includes talking sequences with the Prime Minister before the "mike." The Rialto is thought to be the first theatre in Canada to show this reel.

Facing Charge Of Reckless Driving

Alleged to have knocked down young Joe Adamchuk, 10972 102 street, at the corner of 101 street and 109A avenue, at 3.50 p.m. on Friday, Jos. Yasemchuk, of Bellis, has been charged by city police with reckless driving. The boy's sister narrowly escaped being involved in the crash also.

G. E. Pearce, 10904 98 street, heard a scream and looked up to see the boy rolling down the street like a shot rabbit. Measurements taken by police officers showed that the car had skidded for more than 80 feet after striking the boy.

Adamchuk's injuries were not serious and he was taken home in the car which struck him down.

IN an address to college students, the Premier of Canada recently compared life to a battle. Armed with higher knowledge, a young man may march on to assured achievement. But equipped only with a minor education, his chances for success are correspondingly small. How will your child fare in the struggle? Why not make sure that he will come out on top by taking out the new Great-West Educational Policy at a cost of a few cents a day?

THE GREAT-WEST EDUCATIONAL POLICY

is the surest and most economical means of ensuring a successful career for your son or daughter. Example: You deposit a certain sum each year with the Company. When the time comes, the money is available to complete his university course. If, meanwhile, you die or become disabled (as defined in the policy), the Company will pay all the remaining premiums. If your child dies before age eleven, the money will be returned to you with 5 per cent. compound interest. Should he die after age eleven, the full amount of the policy—plus substantial profits—will be paid to you as ordinary insurance.

Protection with Profit

Great-West Life surplus earnings have always been unusually large—with the result that policy-holders have consistently enjoyed generous profits. These profits, left with the Company, earn interest guaranteed never to be less than 5¼ per cent. Actually the Great-West Life is paying 5½ per cent.

MISS PAT

A Romance of the air

by ELENORE MEHERIN

Girls of Yesteryear Cultivated Sex Appeal As Flamingly Flapper

Out To Get Their Man Like 1929-30 Model "Miss Pat"

Author of Edmonton Bulletin's New Serial of Air-minded Youth Strong for Modern Girl—Says Bygone Damsel Acted a Part

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—"Why write of girls? Why not? Nothing is more interesting to the girls. And—incidentally—to the men."

And that's the answer she gave as she clutched little Terry Meherin Van Becker in her arms out in Sea Cliff, Calif., where she is at home to callers. And where, as Mrs. John D. Van Becker, she keeps her watchful eye over three months old Terry and four year old David.

Joy of Living

What joy of living is reflected in Miss Meherin's eyes as peppy David risks his young neck curving around the driveway on his kiddie car. And the same reaction follows the cooing of Terry.

Best of all, the motherly twinkling of the eye is reflected in her views toward the modern woman, which, incidentally, find expression in decription and action of her new heroine—Pat Dawn.

"Yes, Miss Pat is a girl of TODAY," Miss Meherin explained. "This is said, and immediately there is a picture of a girl with a cigarette dangling from highly manicured fingers, lips painted a bright orange red, rolled stockings and a bored, world-weary air. She is supposed to have nothing on her mind but jazz, nothing in her heart but vanity."

Girls of Yesterday

And then Miss Meherin recalled those who lived before, those who were supposed to have been so staid in their worldly behavior.

"The sentimentalists sigh for the dear girl of yesteryear," the talented romancer added. "They forget that that bygone damsel wore bustles, 'rats' in her hair, corsets that gave her an eighteen-inch waist, and that she cultivated sex appeal.

"They did this just as flamingly as the girl of today practices her lures. Indeed, the lily maids of yore were brought up on the ways and means of pleasing men. And then our grandmothers told their daughters, 'Men don't like that kind of a girl—be shy—be ladylike—be chaste!'

"Men Chief Goal"

"Virtue was practiced rigorously because it was a best-seller in the market for men. And men have always been the chief goal for women. Men are, as somebody has said, the natural career for women. They always were.

"Why is the whole world shaking a big stick at the Miss Pat of today? Is it only because she is bolder? Because she is frankly 'being her age'? I think it's because she's so unsettled—so tragically uncertain."

As young David took the banisters on "high," the creator of such girls as Sandy, Jerry and Chickie told how the new story will be somewhat of a departure in her style of serial. How it is going to be so very active. How the modern thrill of aviation—the planes, the men who fly them—will govern much that transpires with this new Miss Pat, the modern girl.

Free for What?

"Women are free, but free for what?" she continued. "They may do as they please, but they don't know what they please. Yesterday a woman loved, married and had children. This was a universal creed. Today women wonder if any of these pursuits are worth while.

"Will it take another thousand years before women measure up—free and inspired enough to value the magnificent privileges of their sex?

"Yes, I mean having children and rearing them. This, I believe, the women of tomorrow will appreciate for the incredible superiority that it gives. I don't think a woman deserves credit for having children, neither do I feel she is a benefactor of the race.

"Glorious Chance"

"When she has them deliberately, as, of course, the women of tomorrow will, she is merely seizing a glorious chance to live, to adventure, to enrich herself emotionally.

"The girl of today will not say that she is sacrificing herself on the altar of duty when she bears children—she is training herself to consider this not a duty but a privilege

"Miss Pat will typify the girl who is emerging with this courage, this acceptance of life as precious and sweet."

This new philosophy of motherhood, really of womanhood, does not bode for a vanishing of romance, of pretty life—not in the Meherin mind, as is presently to be shown in "Miss Pat."

The men in the play. They are to be as natural as Miss Pat—as far as their respective views toward life are concerned. The sharp, young aviator. A fellow much like Lindbergh or Byrd. The others, true to life in their own parts

And as Miss Meherin completed the advance portrayal of the gem which starts in the Edmonton Bulletin on Thursday, October 24, young David gave his drum a beating with the wrong limb, which occasioned her departing comment: "If children are not important—neither is life. And what have we?"

Mick the Miller, an Irish three-year-old dog, is believed to be the fastest in the world. He was bred and trained by an Irish priest, who recently sold him for $4000.

Growing strength of the political faction headed by Queen Marie has been reported.

People Of Stone Age Still Live On Island

Crocodile Islanders Have No Religion, Money or Hunting Weapons

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Oct. 19.—The existence of a people of stone age culture on a group of small islands in the Arafura sea, north of Australia, was vouched for here Friday by W. Lloyd Warner, anthropologist, upon his return from an exploring expedition under the auspices of the Rockefeller foundation.

Warner said he had lived among the Aborigines on the Crocodile islands, off the northern coast of Australia. The Crocodile islanders have no religion and have not reached the stage where they can use bows and arrows, he said.

"The inhabitants of the Crocodile islands are the last stone age people in the world," Warner said. "They cook their food in holes among hot rocks. They have polygamy. Their only weapon is a stone-headed spear. The women do most of the work. There is no money, everything is by exchange."

Warner said the islanders were big and strong, had an elaborate social organization with marked rules of conduct and that their children were obedient. They had no liquor, but used a primitive tobacco, he said.

Warner is on his way to Harvard university.

Education Does Not Improve Brains Says Psychological Chief

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

HAMILTON, N.Y., Oct. 19.—Brains are a matter of relativity, says Donald A. Laird, director of Colgate University psychological laboratory. Physical differences are as nothing compared with the enormous differences that may be found in mentality, Dr. Laird says.

"Edcation does not seem to improve one's regular equipment of brains," he added. "Children who are found by tests to have a little less than the usual modicum of brains in the first grade are still a little behind the average when they are in the fifth grade, and in case they reach the eighth grade, they still test a little below.

"Intelligence is not increased by going to college. Neither is it a chance affair. Parents with brains much above the average have children with brains much above the average. Brains seem to be quite definitely inherited, just as eye color, stature, or temperament.

"If education does not improve intelligence, what makes college men successful? Of hundreds of thousands of men tested in the army during mobilization, the average score was 65. After the war the same test was given to a large number of students entering college for the first time. The average score by these freshmen was 150.

"This does not mean that the college freshman has twice as much intelligence as the army man, since the army score does not start with zero intelligence. But this difference does mean that the ordinary college man is much better equipped with brains than the ordinary man on the streets."

Girl Finds Snake 6 Feet Long Asleep At Foot Of Her Bed

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

PARIS, Oct. 19.—A snake is a very strange and indiscreet creature, thinks a young French girl living near Mulhouse, after discovering that a six-foot one had been sleeping on the foot of her bed for three weeks.

For some time past she noticed that there were inexplicable noises in her bedroom at night, but as she was unable to determine the cause, usually turned over and went to sleep.

One night, however, the snake became bolder, and this was its undoing. Seeing that mademoiselle was making little objection to his company, he crept under the covers and, wriggling closer to his companion, finally awakened her.

When she saw her visitor the girl shrieked for help, but finally managed to kill the snake alone.

These Newlyweds Thought Firemen Charivari Party

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CANTON, S.D., Oct. 19.—Charles Reynolds, 69-year-old bridegroom, had known all about charivari parties for a long time before he was married and he and his bride, a little younger than himself, determined that no such racket as those parties create would be allowed to disturb them. In consequence their house came near burning up.

When the couple got home from the wedding they lighted a fire and were making themselves a nice cup of coffee. The racket began but Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds smiled wisely and sat still when poundings on the door began. Finally they heard someone on the roof and thought that was goinog a little too far. They went out to investigate. It was the fire company putting out a fire that had been started from the kitchen chimney.

LOUISEVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19.—People being urged to adopt the latest diet or other fad in food today had the warning that food faddism is a menace.

Modern science, declared Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Journal, before the National Restaurant Association convention here yesterday, urges a "breakfast that will include fresh fruit, cereal, milk, butter, bread and perhaps eggs and ham or bacon; a luncheon that will have a salad, some vegetables and something to sustain energy, and a dinner that is complete from soup to nuts."

Woman Finds $22,295 Buried In Rusty Cans

Was Cleaning House when She Noticed Top of Sealed Tin

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 19.—Buried treasure, not Spanish doubloons in conventional iron-bound casket, but United States currency and gold amounting to $22,295, in two rusty tobacco cans, was uncovered in Butte recently, it was learned Saturday.

The find was made by Mrs. Sarah J. Quinn, pioneer Butte resident, in the cellar of her home.

The money is thought to have been the property of Thomas Foran, 65 years old, old-time Butte mine watchman, who died here last Jaunary. He had lived in Mrs. Quinn's home as roomer and boarder for thirty years. After his death she was appointed administratrix of the estate, at that time thought to amount to $6,062.

While cleaning the cellar, the woman noticed the top of a can protruding from the dirt floor. Investigating, she found two tobacco cans tightly sealed. She took them to the lawyer for the estate and they were found to contain $22,295, of which $325 was in gold.

Nerviest Husband Divorced By Wife

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Chester Patterson today was awarded the blue ribbon for "nervy" husbands by Superior Judge Hugh J. Crawford, who granted a divorce to Patterson's wife, Mary L. Patterson, very French and petite.

Speaking with just a trace of accent the young wife, now living in Hollywood, testified she hadn't seen Patterson for two years until she received a telegram from him asking her to send him $20 to New York to pay for a passport, "so he could get even farther away."

"And did you send it to him," asked Judge Crawford.

"Certainly not," the wife replied, adding that she later got a very "sweet" letter from Patterson, posted from Paris, in which he wrote, "So this is Paris. Me for it for the rest of my life."

"Well, in a way, you two have traded even," commented the judge in granting the decree after the girl testified her real home was Paris, and her husband's was Hollywood. "Now he's living in your home town, and you in his."

To Erect Monument To Super-Speed At Daytona Beach, Fla.

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Oct. 19—Erection of a monument to super-speed is being planned here, where most of the major automobile straightaway trials have been staged in recent years. Plans call for its erection on one of the small islands in the meandering Halifax river, which separates the smooth, wave-lapped stretch of natural ocean speedway from the mainland.

On the monument are to be inscribed the names and achievements of the makers of all officially recognized world speed records, which date back to 1898, when Chasseloup-Laubat, the Frenchman, astounded the world with a speed of 39 miles an hour. Since that time the automobile speed record has been broken 31 times by 25 drivers, a list including such familiar names as Barney Oldfield, Ralph DePalma, Tommy Milton and Henry Ford who in 1903 set a record of 91.37 miles an hour in his famous old "999."

The Daytona Beach speedway has been the scene of every record-breaking achievement since Sir Henry Segrave of England startled the world in 1927 by attaining, for the first time, an automobile speed of 200 miles an hour. Since then, the world's straightaway speed record has been boosted to the present mark of 231.362 miles an hour, which Sir Henry set here last spring after his old mark of 203.79 had twice been broken, once by a fellow countryman, Capt. Malcolm Campbell, and once by an American, the late Ray Keech of Philadelphia.

Cleveland Trains Auto Mechanics

BY JAMES F. DONAHUE

CLEVELAND, Oct, 12.—A public school for automobile mechanics, the building and instructors for which are furnished by the Board of Education and much of the equipment by automobile manufacturers and dealers of Cleveland, is supplying a long felt want in automobile circles here—good auto mechanics.

At the Cleveland Trade School here an extension apprentice course in auto mechanics is given over a period of three years. Tution is free. The last two years of the course the students work in service stations in the city for a set wage and part of their time is spent in school.

"The day of the haphazard automobile mechanic is passed," says J. A. Roenigk, related subjects instructor of the auto mechanics department of the school. "Here in our school we take in applicants and weed out the best so that after three years of combined theoretical and practical work, we turn out a mechanic with a knowledge of every kind of car and its component parts, whereas a like number of years spent in any one dealer's station would acquaint him with only one make of car."

Dealers Back Training

The school works in co-operation with the Cleveland Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers Association. The latter outfit is the outlet for the finished product the school turns out.

"The dealers have expressed their satisfaction with results obtained here and their preference for school trained boys over those taken in direct from the streets with no knowledge of mechanics or automobile principals," Roenigk says.

The school has been operating for three years. Owing to the careful selection of applicants made by M. D. Jones, principal of the school, the enrollment is held down. In the three years represented by the three classes now attending school here there are 86 pupils, 54 of which are in the first year, 18 in the second, and 14 in the third. In addition, the school trains special classes sent by automobile manufacturers and dealers.

To enter the trade, the applicant must not be under 15 years of age, and the average age runs about 17. He must have completed eight or more years at school and pass examinations for mechanical ability, general intelligence and physical fitness.

His first year is spent entirely at the school. In a shop fully equipped with the latest machinery, he works on regular customers' cars under the supervision of competent instructors. He punches a time card when he enters the shop and punches another when he starts a job. His time is tabulated just as it is done in a regular shop.

Work done on cars covers every angle of automotive mechanics. The only cost to owners is for replaced parts and a little additional cost for overhead encountered in keeping up work, machine shop, plumbing, carpentry and electrical work are taught the department.

In a machine shop the applicants are taught to grind valves, shape tools and do other mechanical duties. In a large room several motors are mounted on blocks and are periodically dismantled and put together by the students. In another room is a large blackboard, several desks, a library and a complete chassis. Here the theoretical side of auto mechanics is taught the student. His time is divided between this room and the shop, and between these two divisions he picks up in addition to mechanics some English, hygiene, economics, science, civics and mathematics.

After his first year, the apprentice seeks a dealer who will sign his apprenticeship papers and then continues his school work.

During the second year of his apprenticeship, the applicant is put on a sliding wage scale, working two weeks in an outside shop and studying two weeks in school. During this period his wages start at 25 cents an hour and increase to 34 cents an hour at the end of the second year.

Pay Raised Before Graduation

The third year finds the apprentice working all of his time in an outside shop with the exception of four hours weekly spent in the school. His pay during this period increases from 37 cents an hour to 50 cents an hour. At the end of his three years' course, he receives a diploma from the school.

"By the time he is graduated," says Roenigk, "the student has become a good general mechanic, capable of making repairs and adjustments on engines, magnetos, starting and lighting systems and carburetors. He is able to take down, overhaul and repair all parts of any standard chassis, including transmissions, rear axle, front axle and power plants. He can bore and grind cylinders, fit pistons, adjust bearings, grind, reseat and set valves. He also understands the various instruments he has to apply to his work and numerous other things that can be only absorbed in a school."

While systems similar to this are being operated in several other cities, the Cleveland plan is thought to be unique in the field. Other traders, such as building, foundry and pattern pentry and electrical work are taught here.

It Hurts To Walk!

Detroit, it seems, has the system, and one that could be well adopted here in Edmonton. There drivers who park their automobiles in violation of a traffic ordinance, may return to a scene devoid of their cars. The police will have towed such cars into the pound.

And the only way such drivers could get them again would be to go to police headquarters, or wherever those cars were towed, and pay their fines—plus the cost of towing

It is a most effective blow against the "fixers." Here no "fixing" can be done unless it is done openly with the knowledge of the police officers involved. At any rate, even if a driver can have his fine and towing cost cancelled, he still has to face the inconvenience of going to the pound to get his machine.

Those drivers, therefore, who persistently park their cars in restricted spots defiant of the police, will think again if they have to take a taxi or street car to get their cars out of hock. It is the inconvenience that will make them think twice before parking illegally, if it can't be the fine. And in many cases this would seem to work better.

How's She Hittin? Hints On Car Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN

Starting will begin to get a little more difficult and troublesome as the cold weather approaches in most parts of the country. The trouble, however, can be averted if proper precautions are taken and the motorist knows how to start his motor properly.

The reason why a motor fails to start as easily in cold weather as in warm is because of the large proportion of cold air that is mixed with the gasoline through the carburetor. This makes a cold, dry mixture. At the same time, the region around the spark is so cold that all the heat given out by the first sparks is absorbed by the cold metal of the cylinder head, the cold water in the cooling system and the cold, dry fuel mixture.

It takes several hot sparks, therefore, to heat up the cylinder head enough to permit the fuel to burn quickly.

In order to speed up this process of burning the fuel, the practice is to increase the proportion of gasoline to air in the fuel mixture. This affords the spark in each cylinder head to light the fuel more easily. The first injections of the heavier fuel mixture, however, is no so much to start the motor going quickly as it is to heat up the combustion chamber and its surrounding cooling chamber, in order to allow easier combustion of following injections of fuel.

As a further step in warming up the engine by this process, the choke is pulled out in order to prevent air from entering the carburetor and mixing with the fuel there. The resultant "mixture" is really no mixture at all, but pure gasoline entering the combustion chambers to be lighted by the spark and to heat up the motor.

This expediency of holding out the choke, however, must not be overrated, or the driver doing so will find the engine stalling on him—overchoked. The choke may be held out all the way when starting, but should be only part way out until the engine is warmed up. Then it should be forced all the way in, permitting the carburetor to mix the requisite amount of air with the gasoline to make drivink efficient and economical.

• • •

Choking while starting is not any too good for the motor. But until a way is found to warm up the engine before starting, so that the right fuel mixture can be injected from the start without trouble, choking has to be resorted to.

While this starting process is mostly for the purpose of warming up the motor, it also does at least part of the engine. Many motorists mistake its work in the form of turning over this for the cue to get going. It is wrong and costly.

Putting a load on the engine while it is cold and is only in the process of being warmed up is hard on all the wearing parts. The oil hasn't had time enough to work its way up along the cylinder walls and through the bearings. The gasoline that is being injected in a heavier mixture than ordinarily is not being burned through thoroughly and some of it is escaping unburned into the crankcase to mix with the lubricating oil. And, if the car is moving, the rush of air through the radiator is cooling the water, when in fact it should be warmed up to the temperature at which the engine will operate efficiently.

Thus getting started before the engine has been warmed up sufficiently prevents its efficient and economical operation.

A minute or two longer in the garage each day may mean a year or two longer life for the car.

DOM. MOTORS LIMITED HOLD AUTUMN SALON

Complete Line of New Ford Cars to be Shown Next Week

Edmonton is to have its first opportunity for viewing a complete line of Ford Passenger Cars, the occasion being the Ford Autumn salon opening Tuesday, October 22 at the Dominion Motors Ltd. Showrooms.

In announcing this salon, Mr. Fred Charley, manager, states that it has been his ambition to present a full line of the products of the Ford Motors Company of Canada, Limited to Edmonton motorists. "We are delighted to have this opportunity to give our many friends in this city and surrounding country a better idea of the complete manner in which the Canadian Company is equipped to meet all transportation needs. It has not been possible before this week to arrange for a full complement of body types for presentation at any one time.

"We shall have demonstration cars available at all hours. If anybody wishes to be driven to and from the salon, we shall be glad to call for them in a Model A car. We hope that all will feel free to telephone such requests to us."

The outstanding features of the salon will be a body type that is new to local car owners. It is the three-window Fordor Sedan. This is a type of car for which much demand has been felt in this section and its appearance at Edmonton for the first time is expected to occasion much interest.

Other passenger cars, included in the special salon, are the Phaeton, the DeLuxe convertible Cabriolet, the Sport Roadster, the Sport Coupe, the Roadster, the Town Sedan and Tudor Sedan.

The three-window Fordor Sedan possesses many points exclusive in the low price automobile field. In addition to its four doors, enabling the greatest ease in entering and leaving the car, this type commends itself especially because of the extra riding space that has been built into it, advantage having been taken of every inch of available room to assure its occupants the maximum of comfort. Seats are wide and of the lounge type, richly upholstered. The three windows provide unusual vision. Its exterior is distinctive, a stream-line effect being given by the length of the narrow belt moulding, the raised panel on the Cowl and the roll belt beneath the wide windows. The interior is provided with arm rests, flexible robe rail, an oval bowl light in the rear compartment and paneling around the doors and on the front compartment seat. This Sedan is available in an attractive variety of color schemes.

One of the parts of an automobile that is apt to escape attention although it has a very definite bearing on car performance is the gaskets. Engineers have by constant research proven that new car performance can be maintained in a car to a degree by periodic renewal of the pressure gaskets in the motor.

STUDEBAKER IS SELECTED BUS WORK BY RLYS.

That the automobile is rapidly establishing itself as a valuable adjuct to rail transportation is clearly emphasized by the purchases of Studebaker passenger busses by leading electric and steam railways in the United States.

Owing to the greatly reduced investment and a significant decrease in operation costs, railroads are leaning to supplementary bus transportation, especially for shorter inter-city hauls, where this form of travel insures more economical, better, more comfortable and cleaner service to the passenger.

Studebaker busses in operation are largely the 115 horsepower, straight eight, parlor car type, designed to accomodate from twenty-two to twenty-five passengers. For inter-city use also Studebaker busses are in demand. Here, too, the pronounced rider appeal in appearance and comfort plus proved mechanical excellence, economy and quiet operation have brought about wide-spread acceptance of bus transportation.

More Room More Power and Speed...

Aside from being the most beautiful, the new "70-B" for 1930 is also the largest and most powerful Willys-Knight ever offered at so little cost. Its long wheelbase has now been made still longer, giving still greater roominess and inside comfort and adding to its graceful sweep of line. Interior refinements include toggle straps, rear-seat arm rests and rich upholstery.

The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine gives high uniform compression at all times, at all speeds, and with any gas—and is the only type of engine that keeps growing smoother and quieter with use. Rugged seven-bearing crankshaft reduces vibration to a minimum, while the car's improved frame construction gives extra strength and rigidity.

To be Up-to-Date Means to be Up-to-Chrysler

When anything new is produced, there are always those who create and those who follow.

In the change to balloon tires, some makers asserted the new type would never succeed. Four-wheel brakes found some who disastrously supported the two-wheel design. And today, there are engineers who decry the Multi-Range Gear Shift and the Down-Draft Carburetor.

Chrysler has never been among those who shun new things—if the new be better than the old.

The public acclaim for Chrysler, instead, has been based on Chrysler's pioneering or ready acceptance of those new creations which have made motoring safer, more comfortable, surer and more economical.

To be always ahead of or abreast of the times, but never to experiment on the public is the real foundation of Chrysler success.

You who prefer the latest, the most advanced, the best, have made Chrysler the most copied car in the world.

Because Chrysler has built the kind of cars you up-to-the-minute people want, you have given Chrysler the greatest success in the history of automobile building. We invite your most critical inspection.

Saskatchewan and Alberta Grid Teams Meet at Varsity Stadium Today

GOOD FOOTBALL EXHIBITION EXPECTED TO BE WITNESSED

Great Punting Display Certain to be Seen When Hess and Dempster Appear With Opposing Squads—Saskatchewan Has Two Wins to Credit.

WHAT is expected to be one of the outstanding Canadian rugby fixtures of the season locally is scheduled at Varsity stadium this afternoon when Coach Wally Sterling's University of Alberta lock horns with the University of Saskatchewan gridders in a Western Canada Intercollegiate Union game. Play is billed to get underway at three o'clock.

Coming here with two successive intercollegiate triumphs to their credit, the easterners are favored by many to finish out ahead, but there are many local followers of the fall pastime who are looking for a win for Wally Sterling's fighting team of student gridiron gladiators.

HESS AND DEMPSTER SURE TO BE WATCHED

One of the features of this afternoon's struggle at the halls of learning on the South Side is the expected punting duel between two of the most prominent pigskin booters in the west. Freddy Hess, Alberta star, will match kicks with Harry Dempster, brilliant kicker of the visitors, and a fine aerial exhibition is looked for by all Edmonton fans.

Varsity needs a win to keep in the running for the Western Canada Intercollegiate Union championship and Coach Sterling has been driving his men hard the past week in an effort to round out a machine capable of giving the team from the province to the east one of the hardest battles they have had this season. While the squad suffered the loss of Captain Ken Thompson, husky middle wing, and Hutton, a classy end, through injuries, the U. of A. student aggregation will be a determined outfit when they take the field this afternoon and hope to hand the Saskatchewan twelve a setback that will put themselves right in the thick of the running for the conference honors.

Have Strong Team

The visiting team has a great reputation this year and it would appear from their performances to date that they have the material to back it up. They possess a scintillating group of backfielders and a strong line and, when everything is considered, there are few weak spots in the whole machine. A win today would just about cinch the title for the green and white and that they will be trying their hardest to chalk up a victory is certain. They have on victory over Alberta to their credit already this season and the result of today's battle will be watched with interest all over the prairies.

It is known that Saskatchewan will be represented by the strongest line-up that has worn its colors this fall and, although Varsity's team was not konwn up until late last night, they are sure to put the strongest possible squad on the field for the encounter.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Connie Mack once had a pitcher, Jack Nabors, who lost 19 games in succession . . . Some of the men who batted against Joe McGinnity had to be iron, too, because when McGinnity was wild he was terrible. . . . He set a record in 1900 by hitting 41 batters. . . . CASUAL WATER

If a ball on the putting green lies in casual water, or if casual water intervene between a ball lying on the putting green and the hole, the ball may be played where it lies or may be lifted without penalty and placed by hand either within two club lengths directly behind the spot from which the ball was lifted, or in the nearest position to that spot which is not nearer the hole and which affords a putt to the hole without water intervening.

If the ball lie so near casual water that the water interferes with the player's stance, it may be treated as if it lay in casual water.

Strathcona Curlers to Meet on Monday

Curlers and those contemplating taking part in this winters sport are asked to attend the semi-final meeting of the Strathcona Curling Club being held on Monday, October 21 at 8 o'clock, in the club rooms.

The club officials are anxious to see a good attendance on hand so that they can rest assured that this will be the biggest year in the history of the club.

1929 AVERAGES CIVIL SERVICE CRICKET CLUB

Individual Records for Past Season Are Now Released

The following are the batting and bowling averages of the Civil Service Cricket Club for the season which has just closed.

This club was fortunate enough to finish amongst the first four teams in the first half of the season, but did not do so well in the games for the Press Cup. Although reposing at the bottom of the league when the games finished, a very enjoyable season was experienced and the players are not at all disheartened. Next year with the addition of another bowler and one or two batsmen, it is expected and sincerely hoped that this club will give the Incogs and other teams a real fight for the championship.

Insofar as the averages given below are concerned, it is only fair to point out that Ronnie Butler had his best bowling when he captured practically all of the wickets for few runs on August 10 against the Incogs in a game which was latter thrown out by the league officials, and subsequently is not included in these figures.

Batting Averages

Andy Tells Good One On Himself

ITS A TOUCHDOWN ANDY,—THE OLD GAME IS ON ICE !!!!
YES—BUT TH' H—L OF IT IS—I HAVN'T GOT THE BALL !!!
THE BALL

BY AL DEMAREE

(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

The late Andy Smith, the famous old coach who made football history in California, once told me a football story that I think will bear repeating.

"In my younger days," said Andy, "I was taking part in what I considered a very important game. Neither eleven had been able to score all afternoon and only a few minutes of the second half were left. With the ball on our forty yard line, our oppenents fumbled and the ball jumped into my arms. I lit out for the distant goal with four or five pursuers on my heels. Just as I touched the line they all hit me at once and down I went and the ball got away from me. My teammates thought I had made a touchdown and were slapping me on the back and wildly congratulating me as I lay on the ground.

" 'Great work old boy,' they were shouting.

"I'll never forget their epressions as I looked up and said, 'Yes! but unfortunately I haven't got the ball'. "

TORONTO HAS STRONG HOLD TRACK HONORS

Three Points in Front of McGill Friday College Meet

VARSITY STADIUM, Toronto, Oct. 19.—University of Toronto has a single hold on the senior intercollegiate athletic meet here Friday, with sixty points to the Montrealers fifty seven. The one-mile relay race, to be run today at half time of the McGill-Varsity rugby game, will settle the issue, but McGill would have to win this event and Varsity finish third for the Easterners to forge ahead. Should Varsity finish first or second, they will hold the title. In Friday's meet, five points were scored for a win, three for second and one for third.

Queen's University, of Kingston, had a small representation and failed to capture a first place. They scored a total of nine points. Varsity, after dropping behind, came out in the final event of the day—the 440 yard dash—to run their opposition into the one-two. Queens took third place.

Granite Curling Club Meeting on October 28

The semi-annual meeting of the Granite Curling Club will be held in the rink on Monday, October 28, at 8 p.m. President D. V. S. Kaufman in the chair.

Arrangements for the winter's activities will be made.

A full attendance of members is requested and any strangers or new curlers wishing to join the club are cordially invited to be present.

TITLE HOLDER WINS ANOTHER

Mrs. R. H. Horne, Alberta Provincial Champion and holder of numerous titles took another trophy when she defeated Mrs. Bert Gee in the final for the Erlinger Trophy yesterday.

Both finalists were forced to play a number of stiff matches to eliminate the field of high class golfers entered before qualifying for the final.

The event was a handicap competition and the winner was forced to allow some of her competitors as many as fifteen strokes during the elimination play.

One dollar a mile was the cost of propelling the Graf Zeppelin on its 20,000-mile flight around the world.

INTERNATIONAL SOCCER GAME BILLED TODAY

English Eleven to Meet Ireland in First Engagement

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The first of the series of International soccer matches takes place today in Ireland, England being the visiting team. The elevens have been announced as follows.

England: Brown, Cresswell, Bleakinsopp, Edwards, Hart, Barrett, Hine, Bradford, Stephenson, Brooks.

Ireland: Scott, McCluggage, Hamilton, Miller, Elwood, McCleery, Duggan, Rowley, Bambrick, Cummings, Kavanagh.

In league games in England, Leeds United, who play Birmingham at Leeds, look like winning out and improving their position at the head of the championship table in the first division. Leicester City, second team, have to play at Aston where the Villa team will be a hard nut to crack. Portsmouth, who have not yet won a game, appear to have a chance to come out on top as they play Manchester United at Portsmouth. In Scotland, Aberdeen the league leaders, clash with Hearts at Edinburgh and a fine even struggle is expected.

Garneau Triumphs Over Victoria Squad, Senior High School Rugby Game

GET SHUTOUT VICTORY OVER NORTH SIDERS

Reg. Moir in Limelight When Winners Hang Up 18-0 Count

Jumping into the lead early in the game with a try, a kick to the deadline, and a field goal—all scored by Reg Moir, with the exception of the punt scored by Giffen—Garneau seniors not only held their advantage but increased it in their postponed game with Victoria High School at the South Side Athletic Grounds last night when they defeated a battling Vic squad, 18 to nil.

By pressing the play into Vic territory most of the time, the Garneau team placed themselves in position to score points by field goals twice in the first half of the game. On these occasions Moir and his trained toe made the best of the opportunity and along with a try by him in the first quarter they accounted for a dozen points in the first half. The other six came as the result of a well earned try by Shandro and a convert of the same touch in the last period.

For the winners, Shandro, Moir and Giffen were the pick of the squad while McCeig and Richard were the best for the losers.

Despite the fact that Eric Duggan, refereeing, hustled the plays into action the game finished in almost dark and the result that many end runs were not noticed until the ball carrier had gained plenty of ground.

Get Early Start

Garneau kicked off and after stopping the Vic team started journeying towards the visiting goal and after repeated tries Moir got over for the games opening score. These points were followed by three more from the educated foot of Moir who dropped a pretty field goal between the bars making the score stand eight to nothing in favor of the home team. Before the period had ended Garneau had added a single by a punt to the deadline on Giffen's kick from in close. The score at the end of the period showed that Garneau were a little superior and better drilled in their plays.

Another By Moir

Vic started the second stanza in possession of the ball but lost it to Garneau on a fumble. After they had worked into position Moir put another between the bars making his total read eleven points scored. Victoria stiffened up on their defensive system from this point and they stopped the Garneau efforts almost in their tracks while their own ball carriers were doing a little ground gaining. McCaig uncorked a nifty fifty-yard run when he slipped around the left end, leaving the opposing wings standing in their tracks.

On the next play the advantage was counterbalanced by a fumble that lost them twenty of the hard earned yards. Play at the half time was in mid-field with the Garneau aggregation still on the long end of a 13 to 0 count.

Vic Holds Them

After kicking off the Victoria team suffered a setback in the form of an injury to one of their stars, Jimmy McCaig took one on the chin on the first play after the second half whistle. Garneau struggled hard to gain ground against an inspired fighting machine and twice advanced the ball in close only to be forced to kick and then see the Vic booter lift it out of danger. On one of these kicks that went behind the touch line, Richard ran it back out of behind the line and to his own 25 yard line before being downed.

Shandro Goes Over

Still pressing the Garneau backfield placed the ball in the Vic territory from where Shandro went over for a try. Shandro converted this touch making the total 18. Darkness hindered the wings from discovering the play but this factor worked both ways and the ball remained around the middle of the field with the extended runs getting a big play to no avail and the finish of the game saw Garneau in possession on their own forty five yard line.

The Teams

Victoria—Richard, Bevington, Pullahy, McCaig, Berry, Marr, Forbes, Morton, Fowler, Rimstead, Wolfe, Folgle.

Garneau—Shandro, Robertson, Moir, Giffen, Latham, Stuart, Manning, Kuelbach, Barnard, Talbot, Keneer, Wright, Miller, Carlyle.

Referee—Eric Duggan.

JACK SHARKEY A WONDER IN RING WHEN HE FEELS RIGHT

Late Tex Rivkard Had Plenty of Faith in Boston Gob and Strung Him Along for Long Time—Tried to Bring Him Up to Contending Position.

By ROBERT EDGREN

IT'S too bad Tex Rickard died last January. For a long, long time Tex, full of faith in Jack Sharkey's ability to make good, waited and planned for the event. And now that Tex isn't here Sharkey has done what Tex always said he could do.

Perhaps knocking out Tommy Loughran wasn't a great feat in itself. Loughran never has been a great fighter. Just a good light-heavyweight, with cleverness enough to overcome being nearly whipped, and win decisions. He did that with Lomski and several others. He was just far enough ahead at the finish to get the decision. There never has been a great and popular champion without a punch—and Loughran has no punch. That made it practically impossible for him to go up into the heavyweight class with a chance to become champion, although he seemed to think the trip to the title would be easy. At 186½ pounds Loughran was less effective than as a light-heavyweight, because the extra weight didn't give him more strength or punch, and did cut into his speed.

FEW FIGHTERS COULD IGNORE WEIGHT LINES

There have been just a few fighters who could ignore the weight lines, Bob Fitzsimmons, Joe Gans, Joe Walcott, Jack Dillon, all heavy sluggers. Loughran isn't in that class. He could get along as far as boxing cleverness could carry him—and that isn't among the heavies. Tommy may "still think Sharkey is a bum fighter"—but he's wrong.

Sharkey's career will have to be checked up in figuring just how good a heavyweight the Boston Gob is. Jack was a reckless fighter before he got into the big money. He beat Godfrey and Wills, the two biggest black fighters—a job that no other white heavyweights cared to tackle. He flattened Maloney in slam bang fashion that made him look like another Dempsey. Then he fought Dempsey.

Sharkey thought, like everyone else, that Dempsey was a has-been after the Tunney defeat at Philadelphia. He went into the ring full of contempt for Dempsey's fighting ability. He rushed at Dempsey from the start, and he certainly looked like a champion that night. He nearly murdered poor Jack in the first two rounds.

"Show This Sucker Up"

In Sharkey's corner his seconds urged him to take his time and try to get over a knockout, for Dempsey seemed almost a beaten man. Sneering Sharkey said: "Don't bother me—I'm going to show this sucker up."

But a little later Dempsey's grim courage, his way of taking what came, ignoring what came, and fighting steadily to take the lead, began to count. Dempsey's heavy body blows slowed Sharkey up. Sharkey fought like a streak—in spots. Then he was knocked out—and absolutely fairly knocked out, in spite of claims to the contrary.

But being knocked out by Dempsey was no disgrace. Dempsey still had a spark of fighting fire that had made him a great champion. He showed it later in the seventh round at Chicago.

For all that, the defeat seemed to break Sharkey's spirit.

Tex Richard still believed in him Tex still tried to bring Sharkey up to the position of championship contender just as he had brought Firpo up a few years before. He believed that Sharkey could beat anyone but Dempsey at his best. He didn't have a doubt in the world that Sharkey could beat Tunny. He tried to match Sharkey along to a championship fight with Tunney. It almost broke Rickard's heart as a promoter when Sharkey merely drew with slow Tom Heeney, and lost a decision to Johnny Risko.

Tunney Didn't Want Him

Rickard still tried to match Sharkey with Tunney. But Gene was smart. He sat close to the ring and saw what Sharkey did to Dempsey that night, in the first two rounds. He knew Sharkey had in him the possibility to be extremely dangerous. And Gene was a fully developed business man by the time he became champion. He refused Sharkey in spite of Rickard's arguments. "Sharkey won't draw," said Tunney. "I'll fight Heeney. He has been winning fights and he'll help the gate," Rickard argued, but Tunney insisted upon Heeney, and had his way. He couldn't lose financially. He had his guarantee. It was Rickard and his backers who paid a loss of approximately a quarter of a million on that fight—the fight the public knew was no match.

Funny, when Sharkey's chance to fight Tunney for the title had been thrown away by his poor showings against Heeney and Risko, Sharkey suddenly came to life and knocked out Jack Delaney, former light-heavy champion, in a punch.

That was an awful shock to Rickard. He said, with something as near bitterness as he ever showed, that it was jut like Sharkey to knock somebody out when it was too late to do any good. Rickard was stuck with Tunney-Heeney—no match at all—and had to go through with it because Tunney had been paid a large advance upon signing a contract several months before.

End for Light-Heavies

It has been said, and repeated until everyone took it for truth, that the Sharkey-Delaney fight was "framed" for Delaney to take a quick knockout, and that Delaney came in fat and untrained. But the sudden knockout Sharkey handed Loughran—almost as sudden and unexpected as the K. O he slipped Delaney, throws that story into the discard. Sharkey always could whip a good light-heavyweight He had too much class—too much speed and punch, for lighter men. Delaney was no more "fat and untrained" than Loughran. Both were trying to be heavyweights and thought extra weight—even if it was fat—made them heavyweights.

One more Sharkey fight which needs to be explained was last winter's sad affair with Young Stribling, in which neither seemed to be "trying." The fact is Stribling is hard to make a showing with—hard to fight because he won't fight. Stribling plays safe dives into clinches, wrestles, lets go only long enought to try to slip over one of his favorite inside punches. He has developed that style for years—and if he didn't have it—if he would fight—he might be a champion himself.

Sharkey watched cautiously for Stribling's inside tricks, wasted time letting Stribling wrestle, and did just enough to take the decision. Sharkey can fight when he wants to. He will fight when he knows the public has lost interest in him and thinks he is "a bum." That stings him into action. Otherwise he is content to loaf and get the bankroll as easily as he can.

I have a notion that Sharkey will do some pretty good fighting from now on. He will if he wants to. But you never can be sure of this bird Nobobdy knows how he'll go next time—and probably he hasn't the slightest idea himself.

ENGLAND HAS MANY SMALL GOLF LINKS

Every Little Open Space Being Devoted to Golf Practice

LONDON, Oct. 19.—England is now everywhere dotted with "miniature" golf courses and putting greens. Every little open space not being used for any other purpose is being devoted to practice at golf.

The putting greens, which now adjoin even the houses of parliament and the Victoria Embankment, are as attractive as they are popular. No attempt is made to make them too easy. The actual holes mainly nestle on the top of little hillocks and miniature bunkers abound. Some of these courses are so tricky that even a Hagen or a Duncan might be beaten by a local fan who knows every inch of the course, at the first attempt. The charge for the 18 holes is 6 cents and in London itself there is generally a queue waiting to play.

"Miniature" courses are laid out in the parks, some of them in most beautiful surroundings. As a rule they consist of nine holes, ranging from 50 to 110 yards, and requiring just a mashie shot and putt. But the holes are most cleverly trapped and the courses are laid out with a skill and ingenuity that might be envied by a first-rate golf architect.

The charge for a round, including the hire of two clubs, is 12 cents. Two classes of players are mainly attracted. One is the complete novice who wants to learn something about golf. The other is the good player who wants to take advantage of an admirable opportunity to improve his short game.

Hagen Announces His Intention of Retiring from Active Golf

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 19.—Walter Hagen, British open and American professional golf champion after playing an exhibition match here yesterday announced that he will soon retire from active golf and devote his time to business.

Hagen will complete his present barnstorming tour in about two weeks. He said yesterday he will continue to play in the choice tournaments, but has decided to discontinue his annual playing regularly.

E. HUAT K.O.'S BELANGER IN SIXTH ROUND

Powerful Right Wears Canadian Champ Out Early in Bout

ARENA GARDENS, Toronto, Oct. 19.—Eugene Huat, of France, European flyweight champion, scored a smashing knockout victory over Albert "Frenchy" Belanger of Toronto, Canadian champion, in the sixth round of their scheduled ten round bout here last night. The Frenchman's win was an impressive one.

A crashing right spelled defeat for Belanger from the start and from the second round on it was only a question of how far the fight would go.

At that Belanger, bleeding profusely from a deep cut over his right eye, staged a remarkable comeback in the fifth round, gambling all on a wild offensive that puzzled Huat.

But the Frenchman bided his time, and ended it in the sixth with Belanger weakened, but still trying gamely, Huat unleased his two fisted drive, that boasted a powerful right. A left sent Belanger backing towards the ropes and then the crashing right floored him. He rose dazed at the nine and again went down under a right.

Referee Lou Marsh promptly raised Huat's hand without counting.

Belanger was out cold.

With the exception of the fifth round, Huat was ahead at all times He had a knockout in his grasp as early as the second round when Belanger took a nine count just before the bell. In the third, the vicious right again got in its work and Belanger was floored for two, nine counts Huat began to wait his final opportunity in the fourth and this gave Belanger a chance to recuperate somewhat. Huat took the round by a lesser margin without a knock down and then in the fifth Belanger staged his game rally, scoring heavily to the body and on wild swings to the head, but took some punishment in return.

Coming up for the sixth round he again forced the fighting but found the Frenchman in a different mood With the round about half over Huat began his finishing job. Belanger, weary and weakened and scarcely able to see at times, as blood flowed into his eyes, was an easy victim. Huat weighed in at 111¾ and Belanger 111¼.

Last night's bout was the first of Huat's appearance on this continent He scored a knockout victory over Emile Pladner, former champion of France, in Paris. Huat is scheduled to meet Izzy Schwartz formerly recognized by the New York state boxing commission as champion in Madison Square Gardens on Nov. 4.

Marvin "Kid" Woods of Indianapolis, won a six round decision over Ernie Brooks, Toronto, in a merry battle. Woods weighed 119 and Brooks 117¾.

Ronnie Headley of Ottawa, scored a smart victory over George Fifield, Toronto, in their six round semi-final The Ottawa youngster who has been showing to good advantage in his recent appearances floored the former Canadian welterweight champion twice in the third round.

In the preliminaries Eddie Judge, Toronto, won a four round decision over Tommy Bland, Toronto, Judge weighed 117 and Bland 124.

Willie MacDonald, Toronto, 127½ won a four round decision over George Barber, Toronto, 125½ in a slugfest.

Eastbourne, England, has banned airplanes from its public park.

SHAWKEY TO MANAGE N.Y. YANKEE CLUB

"Bob" Shawkey Surprised By Chance to Succeed Miller Huggins

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.—The first intimation of his appointment as successor to Miller Huggins late manager of the New York Yankees greeted Robert J. Shawkey, famous major league pitcher in his day, when he arrived at his hotel here late yesterday from a hunting expedition in the Laurentian mountains. A telegram from E. G. Barrow, business manager of the Yankees gave him the first news of his appointment. Though it had always been his ambition to become a manager of a big league baseball team "Bob" Shawkey never entertained hopes of being handed the reins of a team like the Yanks, so he told reporters tonight.

Shawkey expressed himself as "very much enthused" over the project and said if he can do half as well with the Yanks as Miller Huggins he will be greatly satisfied.

PRO HOCHEY PLAYERS TO JOIN TEAMS

Sheppard and Keats Leave to Fulfill Winter Contracts

The annual migration of the professional hockey players has started with the departure of Johnny Sheppard, last year with the N. Y., who last night left for the States where he will join his team in the preseason period of training. Sheppard is to be followed by Duke Keats, last year with Tulsa in the American Association. Keats leaves on Sunday en route to Tulsa.

SOCCER GAMES OVER WEEK-END

Four Teams Scheduled to Play Charity Shield Matches

The Charity Shield Competition has now reached the semi-final stage and this week-end sees four teams meeting for the right to be named finalists and the chance at the trophy. As a result of the games played in this competition the teams have narrowed down to Gainers, Radials, Canadian National and the Legion.

This Saturday a postponed game between the Radials and the Gainers will divide the limelight with the Sunday game between the Legion and the Canadian National team. Both games are carded for Diamond Park and the Saturday game is to start at 3:30 while the Sunday game is due to start at 2:30. The winners of these games meet in the final a week today at Diamond Park for the silverware.

Gainers get the call in the Saturday game, through having a record of winning games to their credit, but the fans need not be surprised if the Radials upset the dope bucket and come out on top. Due to suspension, the Canadian National team, hitherto a powerful aggregation, are a weakened team for their important game and as a result the Legion squad may be considered the favorites. That is by some, but not by the C. N. players and, as they stand, the games both look like seasons classics.

Canadian Legion Team for Sunday's Contest

The following players will line up on the Canadian Legion team this Sunday and those whose names are mentioned are asked to report at the Memorial Hall at 1:45 Sunday.

Duguid, Hoyle, Cavanaugh, Nancox, Dingley, Lidgett, Pugh, Biggs, Lamb, Young, Hunter, Robb, McLaughlin, Wilkie.

WHEAT PRICES FLOP 3 CENTS AT WINNIPEG

Heavy Liquidation and Stop-loss Selling Affects Grain Market

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19.—Heavy liquidation by tired holders and stop loss selling resulted in a sharp decline in wheat values here today, prices dropping more than three cents. A firm market was suddenly shattered by a flood of selling around 11 o'clock and wheat quotations plunged lower, the October future dropping three cents to $1.37½; November 3⅛ to 138⅛, December 3c to 138¾ and May 3c to 145⅜.

New York Letter

By Jas. Richardson & Sons

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—As far as buying is concerned, think it is most important to consider that none of the oils were affected by the attack on their leader, and that the unsuccessful attempt to create the feeling that even they are going down, puts them in a wonderful buying spot. Use any over-carry of yesterday's drive to buy Standard of New Jersey, Dutch, Standard of New York, Pan American Houston and Superior Oil.

The rails continue to exhibit immunity from raiding which has characterized them all through the bear drive, so again direct attention to Atchison, Erie, M. K. & T.

In the industrials, believe it will still pay to travel light and for the present to continue avoiding the leaders, a program which was first advised here almost two months ago. This does not mean, however, that you cannot make a lot of money and I believe you will in using the current weakness to buy such issues as U. S. Rubber, Pullman, Byers Pipe, United Fruit, Gold Dust, Mathieson, Columbia Graphophone, Colorado Fuel and A. T. and T.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Sterling exchange $4.81¾ for sixty day bills at $4.86⅝ for demand. Foreign bar silver 5. Canadian dollars, one percent discount, Francs 3.93¼. Lire 5.23¼.

Latest Oil Field Flashes

By Staff Correspondent
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CALGARY, Oct. 19.—Advance—No. [illegible]-A, offset to the old No. 5, using heavy rotary equipment, made a record of 991 feet of new hole during the week and was down 1285 feet and still drilling last night, according to the weekly drilling report of the Imperial Oil issued yesterday.

Royalite—No. 21, just north of No. 4, was drilling at 155 feet in the lime at a total depth of 4463 feet, making 14 feet of new hole during the week. No. 23 had drilled out the cement on bottom at 4833 feet at 15 feet in the lime. No. 6 is swedgeing 4½-inch casing at 4531 feet. No. 12 made 16 feet in the lime and was down 5305 feet. No. 16, which struck the lime at 4711 feet, was drilling at 5675 feet last night making 80 feet of new hole in the producing horizon during the week.

Mayland—No. 2 started drilling hole after getting the under-reamer out at 3057 feet and had just started drilling when the report was made out. No. 3 was drilling steadily at 3303 feet, making 217 feet with cable tools during the week.

Southwest Petroleums — Was still standing cemented at 5493 feet and will probably resume drilling next week.

Home—No. 6 started work on the cellar Thursday, about 800 feet west of Wellington. No. 4 was running 6½-inch casing to the lime at 5423 feet. No. 5 was drilling at 3134 feet and had made 39 feet of new hole after setting 10-inch casing at 3095 feet during the week.

Dalhousie—No. 1, at 4565 feet, is rigging up to clean out the hole at 4565 feet, about 160 feet in the lime. No. 7 is drilling at 3727 feet after making 120 feet during the week.

Other wells included in the report are: Sterling Pacific, down 4538 feet and running 8¼-inch casing after making 111 feet during the week; Baltac, drilling at 4077 feet, making 146 feet during the week; Lowery Pete, down 3684 and drilling, making 168 feet in seven days; Hargal, drilling at 3089 feet, making 224 feet for the week; Calgary D and P, drilling at 626 feet, making 356 feet during the week.

Mayland—No. 1 was officially reported to be drilling at 313 feet in the lime at 5754 feet at midnight Thursday and was fishing for a "twist-off" last night. It is understood that the bit stuck tight in the hole Friday and in an effort to loosen it the drillers have twisted off the rods about 900 feet from the top of the hole. Officials state that it is obvious that the bit is frozen in the lime and until circulation is obtained the situation is likely to remain unknown. The reasonable assumption is that a strong gas flow has been struck during the last 40 or 50 feet.

Model—Struck the Dalhousie sands at 5365 feet Friday and the bit was still working in a very hard capping just at the top of this formation, according to reports last night. The casing has been carried to 5323 feet and will be lowered to 5345 feet immediately.

Mercury—No. 1 was drilling at 3880 feet and expecting the Kootenays at any time, according to reports received last night. No. 2 was down 3065 feet and still in the Dakotas with the rotary.

Mill City Petroleums—Was drilling at 1325 feet Friday afternoon after drilling through the cement at 486 feet last Monday morning making over 800 feet of new hole in less than five days with the rotary rig.

Sunlight — Southeast of Mercury wells, was down 3936 feet and expecting to strike the Home sands at any time.

Outwest Petroleums—No. 1, on New Black Diamond structure, has suspended operations due to a fault struck about a week ago, as have all other wells on this structure, including Roselite, Vanberta, Vanguard and also at Weymarn Petroleums.

Invader—No. 1, in the north end of Turner Valley, got more showings of oil and gas at 3120 feet and was drilling steadily with cable tools last night. The bit is still in the Dakotas.

Structure—No. 1, south of McLeod wells, was down 2127 feet yesterday after passing through hard drilling in the iron pyrites in the lower Bentons. The casing is being carried close behind the bit.

Widney—No. 1, south of McDougall-Segur wells, has stopped drilling on account of crude oil in the well. A test made shows the oil struck at two levels in the McDougall-Segur sands in the middle of the Dakotas, shows 53 degrees baume. The crude is standing at 600 feet in the hole, according to reports last night.

Richfield—In Waite Valley, drilling about 2800 feet and carrying casing immediately behind drill to prevent caving.

News From the Mines

Solloway Mills & Co. Ltd.

International Nickel — Copper figures largely in Nickel's profit, with Frood mine now a regular shipper to the smelter. Frood ore comes mainly from lower levels, where average copper values are around 20 per cent with about two per cent nickel. Product is shipped in form of combines copper nickel matte. Copper receipts will be larger this year than ever, as will also be the previous metal values. Shipments of nickel are not made at regular intervals to either United States or Old Country, where coniston matte goes for refining.

San Antonio—Progress report says 200 feet of drilling has been done on vein on 750 foot horizon with average values $15. An effort has been made to pick it up at 600 feet. Company still has funds for three or four months' work.

Amity Copper — Developments on Amity copper are being watched by many. If downward continuation of good upper level ore is encountered on 1000 foot level, it will justify the directors considering the installation of a concentrator. Many regard the stock as a pretty good bet around 12 cents.

Barry Hollinger—Mill at Barry Hollinger now reported running 100 tons daily with average grade $9.00 per ton. The increase in tonnage was made two weeks ago.

Granada's 825 foot level crosscut has reached No. 1 vein. Values are said to run $9.00. Talk of a mill for Granada is being renewed now and rumor has it that one of the idle plants in Northern Ontario, perhaps that of Argonaut Cons, may be utilized.

Gem Lake Mines—Central Manitoba, has crosscut its vein on 375 foot level and hopes to get it soon on the 500. Mill machinery may be removed to the property this winter.

Bidgood has started sinking from 850 foot horizon on vein in favorable syenite porphyry that was recently cut at 975 foot by diamond drill and which showed good widths and values.

Drastic Decline of Week Culminates in Storm of Selling

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—The drastic decline in stock prices, which has been under way most of the week, culminated in a violent storm of selling during today's two-hour session, the day's sales being approximately 3,000,000 shares.

Prices of scores of leading issues were depressed from 5 to 25 points and many broke through the low levels reached in the break earlier in the month.

Strong bearish operations were in evidence.

Several stocks reached new lows, including General Motors, United States Steel and United Gas Improvement. John Manville was bid up more than five points only to react sharply. Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Western Union, American Can, North American and Foreign Power, Eastman Kodak, Montgomery Ward, Simmons, Atchison and United Carbide dropped 5 to 13 points.

The market at the close was distinctly weak.

EDMONTON STOCKYARDS, Oct. 19.—Weekly report from the Edmonton Stockyards, week ending October 18, 1929:

Receipts: Cattle, 1685; Calves, 614; Hogs, 2083; Sheep 405.

Conditions as a whole improved very materially on the market this week. There was a very much healthier tone noticeable. Buyers' demands were quite keen for all classes of cattle, and they were not grading so closely. In consequence, salesmen were able to move their offerings quite readily.

At the end of the week a good clean-up was made on the week's receipts. Although actual prices were no higher generally, yet all sales were made at fully steady values and in spots a stronger tone was noticeable, especially on medium and in-between kinds of butcher cattle.

Stockers and feeders found a ready outlet at fully steady values. There was no material change in the calf market as all classes of calves, and particularly the better grades of vealers, found a ready sale at steady to strong values.

At the beginning of the week the hog market was decidedly unsettled and weak, when bacons sold at $9.50 fed and watered. But at the close of the week a better demand developed, and hogs closed at $9.85 for bacons, fed and watered.

The sheep market generally was a dull affair.

Shipping Shares On London 'Change Dull

Canadian Press Cable

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Shipping shares remained depressed on the London Stock Exchange this week, particularly those of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company. A conservative policy in imparting information to shareholders has been the custom in this group of companies. Lord Jellicoe has resigned his trusteeship for the first debenture holders in the Royal Mail company and his place has been taken by the Prudential Assurance company.

A. B. Cauty, general manager of the Oceanic Steam Navigation company, and William Lewis, general manager of the Pacific Steam Navigation company, become directors of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company. All these appointments will doubtless have a reassuring effect and Lord Kylsant, great shipping magnate, is expected to make some statement shortly on the general financial position of this vast group of companies of which he is managing director.

REPORT ALTA. SUPERIOR IS NOW FINANCED

Eastern Interests Think Well of Alberta Company's Holdings

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CALGARY, Oct. 19.—In telegrams from Managing Director A. C. McDougall, received at the general offices of the company and by the company's legal representatives here this morning, word was received that the Alberta Superior Oil Company, Ltd., has been fully financed in eastern Canada, and that President McDougall, and Vice-President Lt. Col. G. B. McLeod of Edmonton, who accompanied him east, are returning to Alberta immediately.

Both officials report that the financing of the company is complete in every particular, and that as a result an active and energetic drilling program will be immediately inaugurated. The company's holdings consist of some 2,460 acres in diversified structures in the Alberta fields and the site of the first well is east of and adjoining the famous Home Oil Company holdings. The derrick for this well is already erected, boiler and drilling machinery installed, and the well will be spudded in on Monday. From then on it is proposed to continue with double shifts, and in addition company geologists will select further sites for drilling on the company's holdings.

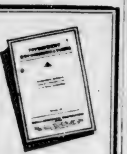
Bond Prices Have Declined

—While Underlying Values Have Increased



THE growth of earnings and assets of Canadian corporations has been used as an argument for the purchase of common stocks; but the securities having first call on such earnings and assets have been neglected.

Bonds, on the average, give better returns and a larger margin of investment safety now than for many years past. Current prices are such that bonds can be bought not only for good yields but also with unusual prospects of appreciation in value.

The October issue of Investment Recommendations gives particulars of a number of attractively-priced securities of sound utilities and industrials. A copy will be sent you upon receipt of your name and address.

Montreal Gazette

By Jas. Richardson & Sons

MONTREAL, Oct. 19.—Further details available yesterday of the annual statement of British Columbia Power show that in the year ended June 30 the corporations was $4,616,396. From this there was deducted $1,983,414 for interest on bonded debt and for dividends on preferred stocks of subsidiary companies leaving net earnings of $2,632,980. This compares with net of about $2,000,000 in previous years.

A feature of the general shareholder's meeting of Distillers Seagrams, held here yesterday, was the announcement that the company will make an offer. Shareholders are to be offered new stock at $12 per share on the basis of one new for each five shares held.

The directors of Asbestos Corpn. Ltd. appointed Captain Jas. G. Ross, of the Milton Hersey Co., Montreal, as mines manager at Thetford. Captain Ross who has been consulting engineer and assistant to the president since last May, has had a world wide experience in asbestos mining and milling and brings to the corporation an knowledge that will be most valuable in the reorganization of its affairs.

Wall Street Journal

By Jas. Richardson & Sons

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Professional raids centered on pivotal issues becoming particularly acute in Consolidated Gas, Montgomery-Ward and General Motors, where repeated attempts were made to drive these issues below former resistance points or into new low levels.

Opening prices in U.S. Steel, Radio, and other standard industrials showed declines and represented about the lowest prices for the day in these issues.

The motor industry this year will produce 5 million cars and trucks. Last year the production was 4,601,130 and in the year preceding the production was 3,580,000. These remarkable gains do not respond or represent the expansion in the market as much as they represent the recovery from a subnormally low point in 1927. There has been only moderate expansion in the industry for the past seven years. There was a sharp break in several of the independent radio issues carrying some of these issues to new low levels for the year. Radio Corporation held steadily. Crosley and Zenith also Kolster showed broad declines with Crosley down more than ten points; Kolster off 3 and Zenith several points lower. Selling in these issues was brought about by the expectation of strong competition from General Motors Radio, which according to the recent announcement, expects to enter the radio field on a far reaching scale.

Activity in General Motors, which according to th recent announcement expects to enter the radio field on a far reaching scale, was induced by the monthly sales report for September which showed a further decline.

Winnipeg Grain Letter

James Richardson & Sons, Ltd.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19.—Wheat registered further drastic declines today as a result of continued liquidation, together with short selling induced by rains in the Argentine. Reports from that country are again conflicting. One message reported general rain, while another reports excessive hail damage, and a forecast for colder weather. There was a fair export business worked on the decline, but outside buying power was again disappointing.

Buenos Aires market closed ½ lower in spite of the rains, while Liverpool reflected yesterday's local decline. Trade was of broad proportion, but there was no evidence of any concentrated liquidation, and much of the business was local in character. The recent decline has evidently had an unsettling affect on foreign buyers, as they failed to come in for any large quantity of wheat.

Marketings in western Canada continued in excess of two million bushels, and the weather continues generally fair with a forecast for fair and warmer.

The immediate trend of the market will be governed by Southern Hemisphere developments, but ultimately continue to anticipate that crop shortages in the important exporting countries will have their affect in higher prices.

Bliss Letter

By Jas. Richardson & Sons

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Currently the weakness in the utilities is not isolated, but is a disturbing influence to the whole list. We believe that the utilities will furnish an important clue to the action of the general market, believing that completion of liquidation in the direction will be followed by relative market stability in the industrial section. In other words when the end of liquidation in the utilities is reached, a development to be indicated, perhaps by diminishing volume, and in frequent appearance on the tape of the leading issues, the market we think will have reached a point where constructive individual situations in other sections of the list will again be emphasized. It seems logical to say that the weakness yesterday afternoon may further impair confidence in the long side.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Wheat tumbled down today to a new low price record for the season. Word of soaking general rains in Argentina power to rally.

Corn started ½ cent to 1 cent off and subsequently recovered somewhat. Oats were easier.

Next Week — Informal Talks and Demonstrations on

Color in Home Decoration

By Evelyn J. L. Hamilton, Interior Decorating Advisor from the Winnipeg Store

COLOR as a means of bringing charm and beauty into rooms will be the principle theme of a series of informal talks and demonstrations on matters pertaining to the home, to be given by Miss Hamilton on October 22, 23, 24 and 25, from 2:30 to 5:30. Miss Hamilton is an authority on the use of color in home decoration. She has studied in New York and the larger Studios in Eastern Canada, and has had wide experience in creating beautiful interiors.

As a basis for the talks Miss Hamilton will use a color chart, recently copyrighted by the T. Eaton Company, Ltd. The chart shows how to combine colors and what proportions to use in composing a color scheme for a room. Miss Hamilton will arrange a different room each day, featuring the color harmony: a living room on Tuesday, a dining room on Thursday and a living room on Friday.

Those who wish to discuss their furnishing problems personally with Miss Hamilton may make appointments by 'phoning 91225. You will find her advice most helpful on such matters as the choice of draperies, wall treatments or the arrangement of furniture.

The talks and demonstrations are quite informal. Members of the audience are invited to ask questions on home furnishings.

GEE, THAT COP SAW ME GRAB DIS BAG!
HERE, BROTHER, HOLD DIS FOR ME A FEW MINUTES
CERTAINLY. CERTAINLY
OH, IT'S GOT MONEY IN IT — THAT FELLER TRUSTS ME — HE DOES
HEY! WHATSA MATTER? WHATSA MATTER?
PAPA TOLD ME NEVER TO TRUST A FELLER THAT CALLED YOU "BROTHER".

GEE, DADDY, LOOK AT THE BIG HOLE WHERE MY TOOTH CAME OUT — IT DIDN'T HURT A BIT — DR. HEIT GAVE ME SOMETHING SO I WOULDN'T FEEL IT.
GOSH, THAT LOOKS LIKE THE GRAND CANYON — BUT IT REMINDS ME OF AN EXPERIENCE I HAD WHEN I WAS DRIVING THE STAGE COACH BETWEEN GOLDEN GULCH AND CACTUS CITY — THERE WAS A YOUNG DENTIST WHO STARTED BUSINESS IN GOLDEN GULCH WITH WHOM I SPENT MANY PLEASANT EVENINGS DISCUSSING THE SCIENTIFIC ADVANCEMENT OF DENTISTRY
I LEFT HIS OFFICE QUITE LATE ONE NIGHT AFTER A VERY INTERESTING TALK SO I TOOK A SHORT CUT BACK TO MY CABIN. — I WANTED TO GET A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP AS I WAS TO LEAVE AT 6 O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING, WITH THE STAGE COACH CARRYING A LARGE CONSIGNMENT OF GOLD —
AS I PASSED RED MC GOODLES SHACK I HEARD VOICES COMING FROM THE HORSE STABLES IN THE REAR — THINKING IT PECULIAR THAT FOLKS SHOULD BE IN THE STABLE AT THAT TIME OF NIGHT, I BECAME SOMEWHAT SUSPICIOUS AND CREPT AROUND IN THE SHADOW OF THE SHACK AND LISTENED ———
— MY SUSPICIONS WERE JUSTIFIED — THEY WERE PLANNING TO LEAVE AND HOLD UP THE STAGE — THEY HAD, IN SOME WAY, FOUND OUT THAT I WAS CARRYING THE LARGE CONSIGNMENT OF GOLD THE NEXT MORNING ——
I COULD HAVE RUINED THEIR PLANS WITHOUT MUCH TROUBLE BUT I DECIDED ON A WAY TO CAPTURE THEM ALONE ——— A FEW MINUTES LATER FOUND ME BACK AT MY DENTIST FRIEND'S OFFICE FOR MY SCHEME REQUIRED HIS HELP ———
RIGHT ON TIME NEXT MORNING I WAS ON MY WAY WITH THIS FORTUNE IN GOLD ENTRUSTED TO MY CARE —— CONSIDERING THE GOLD MY PLAN WAS A BIT RECKLESS BUT I WAS A DEVIL-MAY-CARE FELLOW, HUNGRY FOR ADVENTURE AND WITH A WORLD OF CONFIDENCE IN MYSELF, SO I TOOK A CHANCE ——
WHEN I CAME TO A SHARP TURN IN A NARROW RAVINE, RIGHT WHERE I EXPECTED IT TO OCCUR, I WAS HALTED WITH A SHARP COMMAND TO THROW UP MY HANDS — I COMPLIED WITH THE COMMAND AS IF IT WERE A COMPLETE SURPRISE —
OF COURSE THE FIRST THING THEY WANTED WAS THE STRONG BOX IN WHICH THE GOLD WAS CARRIED —— WHILE ONE OF THEM KEPT ME COVERED, THE OTHER BUSIED HIMSELF BREAKING IT OPEN SO HE COULD POUR THE GOLD BULLION INTO BAGS HE CARRIED — WITH HIS AXE HE SPLIT THE BOX OPEN AND WAS SURPRISED TO FIND NO GOLD IN IT (I HAD IT IN AN OLD SOAP BOX UNDER THE SEAT) BUT INSTEAD THEY WERE GREETED WITH PECULIAR FUMES...
IN A COUPLE OF SECONDS THEY APPEARED TO TAKE THEIR DISSAPPOINTMENT AS A GREAT JOKE AND STARTED LAUGHING LOUDLY AS THEY SLAPPED EACH OTHER ON THE BACK IN THEIR MERRIMENT —
WHILE THEY WERE LAUGHING HELPLESSLY, I RELIEVED THEM OF THEIR WEAPONS AND LOADED THEM ON TO THE COACH AND DELIVERED THEM TO THE SHERIFF AT CACTUS CITY BEFORE THE EFFECTS OF THE LAUGHING GAS WORE OFF —.
HERE'S SOME BILLS THAT HAVE TO BE PAID — YOU BETTER TAKE A SNIFF OF THAT LAUGHING GAS BEFORE YOU LOOK AT THEM

In The Modern Woman's World

GREEN LEAVES

Edmonton is falling in line with a large number of university cities this year by installing movies in the U. of A. for lecturing purposes. The movie, once considered something of an outcast by the intelligencia, has risen to a place of decided importance in the cultural world. Especially in its new dress as the talkie, and latterly the technicolor, it is rising steadily to a place of first rank significance in the the eyes of the mighty.

The fact that personalities formerly practically unknown to millions of people have been brought within sight and hearing gives one some idea of the scope of the talkie. Great artists are heralding a new era of musical development for people who have never known good music in their lives. Lecturers are considering the possibility of this new educator.

Says Dr. Sheldon Shepard of the First Universalist church of Los Angeles, "We have not yet begun to realize the almost illim'table benefits that will come to humanity from the development of the talking motion picture. There is far more in its potentialities than improved entertainment and widened education. It has that subtle, spiritual something, a characteristic of all true art, which ministers to the inner peace and growth of human-kind."

Why Not Home Talkies in Clubs?

One cannot help but consider the possibilities of talkies for women's clubs. Already throughout the rural districts many U.F.W.A. and Women's Institute groups listen to radio lectures as a regular part of their club meetings. Talkie pictures, in which messages could be heard from the leading club women of the world, matters of interest brought to the members of various societies, and lectures on any manner of subject given, with illustration, would be a great boon.

Incidentally, it is of interest to learn that the cry from the partially-deaf patrons against the talkies has been heeded, and several theatres have attached a device to seats for those afflicted, so that all but the totally deaf may hear dialogue and music of talking and synchronized screenplays.

Edmonton Writers Come to the Fore

It was drawn to my attention that the last issue of McLean's magazine contained stories by four Edmonton writers: Dr. Hardy, whose continued story, "Son of Eli," is being followed with great interest; Magistrate Emily Murphy; Mr. George Van Allen, president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Fred Watson. The names of local writers are seen more and more frequently attached to articles and stories in various publications at home and abroad.

How About The Young Wife Keeping Her Job

This old question of budgeting for the young married couple is always to the fore, especially with the large number of weddings that have taken place in Edmonton this summer and autumn. Even although the bride and bridegroom see the world through rose colored glasses, the modern young husband and wife have both had enough experience in the business world, unusually, to go at things in a business-like manner.

Referring to the growing popularity of the job-after-marriage with the modern wife, Prudence Penny writes in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer:

"Now, about the wife keeping her job. Optimistic young couples, hearing that two can live cheaper than one, add their two salaries and decide that matrimony is a paying investment. Emotionally, yes; financially, some day, but not the first few years. The working wife's clothes will cost as much as ever, her lunches, car fare and entertainment will remain the same. Her social obligations will increase, both at home and downtown, for she must maintain the dignity of a married woman.

"No woman can do justice to eight hours of work in an office and the four hours that will be needed to keep up meals and cleaning. First, her disposition will suffer, then her health. Women have the grit to do anything for love, and pride will keep the bride going long after she feels she should quit work.

"According to several of our readers, themselves married women in business, the only safe plan is to live on the husband's salary and save the wife's money. Then, if nature steals a march on them, the wife is accustomed to living on the husband's income and there is money ahead for a real home.

"It does seem too bad for a highly skilled girl to automatically desert her profession just because she marries. The answer is, eat out and hire a woman to clean the apartment, board or get a house and keep help. If you are satisfied with simple food, a schoolgirl or Oriental schoolboy can do the housekeeping.

"Four hours every day, six or eight hours Saturday and the same Sunday are necessary to get two meals a day, keep an apartment clean, food shopping done, laundry checked out and in, and personal sewing and laundry work caught up. If you think woman's work is never done, just try being a business woman with full domestic responsibility."

It would be interesting to have an opinion on the subject from some of the business girls who are marrying and retaining their positions. One girl whose salary was somewhat bigger than that earned by her husband told me that the idea had been a failure in her particular case.

"My husband lost ambition and refused to take a proper interest in his work, because he knew that I could look after myself quite capably," she said.

"He ceased to bring me the little tokens and gifts that are so dear to a woman. He was not interested in saving to buy a home, as I was. Today I have thrown everything into my work and find myself a highly successful business woman . . . with my marriage a complete failure."

Mrs. McClung and Current Events

The report of the first meeting of the Currents Events club in Calgary for the season, looks like a bird's eye view of the world at large. One feels at once the energizing touch of Mrs. Nellie McClung, who slips easily from the story of unemployment in the United States to the sending of British troops to Palestine, on to the new health-giving rays of the sun in the case of a piano which had not been heard for 15 years, and in three days in the sunlight regained its former tone.

It will be remembered that Mrs. McClung's current event classes in Edmonton were a joy and a source of never-ending interest to the large number of women who attended them on every Friday evening. Incidentally, Mrs. McClung has just undertaken the presidency of the Calgary branch of the Canadian Women's Press club for the coming season.—L.C.D.

OCTOBER

October is a pagan wench
Who puts her scarlet slippers on
And dances through the ragged night
Into the burning of the dawn.

She purses up her crimson lips
And kisses every breeze that blows
Until the woods are flaming too
Wherever wind of heaven goes.

October is a pagan wench
And all her songs are gypsy lays
Of passion and of stolen love
Through witching nights and breathless days.

She weaves the magic of her dreams
Into the hours that, passing by,
Will lay the fabric of her mood
On earth and tree and changing sky.

And if her heart has any prayer
That far, strange gods may listen to,
It rises in the afternoon . . . . .
A golden tree against the blue.

LOTTA C. DEMPSEY

Tea Talk

With the charming simplicity and straightforward unaffectedness that is characteristic of her, Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the premier of Great Britain, has made an indelible impression on the American women with whom she has come into contact during her visit to the United States. The fact that her hat and plain little dark suit were not suggestive of the Rue de la Paix, and that her bag was a serviceable, old-fashioned leather one, was noted by many of the official hostesses of Washington, and the smart young debs of New York.

With Ishbel MacDonald

"I don't in the least mind where I sit at dinner," she said laughingly, when told of the controversy which raged in the American capital this year over precedence at social functions, "so long as I have an interesting dinner partner."

• • •

The unassuming friendliness of Ishbel MacDonald will undoubtedly do much to break down any idea of aloofness that the American woman has harbored regarding her English sister. One cannot imagine the serious little mistress of No. 10 Downing street returning home to speak belittingly of her hostesses in the United States, an unfortunate habit on the part of some well known visitors to the land of milk and honey.

✣ ✣ ✣

While Edmonton prepares for the first Symphony concert and looks forward to Musical club functions and the occasional visits of great artists, New York is awakening to the influence of the coming Metropolitan opera season. For the first time in many years the debutante festivities in the gay city will be inaugurated during Mid-October, when about 200 young debutantes will be presented to a waiting social world.

✣ ✣ ✣

New York society was recently decidedly interested in the wedding of Lord Edward Montagu to Miss Norah Potter, of Edmonton, according to a column appearing in the press of that city by Cholly Knickerbocker.

Lord Edward Montagu

"From one who should know whereof he speaks, I learn, and with decided interest, that Lord Edward Eugene Fernando Montagu has taken unto himself a bride," says the writer.

"The name Lord Montagu will mean but little to American society until it is learned that the youthful peer is the son of the Duke of Manchester and his American-born duchess.

"Last year, when the Duke of Manchester was in New York, he had his second son with him, and later they journeyed to Canada together.

"Lord Montagu is twenty-three years old and has the distinction of having no less a royal personage than King Edward VII. as his sponsor, he having been born at a time when the Duke of Manchester was quite a figure in British society and was in high favor at the English court.

"It will be recalled that two years ago Lord Montague's older brother, the Viscount Mandeville, heir to the Manchester Dukedom, married Nell Vere Stead, of Australia.

Paul Cavendish in New York

The recent visit of Paul Cavendish, who is a well known stage favorite in England, to New York was of considerable interest to Edmontonians, who knew the actor as Bill Atkinson a number of years ago. Among former residents of the city who had an opportunity of meeting Mr. Cavendish in New York was Miss Verna Felton (Mrs. Lee Millar), who played leading roles with the Allen Players for several seasons here, and became well known in social circles. Mr. and Mrs. Millar and their young son, Lee, Junior, have been in New York for some time and wrote recently of having seen the English actor, and having found him little changed since his early days in the city.

✣ ✣ ✣

Speaking of the Allen Players, it will be something of a shock to those who knew Miss Marvel Phillips, the charming young ingenue of the company, to hear that she died in New York some time ago. After leaving Edmonton a few years ago she went to California, where she was married to an aviator, Mr. Sherald Page, also formerly of Edmonton, and his bride, are at present in New York.

✣ ✣ ✣

Mr. and Mrs. S. Nielson, who left Edmonton last year to go to Stanford university, Palo Alto, California, are established in university circles in the southern city, and enjoying the year of exchange lectureship greatly. Many Edmontonians who journey south enjoy a visit with the Nielsons, who were popular members of the Campus set before leaving. Recently they had as their guests Mrs. W. H. Alexander and Mr. Lawrence Alexander, who have just returned from a motor trip to California, the while Dr. Alexander was en route home from the continent.

Shooting Parties in Vogue

The last of the summer's wanderers have returned to the fold, and before long the social season will be at its height. The gradual but steady growth of the city and the lengthening of social lists are increasing the vogue for small parties, and marking new divisions and new circles. October is decidedly the "little month" of entertaining, with two and three-table bridges and fireside circle teas more popular than the bigger affairs, although a few hostesses are holding receptions and more formal parties.

✣ ✣ ✣

Shooting parties are the feature of the moment, and togged in smart red and blue and brown leather coats the feminine world has taken to hunting. Golf widows about to discard their mourning for the season, pause at the sign of the rifle and put off their winter social plans for another few weeks.

Convening Hallowe'en Dance

Miss Nancy Bradley will be the convener of the Hallowe'en cabaret being arranged by the Duke of York Chapter I.O.D.E. for November 1, in the Rose Room of the King Edward hotel. Music for this affair, which will be one of the outstanding events for the younger set this autumn, is being arranged by Miss Dorothy Archibald and Miss Betty Searth. Supper is being planned by Miss Betty Lane, Miss Abigail Spencer and Miss Sylvia Evans, and entertainment will be arranged by Miss Margaret Archibald. Miss Sybil Primrose, Miss Elsie Hay and Miss Evelyn Jackson will be in charge of the decorating of the hall, and Miss Jean Henwood and Miss Cecil Nightingale are convening the publicity.

Social Service Rather Than Society Comes First With Britain's "Second Lady"

Shy and Confused by National Spotlight, Ishbel MacDonald Would Like to Dodge Formal Affairs; Thinks Modern Girls "Marvelous"

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—When Ishbel MacDonald, who as daughter and hostess of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, ranks officially next to Queen Mary, stepped off the gangplank at New York and was surrounded by shiny top hats, she was not a regal figure, but just a shy, confused looking young woman trying to hide behind her distinguished father.

When someone presented her with a large, opulent, Park-Avenue-looking corsage of orchids which she dutifully pinned on her gray fur collar, she did not look any happier.

For she is no orchid type, and is far removed from the hothouse woman. Rather she suggests the wind-blown, healthy highlands of Scotland, with her ruddy out-of-door color, her absence of any artificiality or artifice, and her clothes that bespeak the uplands rather than the metropolis.

She Isn't a Woman of Fashion

She was not a smart figure in her black silk cardigan suit with tiny white spots, her gray top coat, gay yellow and black scarf, gray stockings, large, commodious black leather zipper bag, and a hat that, judged by American standards—or any standards, in fact—was far from the last word in fashion.

But her clothes are the least interesting thing about her, and are mentioned only as a matter of news. She never would stop traffic on Broadway, but she would not want to. It is obvious that being a fashion plate is the least of her desires. Once you knew her I fancy you never would think about her clothes, because she herself is so superior to them, and so much more interesting than they could be.

Once she starts to talk, you notice her fine intelligent eyes, her honest, unaffected expressions, the masterly way she manipulates an interview and the witty and clever manner in which she diverts any questions that she does not care to answer, the careful way she listens, the fine modulation of her voice and her excellent choice of words. You feel behind all she says the keen mind that has made her such a success as one of the busiest hostesses in one of the busiest houses in the world.

At Home In Social Work

Lady Margaret Armstrong, wife of the British Consul General, Sir Harry G. Armstrong, one of the party of distinguished guests who officially welcomed her, said of Ishbel:

"You really should see her against the background which suits her best. It is not Downing Street, or on shipboard, but in a settlement house. She is marvelous there, and can accomplish the most unbelievable results working with working people."

Social work, rather than society or politics, is her great interest, and she has not sacrificed it to preside over No. 10 Downing Street. She is wrapped up heart and soul in child welfare work, particularly in the matter of obtaining better housing and better educational advantages for London's poor children.

Speaks Against War

She said she hoped American women were as interested in the results of her father's trip as British women were, and that they were as eager to promote and establish world peace.

"It is the women who must bring it about," she said seriously. "They must impress on their children the horrors of the war we went through, instead of its false glory. We must teach them it is nobler to live for their country than to die for it."

So long as the conversation was about social service, or women's political responsibilities, Miss MacDonald was willing and eager to answer.

She said she was not interested in becoming a member of Parliament, or in having any political career except as an aide in her father's activities.

She Isn't a Careerist

Asked if she would give up her present career for marriage, she laughed and said quite unaffectedly:

"But I have no career at all. And my father is not dependent on me—he has other daughters. I am not required to make any sacrifices for him."

Asked if she preferred the modern girl to the Victorian girl, she again laughed as she said: "I never knew a Victorian girl—she looks nice in her pictures. But I am delighted with the modern girl. I think she is marvelous."

Her visit here, she said, was out of her hands, and much as she wanted to see an American ball game, and to visit various social settlement centres, and go to art museums, she was afraid that most of these would have to wait until her next visit.

"Precedence" Doesn't Matter

The Washington squabbles about precedence and who sits where have no interest for her.

"I don't care where I sit at any function, so long as I have an interesting neighbor," she said. "That is more important to me than the social position."

She couldn't remember how many trunks she brought with her. She said she did not expect to do any shopping here—"Because I'm quite sure I have brought everything I need with me," she explained with perfect seriousness.

Miss MacDonald said she is fond of outdoor life, and loves the country, though she had very little opportunity for it in London. Not a drinker or a smoker herself, she has no objections to these habits, except that they waste one's time and are unnecessary.

Impressed by Skyline

She is intensely interested in America, and knows it slightly, having made one previous visit here. She gratified the 100 per cent New Yorkers by her delight in the sky line, and as she and her father came off the boat, leading the impressive parade up Broadway, she stopped just for a second to look up at the tall buildings.

Miss MacDonald is not a knockout but she easily wins on points, and she will be tremendously popular in this country.

Eggs May Form Basis For Many Attractive Dishes

Creamed Eggs with Mushrooms Happy Dinner Dish

Eggs constitute one of our most valuable food products, both because of the nutritive value and because of the many ways in which they may be utilized

Almost everyone can eat eggs because they are easily digested if cooked correctly. The white of the egg may become hard and leather-like if it is cooked at a high temperature. When "boiling" eggs, keep the temperature of the water just under the boiling point. When frying or baking eggs, turn the heat low to insure a tender product when finished.

Eggs are espesially good from the nutrition standpoint because th yoke contains a large amount of iron. It requires thought and care in selecting food to get as much iron as is needed by the body daily. An egg or two a day will help to insure an adequate supply. The following recipes suggest some different ways of using eggs.

Eggs Supreme

1 cup thick cream sauce; 6 hard cooked eggs; ½ cup cream or thick milk; 1-4 cup mushrooms; 1 cup cooked ham; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon paprika; ½ cup grated cheese; 1 cup crisp rice cereal.

To hot cream sauce, add sliced hard-cooked eggs, cream, mushrooms, ham salt and paprika. Sprinkle top with cheese and rice cereal. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 minutes.

Corn Flake Omelet

4 eggs; ⅛ teaspoon pepper;; ½ teaspoon salt; 3 tablespoons water; 4 cupst Corn Flakes.

Beat four eggs, whites and yokes separately. To the yokes, add salt and pepper and 3 tablespoons of water. Beat well. Fold whites into this and fold about four cups of Corn Flakes into the egg mixture. Cook omelet on both sides until a golden brown. Serve hot with broiled bacon and tart jelly.

Baked Eggs

Select small tomatoes of uniform size. Cut around the stems and remove the seeds. Put tomatoes in small cake tin. Break a fresh egg into each. Add salt and pepper and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 12 minutes until egg is set. Serve on hot buttered toast with tomato sauce.

Eggs in Potatoe Nest

Put a two-inch layer of mashed potatoes in baking dish. Make indentations with a tablespoon and drop an egg in each hollow. Season and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15 minutes until egg is set.

Creamed Eggs with Mushrooms

1 cup finely chopped mushrooms; 6 chopped hard-boiled eggs; ½ teaspoon salt; few grains of pepper; 2 cupe medium white sauce.

Suate mushrooms in butter. Mix mushrooms, eggs and seasonings with white sauce. Put in baking dish. Sprinkle with Corn Flake crumbs and grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15-20 minutes or until cheese is melted.

First Woman Judge In Poland Is Modern, Sympathetic Girl

Was Second to Receive Appointment in Whole of Europe

WARSAW, Oct. 19.—Miss Wanda Grabinska, the first woman judge in Poland, recently received a representative of the Christian Science Monitor. Before the interview, the writer was permitted to be present at the court for juvenile offenders where Miss Grabinska was presiding, and thus had an opportunity of observing this young and attractive looking judge at work and admiring her efficient way of handling her difficult task.

The room in which proceedings take place is plain but clean. Round the walls are inscriptions: "Trust Us," "Speak the Truth," "We Want to Help You." The way in which Miss Gradinska dealt with the young offenders showed she had taken these mottoes to heart. Her manner was kindly though firm. She endeavors to understand the transgressor, to examine his motives and to allow in every way for extenuating circumstances. There is no bullying or frightening, but, on the contrary, an attitude of sympathy and understanding. Only as a last resort is a verdict of prison given. As a rule, the case is submitted to the protection of the court, the transgressor is obliged from time to time to give account of himself before the court, and meantime a guardian (such as is called in Canada a probation officer), usually a woman, visits him or her at home, investigates conditions, gives help if necessary, tries to find work for the offender and gives kindly advice and tries to exercise beneficial influence. Should this fail, the wrong-doer is sent to a reformatory school, and only in extreme cases is the punishment of prison pronounced.

Devoted to Children

Miss Grabinska later received the Monitor representative and talked of her personal experiences. She said she was devoted to children, and nothing gave her greater pleasure than to play with them, while the children treated her as an equal. It was this love of children that in part induced her to devote herself to the department for juvenile offenders, for she felt she could enter into their thoughts and understand their motives, which often originally arose from a childish love of adventure badly directed. Apart from this, the problem of criminology interests her especially, and she feels she can study it in embryo in the juvenile. During her term of candidature in the court she often had opportunities to plead, and here she came to the conclusion that she would like to open a new path for women as judges for the young, feeling that women, with their quick instution and sympathetic understanding of the adolescent, might do a most useful work. For her it is the greatest satisfaction to feel she has been able to rescue some fellow creatures, to bring them back to a path of honest and productive work. She has faith in human nature; for her the person before the court is not a creature condemed to a miserable existance of sin, but a fellow-being endowed often with great abilities that have been misdirected.

Modern Type of Girl

Miss Grabinska herself represents a type of the modern Polish girl who looks on life with fearless bright eyes, determined to do her part in building up the new Poland. She is the second woman judge on the Continent the first to be appointed being in Denmark, and the third has now been appointed in Germany. In Poland there is already another candidate and Miss Grabinska thinks the path she has opened out will find a wide development.

There has further been established in Poland a special training school for teachers in reformatory schools, in which women will also find a new field of action.

Saturday Becomes Popular Nuptial Day For Young Brides Of Edmonton

Tuesday and Thursday Were Once "Smart" Wedding Days; Ceremonies of Gay Nineties Were Different From Those of Today

(By H. M. B.)

Sweetly the organ peals forth the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin and the pretty young bride comes down the church aisle with her father and her bridal attendants to meet the nervous bridegroom at the altar. The ceremony is performed, the register signed and then the organ triumphantly peals forth Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the happy pair go out as "Mr. and Mrs." The guests then turn to each other and murmur "wasn't she beautiful" and "wasn't it a lovely wedding." It all goes so smoothly and serenly that no one imagines the excitement and confusion which always precede a wedding. Every detail has been carefully planned and thought of by some one. Almost the first thing after the wedding has been decided upon arises the important question, "When?"

Bride Names Happy Day

It is the bride's prerogative to name the "happy day." They say that brides of today are just the same as those of former days. Why then is it that the brides of yesterday chose Tuesdays or Thursdays as the wedding day, shunning Friday and Saturday, while the brides of today show a preference for the last day of the week. The most remarkable feature of weddings in Edmonton during the past year has been the decided preference shown for Saturday. A great number of the fashionable weddings of recent months have taken place on Saturdays. Like the brides of yesterday, those of 1929 still consider Friday an unlucky day.

Allows For Longer Honeymoon

Various reasons are given for the choice of Saturday. The real explanation seems to be that this is a workday world, and as the business week ends on Saturday that is the logical day for having a large wedding with the formal reception following. In these days when holidays are usually of two or three weeks duration it is possible to make the honeymoon a few days longer by starting and ending it at the week-end so that is a point not forgotten.

Day With Some Significence

One Edmonton girl recently chose Saturday as her wedding day as her fiance could get no holidays at all, so by being married on Saturday they had Sunday in which to motor liesurely to their new home. One popular young couple who planned to sail across the ocean for their honeymoon found that in order to have the right time for the overland journey and then board the ship they would have to be married on Saturday, and so they were. One of the most prominent of recent brides chose Saturday as it was her young brother's birthday, for she felt that it would be even more interesting to be married on a day that already had some significence in the family. Brides who have wished to have friends present from out of town at their weddings have frequently chosen Saturday as it is easier for these guests to come at the week-end.

All The Churches Have 'Em

Nor has this preference for Saturday been among one circle of friends, or in one district. It has been apparent wherever there have been weddings—which of course is everywhere. "Doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief," from the son of a duke to the son of the most humble citizen—they have all wed on Saturday. Saturday weddings have not been confined to any one denomination. For instance, take the "down town" churches: All Saints Cathedral, First Presbyterian church, St. Joseph's cathedral and Robertson United church have all been the scenes of smart Saturday weddings in recent months.

Dancing Was Important Part

How different are the weddings of today from those of years ago. Here is one clipped from the Bulletin files of December 3, 1890

"A large party assembled at Mr. James Price's house, Belmont, on Tuesday evening last, to witness the marriage of his second daughter Mary Ann to J. R. Turner of Clover Bar, son of the late Senator Turner of Hamilton, Ontario. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Newton. W. Wilkie and W. Price as groomsmen and Misses Jane and Maggie Price as bridesmaids. Over 60 guests sat down to the wedding breakfast and joined in good wishes to the bride and groom. Music and dancing followed and were kept up with spirit until the usual early hour."

What a gay picture can be imagined of the dancing which was "kept up with spirit until the usual early hour."

Salute of Firearms

Here is another of about the same date.

"A wedding party from the Lower Settlement drove through town to the Methodist church on Tuesday afternoon, the occasion being the marriage of George Gullion, Jr., of the Two lakes on the Athabaska trail, and Miss Annie Bayne of Victoria. Rev. Mr. Procunier performed the ceremony. The party were given a salute of firearms on their return from the church to W. Borwick's house where the wedding feast was spread and the occasion celebrated in the old time style."

Wedding Procession The Thing

What would happen if we gave some of today's brides a "salute of firearms on their return from the church"?

Wedding processions seem to have been quite the things in those days, for here is a line clipped from the paper of February 1, 1891.

"A wedding procession enlivened the streets on Monday afternoon. The happy couple were Elis Daignault and Miss Cardinal of South Edmonton."

This does not seem to be quite such a good idea, for if February's were just as cold then it must have been a rather chilly business parading around the streets in wedding attire.

At any rate our Saturday brides were no less lovely than those of the "gay nineties" so let us toast them, wishing them all happiness.

PAINTED CLOSETS

It is advantageous both from a beauty and sanitary standpoint to paint the insides of clothes closets. A cream with okra yellow in it is a good choice for paint, unless you want to match up your bedroom decorations.

SQUARE HEELS

New evening slippers may have slender, square shaped heels, instead of the traditionally rounded ones. Vividly colored heels on gold or silver slippers are new.

MAN HEARD SAME REMARK AS SPIRIT SEANCE REVEALED

Yorkshire Police Search for Mushroom Picker in Ilkley Moor Murder

NEW DEVELOPMENT

nquirer as to Best Field Had Bloodstains and Injured Wrist

The West Riding of Yorkshire police are investigating a clue in the Ilkley Moor murder case. It came to them following a report of a spiritualistic seance.

The body of Miss Mary Learoyd was found near her home at Ilkley in the morning of Sunday, August 5.

It is now stated that at 7:30 on the same morning a man with his right hand bandaged and with a blood mark on his cuff went into a field where men were gathering mushrooms.

The statement is made by one of the mushroom gatherers. He had not previously associated the incident with the crime in any way, but his attention had been called to it by reading an account of a spiritualistic seance held in Bradford last week.

THE MAN IN THE FIELD.

At this it was alleged that Miss Learoyd's spirit, giving an account of the murder, told of a man who went into a field and asked which was the best field for mushrooms.

The man, when interviewed, said an identically similar remark was addressed to him. He said:

"I was gathering mushrooms in a meadow at Ben Rhydding (a mile from Ilkley). There were several men in the field, and I had got a few mushrooms when a man came up to me and said, 'Is this the best field for mushrooms?' I laughed at the way he put the question, and then he said, 'Well, is it a good field?' I told him what I had got, and he started to look for mushrooms, but he walked very fast up and down the field.

BANDAGED HAND.

"The grass was long and you had to look very carefully, but he would go 300 yards by the time I had gone 50.

"I noticed particularly that the man was wearing white shirt cuffs, and that he had to jerk his wrists several times to keep them up. He had no bag for carrying mushrooms, but I saw him pick a few. He was about 5 ft. 6 in. in height and was dressed in a blue serge suit and light fawn dust coat.

"His right hand was wrapped with some sort of bandage, and there was a bloodmark, I think, on his cuff. He told me he had hurt his hand in getting through the hedge.

"When I went away I left the man in the field."

QUEEN TO OPEN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Polytechnic Built and Equipped at Cost of $1,000,000

The Queen, it is expected will open the Polytechnic Women's Institute—which has been built and equipped at a cost of £200,000—within the next few weeks.

Between the basement, where there is a kitchen equipped to serve 500 dinners at once, and the fifth floor, where women are taught the management of household electrical gadgets, in a range of instructional departments varying from permanent waving to body-building for motorcars.

The new building is just off Portland street, near the headquarters in Regent street.

"Pressure of sessional work makes it advisable to start in advance of the official opening," said Major Worswick director of education at the Polytechnic. "Last year we had 15,000 students, and 6,000 members who join only for the social amenities. This year we shall enroll 17,000 students."

This women's institute is the only building of its size in London—it has accommodation for 3,000 students—heated solely by electricity.

The main hall is equipped as a gymnasium, but can quickly be converted into a ball room with an ornamental fountain which is under the floor and can be raised on its own platform. The gymnasium apparatus is dropped below the floor when transformation is desired. Most remarkable of all the disappearing additions is the five ton screen which can be used to divide the great hall into two apartments, in one of which is a concert platform. This gigantic screen has been made to harmonise with the general scheme of decorations, and is fireproof.

"FLYING SCOTSMAN" PILOT IS DEAD

The death of Albert Pibworth, who for many years drove the Flying Scotsman between King's Cross and Edinburgh, was reported recently. He died at Enborne, near Newbury, seven months after his retirement from the L.N.E.R., aged sixty-five.

He had loved his engines all his life, and it is thought probable that enforced absence from the footplate affected his health.

He once said: "Each moment I am on the footplate of the Flying Scotsman is greater than the last. Engine driving is a tranquil occupation, and whether it be lashing rain, a thunderstorm, falling snow, blackest night or fog, a good engine-driver's confidence is supreme."

Pibworth drove the first non-stop train between London and Newcastle, and was also associated with the first non-stop run from London to Edinburgh last year.

VILLAGE INN IS SOLD FOR $50,000

A village inn, the Royal Oak at Edwinstowe, and land fetched $50,000 at an auction recently. This was 10 times the amount for which it could have been bought two or three years ago.

The explanation is that the coalfield in the Dukeries is being developed, and a pit has been sunk by the Bolsover Colliery Company near Edwinstowe.

ABSENT CORONER HELD UP FUNERAL

Arrangements for the funeral of Herbert Punton, 50, of Boulmer, Northumberland, had to be interrupted to await a post-mortem examination and coroner's inquest.

The mourners were preparing to leave for the cemetery when the postponement order arrived.

Mr. Punton became ill and died after eating some winkles. The doctor gave the relatives a note for the registrar who, however, thought it was a case for the coroner.

The coroner could not be found and by the time he had made his decision the funeral arrangements had been made.

WINDOW SLASHING CRAZE IN LONDON

Enormous Damage Done With Cheap Glass Cutters Bought From Hawkers

FOURTH EPIDEMIC

Most Plate Glass Insurance Does Not Cover Anything But Breakage

The epidemic of window slashing has spread to all parts of London, and shopkeepers are seriously disturbed by the growing menace and over a thousand windows have been damaged.

There is talk in some of the affected areas of shopkeepers forming themselves into "watchers" to patrol the streets at night and protect their windows. The extent of the outbreak makes it difficult for the police to cope with it. Some of the big establishments are maintaining a 24-hour patrol of commissionaires until the trouble abates.

The slashing seems to be carried on without apparent motive. It is following the course of similar mysterious epidemics in 1908, 1913, and 1921.

One explanation suggested by an insurance official is the flooding of the "kerb markets" with cheap metal glass-cutters.

NO INSURANCE.

The plate-glass insurance companies were beseiged by inquiries for policies to cover the risk.

"Ninety-five per cent of the standard policies do not cover the risk of scratching," said an insurance broker. "They definitely stipulate 'breakages.' The remaining 5 per cent stipulate that a special clause should be inserted and an increased premium paid."

The insurance experts do not see in the epidemic an organized gang campaign. One insurance agent blamed street hawkers, who demonstrated their glass-cutters on plate-glass panes and "put ideas into people's heads."

"If the police could stop the sale of these three penny cutters to unauthorized people," said the insurance official "there would not be this wholesale disfigurement of windows.

"The nature of the slashes show that they are done out of mischief rather than maliciousness. They vary in depth and without the steady pressure a glazier would exert. They are obviously the handiwork of dozens of different people."

It is quite impossible to estimate the extent of the damage. The danger of windows collapsing is negligible.

The nature of the scratches vary. Some of the shopkeepers are trying to polish them out, and in time they may succeed if the scratches are not too deep. Some windows cost from £30 to £50, but that is not dead loss even if the windows have to be replaced; there is so much salvage.

Some of the insurance companies, while disputing any liability are, as an act of grace, removing windows and, by inverting and turning the glass, contriving that the scratch, instead of being at the bottom of the window is at the top and inside where it cannot be seen.

The general manager of the Plate Glass Insurance Company suggested a remedy for scratches: "Dust away the powdered glass and rub the groove over with an oily rag, the scratch will practically disappear."

He pointed out that it was practically impossible for a plateglass window to be broken by slashing, and pointed out that even if a diamond was used considerable pressure would be required to produce a deep groove.

SWINDLER POSED AS SCHOOLMASTER

Lectured on Experiences in War Although He Never Served

Described as one of the cleverest and most unscrupulous forgers and swindlers the police have had to deal with, Rex Campbell Rennie, 47, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude at the Old Bailey, for trying to obtain £1,250 by means of a forged agreement.

A police officer said that Rennie had been a schoolmaster, and in 1903 obtained possession of a school by representing himself to be a Master of Arts.

Dressed in the gown of an Oxford M.A., he lectured the pupils and friends on his experiences in the Boer War, although he had never served in that campaign. He had posed as a colonel, a major and a captain, although in fact he had only been a bombardier in the R.F.A.

At one time he opened a beauty parlor, but did little business.

The Recorder, Sir Ernest Wild, K.C., told Rennie that he was a plausible swindler and a danger to the community.

AWARD TO SLATER UNDER GARNISHEE

Two hundred and fifty pounds which was to have been paid to Oscar Slater by a Scottish newspaper has been "arrested" in the Scottish courts following the recent announcement that Sir A. Conan Doyle had issued a writ for the recovery of a similar amount from Mr. Slater.

The amount garnisheed represents a settlement made in a Scottish court in an action brought by Mr. Slater against a newspaper in connection with his "life story" which was published while he was still in prison.

The money was garnisheed at the instance of Sir A. Conan Doyle.

FACTORY FIRE IN HOXTON DROVE OUT FORTY FAMILIES

Noted Sculler Saved Life of One Employe as Roof Crashed

IN DANGER ZONE

Heavy Loss by Cabinet Makers Including Exhibition Street

Nearly 40 families were rushed from their homes under the glare of a blazing factory when damage estimated at £50,000 was done by fire to the premises of Messrs. Beresford and Hicks, cabinet makers, Hoxton, London.

The factory is one of the biggest of its kind in the district. It is surrounded by narrow streets and houses, each tenated by several families, and on account of its congested character the area is known as the "Hoxton danger zone."

The heat was so intense that windows of houses in Hemsworth street, which backs on to the factory, were smashed. Then flames, leaping across the 12 feet separating the houses from the burning building, set light to the curtains. The contents of a room occupied by Mrs. Fry and part of the furniture in a room rented by Mrs. Moore were destroyed.

STAIRCASE ABLAZE.

The outbreak occurred in the machine-room on the ground floor of the factory, and rapidly spread to the first floor, where 150 workmen were engaged. While the tenants in adjoining houses were rushing for safety, the workmen were fighting their way through dense volumes of smoke to the open.

At the alarm of "Fire," they made for the staircase, only to find that it was already in flames. Escape that way was impossible. Many sought a way out by jumping through the windows on to the roof of a shed; others scrambled down the outside escape. One of the men, A. E. Cook, aged 60, fell into a stain tank and fractured his right leg.

Fireman A. Edward Fage was injured by the falling debris, and many others had narrow escape as the building, with its store of massive and beautiful furniture, fell to pieces. A choice bedroom suite, made for exhibition and valued at £350, was totally destroyed.

Jack Beresford, the famous sculler, and son of Mr. Beresford, part proprietor of the firm, probably saved the life of one of the workmen.

He was about to pay the wages when a telephone call from the foreman warned him of the fire. Rushing to the burning building, he found that one of the men had stayed to put on his boots. He promptly seized the man and forced him through the doorway, and no sooner were the pair clear of the room than the glass roof crashed down.

"It was the narrowest escape I have had in my life," said one of the cabinet makers. "There were nearly 200 of us working in the room, when one of the men called out, 'The machine-room is on fire.'

"We rushed to the wooden staircase, but were driven back by the smoke and flames. Almost before we had time to look round the whole building was a furnace. It was then we had to jump through the windows on to the roof of a shed to get away. Delay would have meant death."

Twelve brigades were engaged for four hours before the fire could be got under control.

RIDDLE OF TWO-PENCE SENT POLICE

Woman Posted Them in Registered Letter Then Committed Suicide

What is the secret of the two pennies enclosed in a registered letter and received by the Brighton police shortly before a woman fell 100 feet to her death over the cliff at Peacehaven before a crowd of horrified holidaymakers?

The letter gave no indication of any intention to commit suicide, and the police are at a loss to account for the woman's action. She was identified as Mrs. Violet Stephenson Wilder, aged about 40, of Cavendish street, Brighton. It is not known whether she had any relatives, and the police are anxious to get into touch with anyone who has known her.

A witness on the beach saw her at the top of the cliff with her legs dangling over. He tried to signal her, but she took no notice.

In her bag was a receipt for a registered letter addressed to the Chief Constable of Brighton.

Mr. W. G. Martin, of Hampton Wick, fell 100 feet down the cliff at St. Margaret's Bay and was fatally injured. He had been staying at a convalescent home.

LOBSTERS BOMBED BY TORPEDO BOATS

Complaints that torpedo boat destroyers are dropping depth charges in the crab and lobster fishing areas off Wyke Regis (Dorset) were made at a meeting of the Southern Fisheries District Committee at Bournemouth recently.

A report, presented by the chief fishery officer, stated that, after depth charges had been dropped, fishermen found that all shell-fish caught in their pots were dead, and that shell-fish, principally crabs, had thrown off their legs and claws, owing to the force of the explosions. In addition, large numbers of dead fish were found floating on the water.

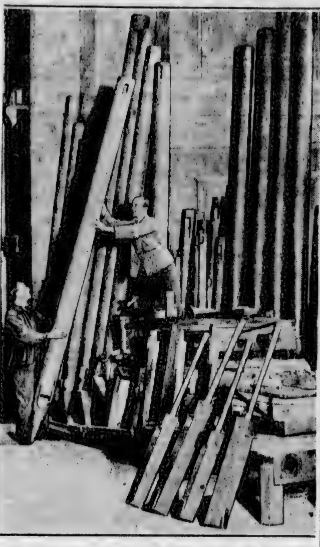
The effect of the firing of depth charges was to kill practically all the fish on the good grounds in the area affected and fishermen were unable to catch any shell-fish for a considerable period afterwards.

It was reported that a promise had been secured that depth charges would be dropped further out in future.

"BOY" OF 67 PLEADS FOR 90-YEAR-OLD MA.

Introducing an old-age pensioner of 67 as "My boy," a woman of 90 asked Hotsford Guardians to give him a good hearing when he pleaded her case for relief. They did, and she succeeded.

ST. PAUL'S ORGAN IN PIECES



The famous organ of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, just now appears as a pile of pipes, wood and wind-trunks. It has been dismantled for removal to a position beneath the dome, which it formerly occupied before repairs to the dome were commenced. The picture shows workmen stacking some of the pipes. The change will require about three months to complete.

POLICE CHIEF WILL HELP DEFEND MAN

Engages Solicitor to Aid Prisoner Who Assisted Recovery of Goods

FIANCEE'S THANKS

"Am Only Doing What His Father Would Have Done If Alive"

At his own expense, A. E. Derham, Chief Constable at Blackpool, is instructing a solicitor to engage counsel to defend a man who was committed for trial at Blackpool on charges of housebreaking, burglary and larceny.

The man, who was charged in the name of Stanley H. Thurston, 19, is otherwise known as "Mr. Plummerton," but it was stated that his real name is Alfred Ernest Yates.

Thurston, it was explained, had given the Blackpool police great assistance in recovering property alleged to have been stolen.

When the case was before the police court he said he had helped the police because of his love for Nancy Annie Hartley.

Mr. Derham has received a touching letter from the girl, Miss Hartley.

"Stan and I," she wrote, "love one another very dearly, and only God knows what a kindness you have done us. . . . I thank you once again from my heart, and neither Stan nor I shall ever forget our friend, Mr. Derham."

"NOT THE FIRST TIME."

In an interview Chief Derham disclaimed any special credit for his action.

"It is not the first time I have done this sort of thing," he said. "Here is this young fellow without a father or a mother, and I think he has helped me to recover nearly £10,000 worth of property.

"I am a father myself. I am simply doing what the lad's own father would if he were alive and could afford to do it.

"There is, I am sure, genuine affection between Thurston and the girl who was brought up with him originally, and who was discharged. I am trying to get her to go to the Sessions and plead for him.

"I am convinced that there is some good in the lad."

FINED FOR LACK OF COMFORT IN COACH

Motor Bus Trippers From London Complained of Bad Accommodation

A prosecution affecting the comfort of motor-coach passengers, stated to be the first of its kind, was heard at Southend.

William Omerod Mitchell, garage proprietor, was fined £5 for failing to properly cushion the seats of a coach which brought a party of trippers from London. He pleaded guilty.

Mr. Alfred Brooks, of Islington, one of the passengers, said that:

Spring protruded through the cushions:

A woman threw out several pounds of litter, including banana skins, from the seat on which she was sitting:

Smoke came through the floor boards:

Brakes were inefficient, and the engine made a terrific noise.

With regard to excessive noise, the Bench ordered the driver of the vehicle, David William Peck, to pay 5s. costs and a £2 fine because of inefficient brakes.

CABBIE SUICIDES WHEN HORSE SOLD

"My poor old Billie. Only a true lover of horses knows what a wrench it was to part with him. I can see him looking at me now."

This note, written to the coroner by Harry Powderhill, an old Smethwick cabman, before placing his head in a gas oven, was read at the inquest.

The widow said there was no work for cabmen nowadays and her husband had to sell his horse.

A verdict of suicide whilst insane was returned.

DID AIRMAN DIE SUDDENLY IN AIR?

Crash Near Bristol Which Killed Pilot and Passenger Unexplained

The theory that an airman may have died suddenly when piloting his 'plane was discussed by the Gloucestershire Coroner at the inquest on the victims of the air crash which occurred at Hambrook, near Bristol.

The inquest was adjourned until October 14.

The bodies were identified by Captain Ernest Bartlett, chief instructor of the Bristol and Essex Airplane Club, as Edward Matthias Tiarks, aged 24, of Luxton Lodge, Axbridge, and Second-Lieutenant Edward Victor Somerset, aged 20, of the Coldstream Guards, stationed at Canterbury.

Captain Bartlett said the machine belonged to Mr. Tiarks. He saw it leave Priddy. As the 'plane was of a dual control type it was impossible to say who was piloting.

Both the men were licensed pilots. It was their intention to fly around for a while and then land at Filton aerodrome so that Mr. Somerset might catch a train.

Captain Bartlett said that earlier in the day he had tried the machine, which appeared in perfect condition.

DOUBT ABOUT PILOT

Dr. Susan Roberts, of Hambrook, stated that when she arrived on the scene of the accident she found Mr. Somerset was dead. Mr. Tiarks was alive, but unconscious. Mr. Tiarks died within a few minutes of her arrival. Death in the case of Tiarks was due to a fractured skull.

The Coroner.—And in the case of Mr. Somerset? Supposing he were piloting, it is possible that he might have died suddenly in the air? You cannot say definitely whether he died in the air or as a result of injuries received in the crash.

Dr. Roberts.—I cannot say definitely.

The Coroner.—The injuries, you say, were sufficient to cause death?

Dr. Roberts.—Instantaneously.

JOB HUNTERS ARE AFTER LANSBURY

How he had been inundated with applications for posts since he became First Commissioner of Works, was related by George Lansbury. He was addressing women in connection with the United Methodists' Free Church, at Bruce Road, Bromley-by-Bow.

"People seem to think," said Mr. Lansbury, "that I have unlimited jobs to give away. I have had hundreds of letters from people who say they have met me and know me. They seem to think that I am a good-hearted sort of fellow who, now that I have found a job for myself, can find a job for them as well.

"I cannot give a single job to anybody. That is not the way things are done at the Office of Works, and it is a good thing, because otherwise it would lead to a great deal of favoritism."

DRUNKEN MOTORISTS ARE CRIMINALS

"A man who, when drunk, gets into a motorcar and drives it is, in my judgment, a criminal. He knows perfectly well that he is risking the lives and limbs of anybody who may be near where he is driving."—Mr. R. E. Dummett, at the Marylebone Police Court.

JAIL FOR WOMAN WHO "WED" GIRL TO SUPPORT HER

Unusual Story Told in Greenock Sheriff's Court of Imposture

PRIEST WAS MISLED

Accused Afterwards Resumed Life as Charwoman to Keep Friend

A strange story of the "marriage" of one woman to another was told at the Greenock Sheriff's Court.

Mary Brown pleaded guilty to making a false and fictitious entry in a schedule issued by the registrar at Port Glasgow to the effect that a lawful marriage had been celebrated in the Roman Catholic Church between Hugh Brown and Elizabeth McGowan.

She was further charged with having falsely represented herself as a man to the priest at the church.

In passing sentence of 40 days' imprisonment, the Under-Sheriff said it was a "most extraordinary case, and very difficult to decide upon."

The evidence was that Brown and McGowan had been on friendly terms for some time, and that in 1926 they went together to the Catholic Church at Port Glasgow, where questions were put to the priest regarding Brown's admission into the Catholic Church, she being a Protestant.

WHAT THE PRIEST HEARD.

Towards the end of October, 1926, they again visited the priest, declaring they wanted to be married, and explaining that, although Brown was dressed as a woman, she was really a man.

Although she gave an "explanation" of her dress, the priest declared that the marriage could not be celebrated unless she assumed the dress of the sex to which she maintained she belonged.

On November 3, 1926, the parties appeared at the church and presented a certificate and proclamation of banns of the "marriage" between Hugh Brown and Elizabeth McGowan. Brown was then in man's clothing, and the priest performed the ceremony, after which Brown signed the schedule provided by the registrar as "Hugh Brown, carter and bachelor."

Apparently, for some time before, Brown and McGowan had been living together, and McGowan's parents had been informed that a marriage had previously taken place.

The parents, however, were unable to find any record of this marriage, and immediately on hearing of the subsequent "wedding" in Port Glasgow they reported the matter to the police.

FATHER'S CHASE.

A warrent was issued for the arrest of Mary Brown, but no trace of her could be found until, on September 9, the father of Brown's "wife" saw them from the top of a tramcar.

Jumping off, he ran after them, and caught his daughter by the arm, but Brown got away. Later, Brown was taken into custody.

She at first denied the charge, and declared that it was her brother who had gone through the marriage ceremony.

The only explanation of the affair that occurred, said counsel, was that Brown wanted to secure the constant companionship of the woman McGowan. There was no suggestion that after the marriage service accused continued to wear the clothes of a man. She had been working as a cleaner and char-woman, and supporting the other woman.

For Brown, it was stated that in ordinary circumstances this would have been a very serious affair. Her explanation was that she wanted to take the other young woman out of her own home, where she was unhappy.

Brown, who was left an orphan at the age of 14, had been working for herself, and had never been in any kind of trouble before.

NORFOLK CLIFFS CRASH INTO SEA

Farmer Harrowing Corn Field Saw it Disappear With Roar

Forty thousand tons of cliff fell with a crash like thunder, about a quarter of a mile southeast of Mundesley, Norfolk, recently.

A further fall is likely, as there is a big crack near the new cliff edge.

A cornfield which had recently been reaped formed part of the land which has vanished. Isaac Temple, of Trunch, who was working in the field, had a narrow escape.

"I had just turned the harrow round from the edge of the cliff when I heard a noise like thunder," he said. "My horse bolted, and I ran for safety. When I turned I saw that about 200 feet of the land I had harrowed had disappeared."

Two people had been sitting on the beach about ten minutes before the cliff fell.

A portion of a favorite footpath used by visitors and residents has disappeared.

This is the fourth big fall of cliff on the north Norfolk coast between Cromer and Mundesley within two years.

The last fall, of 80,000 tons, was in October last at Trimmingham, two miles north of the present fall.

There are no buildings within 400 yards of the scene of the fall. The main road is about 500 yards away.

CRINOLINE WALK FOR $25 WAGER

Crowds of people in Salisbury's busiest streets on a recent market day—saw with astonishment the daughter of a prominent local farmer walk along dressed in a mid-Victorian crinoline and bonnet.

She was Miss Mary Waters, of Clarendon, who was out to win a wager of $25.

About three years ago a friend of the family offered this sum to Miss Waters, who is 21, if she would walk in her grandmother's wedding-dress from the Cathedral Close to the Poultry Cross, and on Saturday said he could keep the offer open only another week.

He was waiting for her at the Poultry Cross, and there handed her the $25.

SCHOOL BOY DIED WITH BUCKLED FEET

How a public school boy was found in the Thames with his ankles buckled together with a belt was told at a Maidenhead inquest on John Rupert Gradon, aged 16.

Gradon's father, an official at the Admiralty, said his son was at St. Paul's School.

The boy was six feet one inch tall. He was very healthy and strong but highly strung.

He had just taken his matriculation examination and was pessimistic about his chances. He had been greatly disappointed because he had previously failed in one subject last spring.

Verdict: Suicide while of unsound mind.

TOUCHING PLEA BY NUN FOR DRIVER

Asks Coroner Not To Punish Chauffeur Whose Lorry Killed Sister

CHELSEA TRAGEDY

"We Pardon Him From Bottom of Our Hearts," Says Mother Superior

What the coroner described as "a very beautiful letter" from the Mother Superior of the Convent of Adoration Reparatrice, Chelsea, was read at the inquest on Marie Ann Lieber ("Sister Helen"), who was killed by a van in Beaufort street.

After the jury had returned a verdict of accidental death and exonerated the driver from blame Dr. G. B. Scott, the deputy coroner, read the letter, which was in the following terms:

"I wish to ask you on behalf of my sisters and myself to save the poor chauffeur, who may, or who may not, have been the cause of her death, from all punishment.

"The fault may have most likely been with Sister Helen. She may have risked crossing when the lorry was too near, or she may not have heard it, being deaf in one ear.

"In any case, if it was the poor man's fault, we pardon him from the bottom of our hearts, and feel sure our dear sister is praying for him from her heavenly abode.

"We could not dare to think he might be punished on our account. We would feel the blow more than the death of our dear sister, who we know is at rest. We pray that the poor man may soon be free from further anxiety. I understand he has a family."

"THY WILL BE DONE"

Another letter, consisting of one sentence, was written to Dr. Lee, the police surgeon. It read:

Almighty God alone knows all, and Thy will be done.

It was stated that Sister Helen, who was 68 years old, was returning from taking a basket of mulberries to the widow of a banker when she was knocked down.

The driver of the van said he had no time to hoot or swerve.

PANEL DOCTOR OR HONEST MAN

Reason Why Medico Sold His Practice Given Friendly Society

"I felt that I could not be an honest man and a panel doctor at the same time, so I sold my panel."

This sentence was in a letter, stated to have been written by a doctor, which was read to the National Conference of Friendly Societies at Lowestoft by J. H. Blakeway, of Southampton.

"A successful and popular panel doctor is one who believes every yarn he is told and gives away the certificates that he is asked for" the writer added.

Mr. Blakeway, who represented the National Deposit Friendly Society, moved a resolution declaring that unproper claims were being made upon sickness funds.

NEW TYPE OF DOCTOR

A system which regulated a doctor's emoluments by the size of his panel was bound to be open to grave suspicion, as there must be a conflict of interests between a panel doctor and the friendly societies, he said.

He was not satisfied that in all cases there was a careful examination and diagnosis before a certificate was issued, and that in cases of continuing sickness a certificate was not too easily obtained. The panel system had brought into being a new type of medical man who, unlike the old family practitioner or club doctor, knew little or nothing of his patients.

The resolution was withdrawn upon an undertaking being given that the whole matter would be investigated by the executive committee.

DOG'S MEMORY ANNOYED MAJOR

Remembered Stone Throwing Incident Three Years and Sought Revenge

The story of a dog's prolonged hostility was told to the Bournemouth magistrates when Dr. Arthur Lee, of St. Stephens Road, Bournemouth, was summoned for not keeping the dog under proper control.

It was stated that three years ago Major S. W. Sweetman attempted to throw a stone at the dog, and since then the dog has taken a dislike to him.

Major Sweetman said he was walking through the Bournemouth pleasure grounds when the dog rushed towards him. He had nothing to defend himself with so he bolted into a crowd coming out of the cinema.

"This has been going on," said Major Sweetman for three years. "On September 1 I had to stop on the pier until I saw the dog go away, and it has attacked me on other occasions."

Dr. Lee said his dog was on the beach daily playing with children, and had never hurt anyone.

UNIQUE CASE OF MENTAL BLANK DUE TO FAMILY WORRY

Man Murdered Unfaithful Wife and Excites General Sympathy

"TRIANGLE" DRAMA

Five Years' Penal Servitude With Hope of Sentence Diminution

The effect on the brain when an animal or human being is subjected to great physical or mental fatigue was questioned by counsel during a murder trial at the Old Bailey.

George Robert Davison, 30, of Burnt Farm Lodge, near Cheshunt, was charged with murdering his wife and with attempted suicide.

The jury returned a verdict of manslaughter and Davison was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

Mr. Justice Hawke, summing up, said he doubted whether there was a case quite like the one before the Court in the records of crime.

Not only did the relatives of Davison, the police and independent people give him an admirable character, but the relatives and friends of the dead woman also joined in showing sympathy for him.

Davison shot his wife following the discovery that she had been carrying on an intrigue with a lodger named Woodhouse.

In a letter to the coroner Davison wrote:

"My wife has been carrying on with another man twice her age, so I am going to put a stop to it at once. When you pass the verdict don't put temporarily insane, as I am as sensible as ever I have been."

DOCTOR'S EVIDENCE.

Dr. Watson, senior medical officer of Brixton Prison, said Davison showed no signs of insanity while in prison. He had stated that he had completely lost his memory of everything that had happened since he left work on the day before the tragedy until he found himself in hospital.

Replying to Mr. Peregrine (defending), Dr. Watson agreed that there might be a period—possibly days—during which Davison's mind was a blank. He would not say he was sane when he committed the act.

Mr. Peregrine asked whether it was not a fact that in the brain cells there were little granules, and if an animal or human being were made to suffer great physical or mental fatigue an alteration took place in the structure of the cells, which could be recognized under a microscope.

Dr. Watson said that it was difficult to be sure of this, because the cells would have to be dead and subjected to various processes before they could be examined under a microscope. He agreed that all mental processes had a concurrent physical change in the brain.

Mr. Peregrine, addressing the jury, said that a more sad case had seldom been presented. Mrs. Davison was not a dissolute woman, but a good woman until a few months ago, when a man twice her age came to lodge at her home. Through some extraordinary influence this man was able to bring to bear upon her, he changed her into a vile character.

MOVING APPEAL.

Mr. Peregrine made a moving appeal to the judge for mitigation of sentence, in view of the terrible suffering the prisoner had had and the "awful provocation."

"I ask you not to further punish this man," he added, "while the one who is the real cause of it walks free."

Passing sentence, Mr. Justice Hawke said that he had been very much moved by the history of Davison's misfortunes, but, unhappily, he could not deal with the matter other than with some severity.

If a more merciful view that he was taking could be taken by others who would perhaps have better opportunities of considering the matter, no one would be more pleased than himself.

SUDBURY'S ANCIENT COTTAGES DOOMED

Society Failed to Find Funds Required to Save Buildings

Seven ancient cottages, which are a picturesque feature of Sudbury, Suffolk, are in immediate danger of demolition to make way for a new departmental store.

In a race against time to raise £1,400, the Society for the Preservation of Ancient Buildings has failed to save the cottages.

When the time-limit set by the owners, the Halstead Co-operative Society, expired, another £600 was still needed to keep away the house-breakers.

Four people had each agreed to purchase a cottage, but the society could not find three others to follow their lead.

The cottages, which are in North street, and date back to the 16th century, are quaint plaster buildings typical of the English countryside. Five of them are still occupied.

LARGE GIFTS FOR TWO UNIVERSITIES

Bequests to universities form a feature of the will of Lady Edith Jane Durning-Lawrence, of King's Ride, Ascot, Berks, and of Carlton House-terrace, S.W., who died last April, widow of Sir Edward Durning-Lawrence, Bart., who was formerly Unionist M.P. for Truro.

She left unsettled property of the gross value of £713,905, with net personalty £650,500.

The duties on the property at this valuation and according to the dispositions of the will, will amount to about £235,000.

To London University she left:

Her library and £1,000 for its upkeep, subject to a life interest given to her niece and the latter's husband.

£10,000 to University College for the equipment of laboratories.

£10,000 for the endowment of a chair at University College for the teaching of homeopathic medicine.

She also gave £10,000 to Manchester University and £10,000 to Liverpool University for research work.

Sums bringing the total to nearly £100,000 are left to charities.

"Close-ups" of the Prince of Wales

By EVELYN GRAHAM

IT probably seems a little odd to devote a whole article on the Prince of Wales to his clothes, but, after all, that is all that the larger portion of the public sees of him, and in many cases an examination of the way in which a man or more especially a woman is clothed gives a fairly good indication of their character.

The prince is, of course, a little exceptional in this respect, for so much depends upon what he wears. There was one occasion on which he entered a dance with one black sock on and one colored one. With the way that these things have this piece of information was in the papers next morning, and within a few hours sock manufacturers were scheming to send out the rest of their stock in odd pairs. As a matter of fact, of course, it was a mistake on the part of the prince, who had not realized his mistake in the hurry of dressing, but it was very nearly an error that revolutionized the fashion!

It was when the prince was in America that his influence was at its highest in the sartorial world. The most effective way they can sell a suit of really outrageous pattern and style is by labelling it Saville Row cut. I remember once when I was in the United States at the time of the prince's visit that a young American came up to me and said: "Say, does your Prince of Wales really wear a striped vest with a tuxedo?" Not having the least idea what a tuxedo was, but surmising that it must be some sort of sporting attire, and that by vest he meant shirt, I replied that he did.

About a week later I was asked to a small dance given by this young American and his friends, and to my intense astonishment I found all the male guests wearing dinner jackets over the most gorgeous Fair Isle sweaters. I commented on this dress, asking them whether it was the uniform of some club of bright young people. "Well," they replied, "you ought to know, after all, for it is the fashion set by the Prince of Wales."

After that sort of thing it is not very surprising that the tailors are most anxious to know the latest thing that the prince is wearing.

There is, however, no real reason for them to be exercised over the matter, for H. R. H. has on the whole a conservative taste in dress. The chief note of color that he allows himself is in his sweaters. Here he does really let himself go. These are not always appreciated by his companions. There was one occasion on Rye golf course, where the prince was playing a friendly game with some members of his staff. At one portion of the course the hole runs alongside a field in which at that time a bull was confined.

The chief note of color that he allows himself is in his sweaters. Here he does really let himself go.

The shot was probably the worst the Prince has ever played in his whole golfing career, and that is saying a good deal.

H.R.H., though always well-dressed, could never be called a dandy.

Bull Chased His Sweater

NO sooner had the royal party appeared on the course than the bull manifested every sign of excitement, trumpeting and racing round the field, coming to a stop exactly opposite the prince, who was just about to play his second.

The shot that followed was probably the worst that the prince has ever played in the whole of his golfing career and that is saying a good deal. The rest of his shots at that hole were equally bad, for the bull followed him the whole way along, and his royal highness did not hole out below double figures. Not unnaturally he was the victim of a good deal of chaff at the end of the round and blamed the matter on the bull.

His staff agreed to a certain extent, but put the original blame on the prince for wearing such a gay garment. "Why," said one of them, "I do not mind betting that it is more annoying to him than that red rag there," pointing to the flag that was marking the hole. "Well," answered the prince cheerfully, "let's put it to the test."

Accordingly he took his sweater off and carried it behind his back to a portion of the fence about fifty yards from the bull. Another member of his staff took the golf flag to a similar distance away from the bull on the other side. At a given signal they both waved their irritants and waited to see what the bull would do. They had not long to wait. With a great hoot of rage the bull stampeded down the field towards the prince's sweater.

That is the reason that one cannot say confidently that H. R. H. is entirely conservative in dress; but for all formal or evening wear he has worn nothing that would shock a purist of the old school except perhaps the habit of wearing a white waistcoat with a dinner jacket for dancing. However, we all have our lapses.

In his appreciation of the female costume, however, the prince is much more broadminded, certainly more so than the lord chamberlain, and even more so than Viscount Churchill, who is the arbiter elegantarum feminarum for Ascot.

He has never refused to dance with a partner because of peculiarities of her frock. His sole criterion is whether it looks well, and with most of his dancing partners anything would look well. The prince probably has a considerable influence on women's fashions, as well as on those of men, particularly as he knows that the way to women's hearts is through their clothes.

I remember speaking to a little western shopgirl with whom he had danced during a tour of Canada. Her clothes were hardly of the Bond St. or Rue de la Paix style, but she had saved for three months to buy a dress in case she should get the chance of dancing with the prince.

I asked this girl what the prince had talked about when he had danced with her.

"Oh," she said, "first he said that I was a lovely dancer, and then we talked about fashions and he asked me where I got my dress from. I think he wanted to get one like it for Princess Mary."

I believe that the sales of that western Canadian dressmaker went up a hundred fold after that dance.

He Doesn't Like Snobs

HIS dancing partners do not always fare so well at his hands. It was during his recent tour of East Africa one of his partners prided herself on being very superior and fashionable, pointing out a girl there who was wearing an out-of-date frock. "I always think," she said, "that a frock of that kind is just the weeniest bit vulgar."

"Well," said the prince, "you probably know more about fashions than I do, and you may be right about that, but I think that the wearer looks a tip-top girl," and immediately the dance was finished he went over to the slighted maiden and asked for the honor of a dance, nor was he satisfied until he had danced three "encores" with her. There are very few things that the prince dislikes more than a snob, and on the subject of women's dress it may be safely said that he pays very much more attention to the woman than the clothes.

Finally a word or two of comparison between the Prince of Wales and some of the earlier members of the reigning house of Great Britain from the clothes point of view. Queen Elizabeth is, of course, the outstanding example of a monarch who paid great attention to the royal wardrobe, for tradition assigns to her a dress for every day of the year. Because the Prince of Wales is also always well dressed there is growing up a similar tradition that he, too, possesses a wardrobe as large as that of his illustrious ancestor. That story is, of course, quite untrue. He possesses a large number of uniforms, it is true, but they are necessary for his official duties.

When it comes to the clothes over which he has opportunity for personal inclination he has, considering his position, quite a modest wardrobe and one that many a young man about town can rival. As a matter of fact, the number of his civilian suits, including dress suits, is twenty.

H.R.H., though always well dressed, could never be called a dandy.

There must be a great many people who have wondered what it is like to dance with the prince, for that is the greatest ambition of many a girl.

A Charming Dance Partner

THE Prince of Wales naturally does not have time to attend as many dances as most of those who take part in the London season, and I am told by one who has often danced with him at dances of this description that it is a blessing for which he is profoundly thankful. For, although he is always polite and entertained at these dances and his presence gives a cachet to the evening, what he really likes to do in London is to go to a night club of the respectable type with a small party of which he knows the composition and dance with those partners to whose steps he is accustomed.

Not infrequently he is seen at the Kit-Kat or at the Embassy, dancing on the crowded floor there with the rest of the dancers and enjoying himself as heartily and as unaffectedly as the rest of the dancers.

I was speaking the other day to a girl who had been included in one of these night-club parties at which the prince was present for the first time, and I asked her what it felt like to be really dancing with the Prince of Wales for the first time. Her answer can best be put in her own words.

"When the prince first asked me for a dance I don't know whether I was more pleased than frightened, or the other way round. Although my other partners have told me that I dance very well, and certainly I have had enough lessons, yet I kept on wondering whether I danced as well as the people with whom the prince usually dances. What frightened me most, though, was the thought that I should be too nervous to be able to talk to him at all, for I am afraid that I do not know any highbrow books to talk about nor do I know anything about matters of state and all that sort of thing. When the music started I really did not know whether I was on my head or my heels. In the first few steps I nearly tripped over my own feet twice, but I soon got over my nervousness. It was just like dancing with anyone else except that he dances better than most people. I find that what spoils most young men as dancing partners is that they will not keep their knees unbending when they dance, but the Prince of Wales never offends in this way; he is much too good a dancer. The only thing that he does that my dancing instructor tells me partners ought not to do is to sway a bit from the hips when he is dancing, but personally I like that and I hope that now the prince does it it will come into fashion."

"Well," I said to her, "and now tell me what he talked to you about."

My informant blushed rather prettily. "Oh," she said, "he talked to me first about the floor and the people who were there, and then the people who were usually there, and then we talked about books. I think that we got on to that by comparing the club with one of those hotels that Oppenheim writes about. Then we talked about Edgar Wallace, and he told me that Wallace was one of his favorite writers as well."

"Was that all you talked about?" I asked.

"Well, as a matter of fact," she answered at last, "he told me what a good dancer I was, and then he admired my dress, which I had got sent by air from Paris for the occasion, and then, well, then he was very nice and flattering to me and we just got on splendidly together."

At this point I can hear the disappointed brunettes murmur to each other: "Oh, just like dancing with an ordinary young man after all." For, as a matter of fact, my young friend was a blonde of the ravishing type, and it is well known that H. R. H., like the legendary gentlemen, prefers blondes.

It is just like dancing with an ordinary young man, but an ordinary young man who has a splendid flow of amusing small talk, and a young man who has a way of paying a compliment neatly that is worth all the sugary flattery in the world. Besides, a compliment from the Prince of Wales is somehow much more valuable than a compliment from an ordinary young man.

Fond of Club Dancing

PERHAPS that is where H. R. H. is most happily off the stage—on the crowded floor of a night club, when the clock has struck midnight and everyone there is intent on trying to cram as much amusement into their evening hours of leisure as he possibly can—too busy to notice whether the Prince of Wales is there or not, for the prince is a sufficiently familiar figure to them to prevent them staring.

Then when the saxophones blare and the lights shine down on the white tables and the floor so thick with dancers that you can only see the brilliant dresses of the women and the sober black and white of the men, moving to and fro in the rhythm of the dance, or when the lights are shaded and the saxophone is replaced by the sob of the violins as the band creeps into a lingering waltz, then is the prince, swaying in perfect time with his partner, or swirling swiftly when there is a gap in the crowds, at his best. He is allowed to be himself for a few hours, to dance with those with whom he wishes to dance, to talk with those with whom he wishes to talk, and to be a normal, healthy human being.

There are, however, dances of very different types that the prince has attended. There have been dances in every quarter of the globe. There are young girls in western Canada who have on their mantelpieces in the place of honor a photograph of the Prince of Wales, with whom they danced. And I am told that the young men of the neighborhood lead a dog's life during the dancing season, for however well they dance they are compared with the Prince of Wales, much to their own disadvantage.

Intimate Glimpses Of British Premier And Daughter Now In Canada

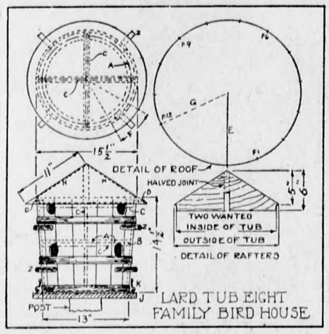
The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING.
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.



IT seems too bad that so few wooden containers are used for anything more worth while than for kindling wood after they have been used once. This project may suggest a use for a lard tub to the "Handy Boy" with many bird friends, and the fall of the year is just the time to build it and fasten it in place for winter seasoning and to allow the birds to inspect it and plan to use it next spring or else to look further.

The tub used for this house is of ordinary size and form, but that is not important for the methods may be applied to any similar container, but we will assume that we are going to use a tub of the same size. Make the partition A 13" in diameter which should just drop into place and rest upon nails driven through the sides as at B. Get out partitions for both the upper and lower stories as at C, ⅝" x 6" for the lower floor, and ⅝" x 5" for the upper apartment, and of lengths which will fit the tub somewhat loosely. Join with halved joints. Locate and make 1¾" holes about as indicated, fit ½" branches Z for porches and fasten partitions and floor in place with small nails partially driven home. Make two rafters as shown, halve them together and fasten in place with nails driven partially in as at D. Paint if desired but birds seem to prefer unpainted residences.

The roof may be of sheet zinc, galvanized iron or asphalt roofing felt or paper. Draw a circle of 11" radius, cut into the center as at E. Draw an 18" circle, divide one-quarter of it into three equal parts as at F, and space this distance twelve times around the 22" circle as at FI, etc. Lap the cut edge over to line G and cement it together, first trying it to be sure that it will fit when resting on the rafters as at H. Place joint E G over a rafter and fasten to all rafters with large headed tacks. Make a bottom J either round or square; fasten it to a post, to a house or in a tree as preferred, holding it in place with hooks and eyes as at K.

To clean the house, release the hooks, draw nails D, remove the roof, draw partially driven nails that hold the partitions and floor, clean the house, replace all pieces and set the house where it belongs.

Leaves in Autumn

DOWN the lane they're dancing by ones and twos and threes—
Little leaves are dancing away from Mother Trees.
They've donned their newest dresses of brown and red and gold
And fearlessly they're dancing away into the cold.

A puff of wind,—they're rustling now, murmuring to each other,
"Perhaps we're foolish little leaves to leave our sturdy mother."
But on they whirl and dance again in Nature's merry game,
Forgetful of the mother tree and woods from whence they came.

Now whirling high, now floating low, now twirling round about,
Now hurrying on in answer to the North Wind's lusty shout.
The very air seems full of leaves—they come down all the ways,
Dancing in the nipping breeze these frosty Autumn days.

Pluggy Makes a Touchdown

WE had a pretty good football team at our school, with helmets enough to go around and everything; and the big fellow who was coaching us said that we'd win the championship game sure if we followed his advice.

I wasn't so sure, but that must have been because I was nervous. The Steam Rollers were already out on the field, going through a few signals, and I could see that they were just as husky as we were, if not huskier. I could also see that Pluggy MacDonald was worried.

Pluggy is the quarterback of our team, and I guess he's about the neatest football player there is. Anyway, I think so, and it's not because he's my chum, either, although that's got a little to do with it, I'll admit. He and the coach were always having arguments about the best way to score touchdowns.

"I've told you a dozen times before, Pluggy," the coach said. "Good football is hitting the other line hard and often. None of this fancy stuff is any good at all."

"Good football is using the old head," replied Pluggy. "Look at those Steam Rollers practicing out on the field. They're ten pounds heavier than we are per man. If we try to go through them, they'll stop us like a stone wall."

"Never mind about that," replied the coach. "You do as I say."

We trotted out on the field and began to throw the ball around for a little practice. The referee got all ready, so did the linesmen, and when the two captains had arranged which team was to kick off and in which direction, the whistle blew and the game started.

Pluggy Gave One Man A Straight Arm And Another Tackler Missed Him Because He Changed His Pace

Pluggy did as the coach told him to do.

"3-9-6, Hike," he yelled, and since that was the signal for a plunge through the Steam Rollers' line, we all got set for the collision. When Pluggy yelled "Hike" the second time, we dug in and smashed the men in front of us as hard as we could, trying to knock them over and fall on top of them. At the same time we were supposed to open up a path for Pluggy, who always carried the ball on a play like that.

We were supposed to! But we had all we could do to open up a crack in the Steam Rollers' line wide enough to see through, let alone a path big enough for Pluggy to lunge through with the ball!

"That's their style of play!" cried the Captain of the Steam Rollers. "C'mon, fellows. Let's hold 'em!"

"Hold 'em? Let's push them back!" cried the rest of the team.

And they did push us back. Instead of our making any progress toward their goal, as we should have done, they were forcing us back toward our own.

"This is so bad that it's awful!" groaned Pluggy. "I'll bet a good forward pass would win the game for us, if the coach would only let me try one."

But the coach wouldn't, so the only thing we could do was hit the line harder than ever in the hope that the Steam Rollers would get tired before us; but what was the use of having such a vain hope? In the second quarter our opponents pulled a neat fake pass and their quarterback got away for a forty-yard run, ending in a touchdown!

Score 6—0, their favor.

Every time a football team makes touchdown, they have a free chance to kick a goal. Well, it isn't exactly a free chance, because the other team has the right to block the kick if it can. The Steam Rollers took their try and made it, which added another point to their score.

Then they got conceited, I guess, or maybe they thought they could tease us a little, for they let us travel down the field until we were within thirty yards of their goal. They expected us to keep on with our battering ram plunges, I guess, so they were caught unprepared when we tried a goal kick from the field.

So were we, but Pluggy knew what he was doing. He gave the correct signals, the center threw the ball back to him, he caught it in his hands and then gave it a terrific kick down the field. It soared over the heads of all the players and made a beautiful arch through the air, going through the exact middle of the goal posts.

Maybe our rooters didn't yell! It was only three points, but that was something, anyway, and if we worked hard during the five minutes that were left, maybe we'd have a chance to score a touchdown. Even if we didn't, the score was now 7—3, which wasn't so bad.

"C'mon, fellows," urged Pluggy. "Let's dig in and push them right off the map!"

And perhaps it was luck or perhaps it was still the Steam Rollers having swelled heads about their first touchdown, but anyway, in a few minutes we were back again in front of their goal, near enough to try another kick if we wanted to.

All our rooters were standing up, cheering their heads off. The excitement was high, because there was only a minute or so left, and whatever we did, we'd have to do quickly.

"21-36-19," called Pluggy, stepping back into kicking formation as he did so.

"They're going to kick!" yelled the Captain of the Steam Rollers. "Block it!"

"Block that kick!" roared the Steam Rollers' grandstand. "Block that kick!"

"Hike!" yelled Pluggy. But instead of the ball going back to him for a kick, it went to Red Malone, who caught it and passed it secretly to Pluggy as Pluggy was tearing past him for an end run!

The play was done so quickly and it was such a surprise to the team that was expecting a kick that the Steam Rollers were unable to move for a second or so. It's a second that wins a game sometime, and that's what happened with us. Pluggy gave one man a straight arm, another tackler missed him because he changed his pace, and when Pluggy was finally brought down, it was only after he had carried the ball over the line for a touchdown.

We didn't score on the "free" kick, but the game was ours anyway at the score of 9—7. The whistle blew for the end of the game. We were the champions, and Pluggy was the hero!

Our coach came up to Pluggy in the locker-room and shook him by the hand.

"It was a great game!" he said. "When they expected you to keep on plunging, you gave them a kick, and when they expected a kick, you gave them an end run. It was a great game."

Pluggy laughed.

"I know I'd have to surprise them in order to score," he replied. "And besides, a touchdown counts six points while a field kick only counts three. If I had kicked that last time instead of trying for a touchdown, the score would have been 7—6 in their favor."

For a moment the coach was silent. Then he said, admiringly:

"Pluggy, that sure was using your old head," and after that, there were no arguments about the right way to play football!

HERE is a nice big PURPLE bunch of grapes!" says BROWN-haired Teddy to YELLOW-haired Susie May.

"There are lots of PURPLE grapes among the GREEN grape leaves, arn't they?" said Susie May.

"Yes, and we must fill your YELLOW basket quite full—see it is nearly full. I can see the PURPLE grapes are almost to the top!" Teddy replies.

The vine has a YELLOW trellis. The vine is BROWN and the little twisted tendrils are light GREEN.

Susie May wears a PINK (use RED lightly) dress with a light BLUE yoke and cuffs. They are bound with a darker BLUE binding.

Teddy wears a light TAN (use BROWN and YELLOW mixed) blouse, with White collar and cuffs. His necktie is RED and his trousers are dark BROWN with White buttons. His socks are TAN and his shoes BROWN.

The hedge is dark GREEN with BROWN trunks and the grass is a light GREEN (you can mix YELLOW with your GREEN to lighten it). The sky is BLUE and both children have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

You can color the border of the picture YELLOW and the lettering should be PURPLE.

The Chipping Sparrow

THIS friendly little fellow that comes fearlessly right up to our doorsteps in his hunt for stray crumbs, needs no introduction, neither do you have to ask his name, as he tells it every time he opens his bill; for no matter what he is doing he never forgets to say chip-chip every few seconds.

There is nothing loud or blustering about him or his voice; he has none of the cock-sure, aggressive ways of his cousin, the English sparrow, but he is modest and unassuming; attends strictly to his business, and bothers no one. He never quarrels or fusses with his folks, but treats them in a gentle, courteous manner, just as if they were company, and not his own kin folks. The fact of the business is, he is a little gentleman—and that explains it all.

He Is Always The Same Cheerful Little Chap

He is a full inch shorter than his cousin from over the sea; is not so chunky, but is built on more slender lines, making it easy to tell him from other sparrows, and there are at least a dozen different kinds. The black stripe that seems to run right through his eyes, tells you at once, who he is. The upper part of his body is an ashen gray, with brown splotches here and there; the breast and under part, is such a light shade of gray, that you might as well call it white; while his wings and tail are both a rusty brown.

He is not at all particular about where he lives, just so it is somewhere in North America. But he is a little particular about the climate, as he spends his winters in the Gulf States, where things are warm and pleasant, and his summers farther north. He doesn't like it to be too hot or too cold—but he wants it just right—and no one can blame him for that. He is such a tiny mite, and is always in such a good humor, that one can't help liking him.

Whether the day is dark and cloudy, or whether the sun is shining brightly, he is always the same cheerful little chap, doing his part in scattering joy and gladness, where ever he may be.

His wiry trill, more like the buzzing of an insect, than the note of a bird, can be heard all day, and every day through the summer. He is one of the very first to wake in the morning, and the last to go to bed at night. He doesn't wait for daylight, but begins his low-voiced chip-chip while the stars are still out, and he keeps it up long after most birds are in bed and asleep.

You can hardly call it a song, for it is too short for that, but he never tires of repeating it over and over; and there are mighty few hours that it cannot be heard from the wayside hedges, and from the corner of the garden, where raspberry vines often shelter the nest. He has no hide-bound notions about where the nest is placed; as it may be in the topmost branches of a tall tree, or in a bush, not more than a foot from the ground. Wherever it may be, it is pretty sure to be near cultivated fields, and often in the shrubbery near a house. He has figured out in that small striped head of his, that where there are gardens and fields, a crop of insects can generally be counted on, and that in the vicinity of houses and farms, there are fewer hawks and owls.

His dainty little nest is constructed of selected grasses, and tiny rootlets, but when it comes to the lining, nothing will answer but long horse hair, for holding the greenish-blue eggs. For that purpose, horse hair is a necessity. Where he manages to find enough of that material, in this horseless age, is a mystery. A chipping sparrow's nest, without its horsehair lining, would be a curiosity. This habit of his is so general, that in some parts of the country, he is called the Hair-sparrow.

About the only fault that can be found with this sparrow is, they all spoil the children. The mother will allow herself to be imposed on in the most outrageous manner by the children when they get to be as big and strong as she is, and just as able to find their own food. They follow her around, squat down right in front of her, quiver their wings, and tease her to give them whatever she finds; and sometimes they will deliberately snatch the food out of her mouth.

She cannot get away from them, as they can fly as well as she can; they dog her footsteps, get in her way, all the time uttering that hungry baby chirp; until from sheer desperation, she snatches up a seed, and crams it down the throat of the nearest tormenter—when she should have spanked it. As she raises two broods during the summer, you can imagine what she has to put up with, and it is no wonder that her brown head turns gray long before it should.

None of the sparrows probably are as helpful to the farmer and gardener, as the Chipping, as they work early and late doing what they can in ridding the fields of hurtful insects. Just find a nest of hungry baby sparrows, and see how often she comes with something to eat, and it is generally some kind of insect. One day a man did this very thing, and found by actual count, that she brought food about every three and a half minutes, and that she visited the nest one hundred and nineteen times, during the seven hours she was under observation.

She kept almost a constant stream of insects, alive and wiggling, going down the yellow throats; and as she puts in something like fourteen hours a day at this work, one can form some sort of an idea of the number of creeping, crawling and hopping insects she destroys in the course of a day. It does not seem possible that the young birds could consume them all—but they do—and when the last one has disappeared down the yellow lane, they are still begging for more.

The JUNIOR COOK

SCALLOPED OYSTERS

Wash and pick over enough oysters to make 2 cupfuls.

Butter a baking dish (not too deep a dish).

Roll enough crackers to make one cupful.

Melt ⅛ cupful of butter and mix with the crumbs.

Strain the oyster liquor and add enough milk to make one cupful.

Put a thin layer of crumbs in the buttered dish.

Cover this with a layer of oysters and then a layer of crumbs alternating till the dish is full.

Season each layer of oysters with pepper and salt before putting on the crumbs. Use in all about 1 teaspoon of salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Pour the liquid over the top and bake for 25 minutes. Serve immediately.

Arithmetical Puzzlers

Take 1 from 9 and get 10.

(Answer: IX; take I away and leave X.)

Bring three 2's together so as to make 24.

(Answer: 22; plus 2 equals 24.)

What number of 3 figures multiplied by 8 will make exactly 10?

(Answer: 1¼ or 1.25.)

Add 1 to 9 and make 20.

(Answer: IX; cross the I and you have XX.)

FRUIT MAZE—A Pear

TOM, THE PIPER'S SON

YOUNG TOM, the Piper's son, was bad and stole a pig one day
And ran so very fast he thought that he would get away;
But Peter Pumpkin-eater tossed a pumpkin big and round
Right in his path and Tom went tumbling down without a sound.
They caught him then, of course, and took away the stolen pig.
And Farmer Brown, who owned it—he was very strong and big—
Took hold of Tom and held him with one hand and soundly beat
The little thief, who pretty soon ran crying down the street.

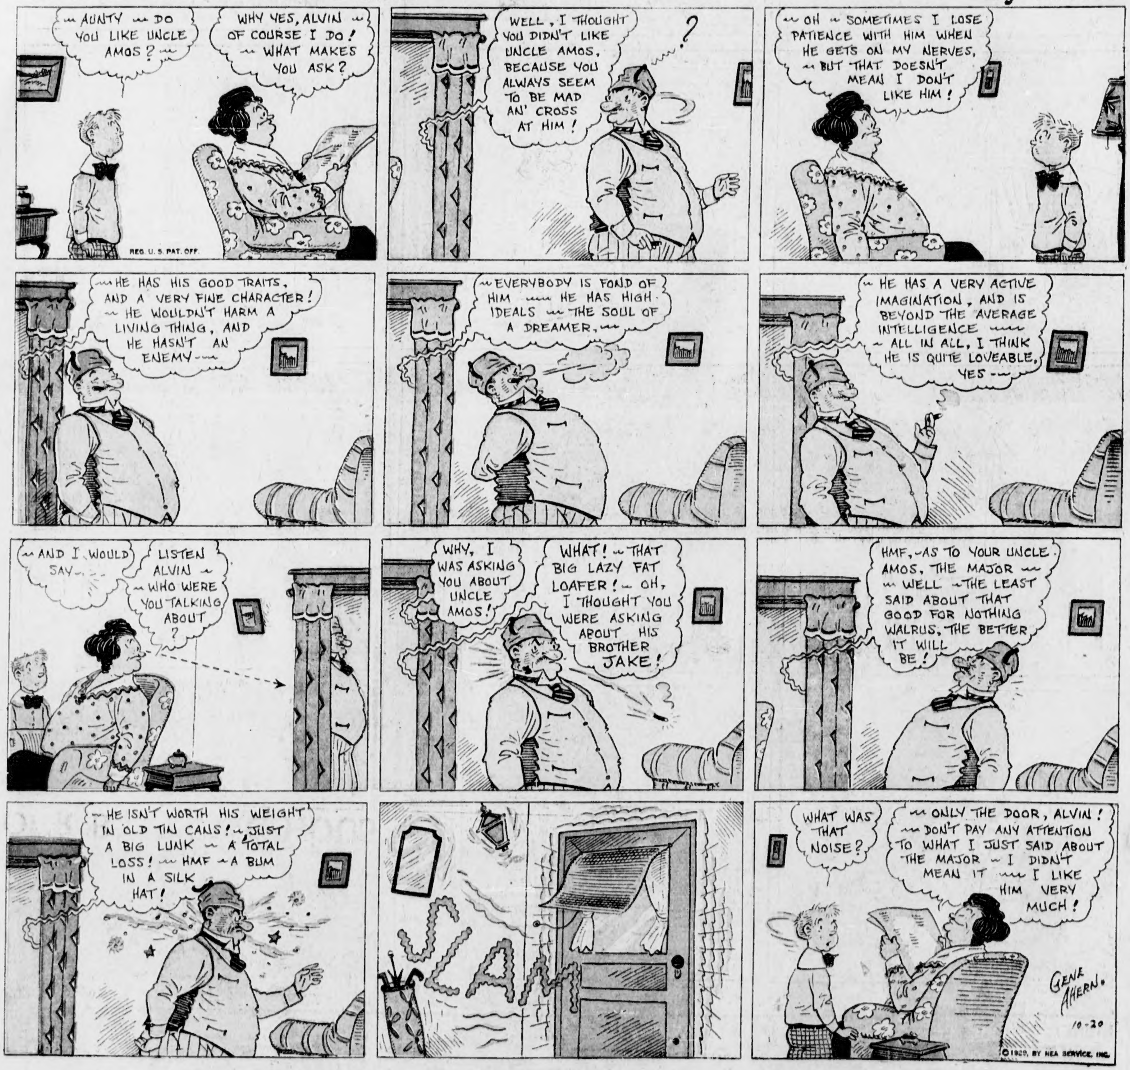
OUR BOARDING HOUSE

By Ahern



— AUNTY — DO YOU LIKE UNCLE AMOS? —
WHY YES, ALVIN — OF COURSE I DO! — WHAT MAKES YOU ASK?
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
WELL, I THOUGHT YOU DIDN'T LIKE UNCLE AMOS, BECAUSE YOU ALWAYS SEEM TO BE MAD AN' CROSS AT HIM!
— OH — SOMETIMES I LOSE PATIENCE WITH HIM WHEN HE GETS ON MY NERVES, — BUT THAT DOESN'T MEAN I DON'T LIKE HIM!
— HE HAS HIS GOOD TRAITS, AND A VERY FINE CHARACTER! — HE WOULDN'T HARM A LIVING THING, AND HE HASN'T AN ENEMY —
— EVERYBODY IS FOND OF HIM — HE HAS HIGH IDEALS — THE SOUL OF A DREAMER, —
— HE HAS A VERY ACTIVE IMAGINATION, AND IS BEYOND THE AVERAGE INTELLIGENCE — — ALL IN ALL, I THINK HE IS QUITE LOVEABLE, YES —
— AND I WOULD SAY —
LISTEN ALVIN — — WHO WERE YOU TALKING ABOUT?
WHY, I WAS ASKING YOU ABOUT UNCLE AMOS!
WHAT! — THAT BIG LAZY FAT LOAFER! — OH, I THOUGHT YOU WERE ASKING ABOUT HIS BROTHER JAKE!
HMF, — AS TO YOUR UNCLE AMOS, THE MAJOR — — WELL — THE LEAST SAID ABOUT THAT GOOD FOR NOTHING WALRUS, THE BETTER IT WILL BE!
— HE ISN'T WORTH HIS WEIGHT IN OLD TIN CANS! — JUST A BIG LUNK — A TOTAL LOSS! — HMF — A BUM IN A SILK HAT!
SLAM
WHAT WAS THAT NOISE?
— ONLY THE DOOR, ALVIN! — DON'T PAY ANY ATTENTION TO WHAT I JUST SAID ABOUT THE MAJOR — I DIDN'T MEAN IT — I LIKE HIM VERY MUCH!
